JUDGE PRAISES DRUGGAN; JAILS A BANK DEBTOR

Gangster Pays $500 More on Debt.

Terry Druggan, Valley hoodlum who attained wealth and notoriety as a beer peddler, heard himself praised yesterday for his "straightforward, manly attitude." The speaker was Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, who accepted from Druggan another payment on a bank debt.

Judge Feinberg had just sentenced an unwilling bank debtor to thirty days in jail for contempt of court and perjury. As the debtor, Max Randall, was led away to the county jail, Druggan and his attorney, Peter Sissman, appeared before the judge.

TERRY DRUGGAN.

"Mr. Druggan is pretty well broke," said the lawyer. "But he is willing to pay another $500 in cash on what he owes and is also willing that his expensive furniture, now in storage, be sold. He promises your honor that he will eventually repay the entire debt."

Pays Money to Bank.

Druggan borrowed $17,000 on unsecured notes from the West Central State bank, now closed and under investigation for $400,000 assets. Three weeks ago he paid $2,500 on the debt, assigned to the receiver several accounts he carried at the bank, and turned over a lien of $12,232 on his furniture at his Greenview avenue apartment.

After Attorney Sissman had made his statement in court yesterday the judge looked at Druggan. The gangster had promised to produce another $2,500 yesterday and he had just heard a bank debtor sent to jail, so he had reason for apprehension. Druggan has had experience in jails. Also he has pleaded guilty in the federal court to income tax evasion and is awaiting sentence.

Judge Commends Druggan.

"I am inclined to give Mr. Druggan some consideration," the court began. "Whatever his public reputation may be, his attitude in this court has been straightforward and manly. He has, in fact, demonstrated a much more commendable attitude than have witnesses in another matter before me, witnesses who are presumably men of standing and education."

The judge was believed to be referring to the hearing on John Bain, Inc., which he is to resume next Tuesday. This defunct company was one of the enterprises of John Bain, head of the chain of twelve banks which closed last June 9.

A look of wonder spread over Druggan's face. Was the judge speaking of him? In a long career, Druggan has been the subject of many judicial utterances but this was the first time that the comment had been laudatory. A smile overspread the Druggan countenance. He whispered to his lawyer.

Offers to Help Court.

"Mr. Druggan wishes to aid the court further," the lawyer said to Judge Feinberg. "He is informed that the receiver is having some trouble with one of the tenants at the Greenview avenue apartment. This tenant is said to be paying only $150 a month on a $225 a month apartment."

"If the court will permit, Mr. Druggan says he is sure that he can persuade this tenant to pay his full rent."

"I appreciate Mr. Druggan's offer," said the judge, "but this court has weapons of its own to persuade unwilling persons. I think we will have to refuse the proposition."

False Testimony Exposed.

Max Randall, the first debtor sentenced to jail, owed $6,000 to the West Central State bank. He had deeded a two story apartment building which he owned to his father and had told the Judge that he was penniless. His testimony on the stand was shown in several instances to be false. Finally, he offered to settle the $6,000 claim by a payment of $450.

"I am going to shock some of these people into realizing that this court cannot be trifled with," said the judge.

"Give him one more chance—" pleaded the lawyer.

"No, I have made up my mind," replied the judge. "He is sentenced to thirty days in jail for contempt of court, interference with the receiver, and perjury."

CHILL WIND MAY BRING SNOW TO CHICAGO TODAY

Strong winds from the northwest, chilled by their passage over the frozen plains of Canada, will sweep out the vestiges of summer in Chicago today, according to the official forecast.

Occasional rains are scheduled for the morning hours, possibly changing into snow flurries in the afternoon. Much colder is the temperature forecast, and conditions are expected to approach the cold wave stage in Wisconsin.

Clearing skies but still lower temperatures are anticipated tomorrow, and, according to Forecaster J. R. Lloyd, the cold will extend through the early part of the week. The contrast to the weather of yesterday probably will be marked, the mean temperature of 60 degrees being twenty-two degrees above the normal for Nov. 20. The maximum yesterday was 64 degrees.

The wind last night, from the southwest, reached such proportions that several windows in Chicago were broken and thirty-five burglar alarms were set off. Police squads answered each alarm, but found no burglars.

Heavy snows fell yesterday in the west and northwest, eighteen inches being recorded at Wallace, Idaho. There were blizzards in Montana, Colorado, and Wyoming. Farther east heavy rains were reported. At West Frankfort, Ill., the Big Muddy river overflowed lowlands to a depth of several feet.

Free Liquor Party Slayer of Policeman

Frederick Guy Sprague, once a wealthy grain broker, was acquitted by a jury in the court of Judge George Fred Rush last night of the murder of Policeman Patrick J. Gallagher. The defendant admitted that he shot and killed Gallagher when the latter went to his apartment at 915 Wilson avenue to quiet a noisy liquor party on April 14, but claimed it was "all a mistake."

The prosecution had demanded the death penalty for Sprague, who is 60 years old and was, until the market crash in 1929, rated a millionaire. It required only a short time for the jurors to reach a decision. The case was given to them at 6 p. m. and they first went to dinner. The actual deliberations occupied less than two hours.

Widow Becomes Hysterical.

Mrs. Nellie Gallagher, widow of the policeman, became hysterical when the verdict was announced.

"That man is guilty," she screamed. "He killed my husband and left me alone with four little children. Why don't you give him what he deserves?"

She was led out of the courtroom by bailiffs.

Tells of Police Warnings.

Testimony for the state showed that neighbors had complained several times of the hilarity in the Sprague apartment and that policemen had visited the place twice with warnings before Gallagher went there. One of the complainants about the noise was Dr. James B. Munn, who had an apartment across the hall from Sprague's, and the accused man testified in his own behalf that he believed it was Dr. Munn who knocked at his door.

"The doctor had been threatening me earlier in the day," said Sprague. "I became frightened and fired when the door was opened."

Dr. Munn testified that he had protested against the whoopee, but declared he had made no threats.

For the defendant his attorney, Barratt O'Hara, claimed the old common law axiom that "a man's house is his castle," even if it were only a hotel room, and referred to the shooting as a mistake.

Death Penalty Asked.

Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne pleaded with the jury to inflict the death penalty.

"Even if you believe Sprague's story," he said, "he had murder in his heart when he fired. He may have meant to kill Dr. Munn or he may have meant to kill Gallagher."

After the verdict Prosecutor Ditchburne said it was evident the jury held the life of a policeman cheaply. Sprague, leaving the county jail, made one remark:

"Thank God I am free."

SEIZE BANDIT AFTER CHASE BY HOLDUP VICTIM

Police cleared up one crime last night before it was reported to the district station. As a result Frank Carroll, 45 years old, no address, was held as an alleged robber.

Carroll, it is charged, entered a cigar shop at 1453 East 63d street, held his hand in his coat pocket as though grasping a gun, and forced Jack Edgar, 6940 Stony Island avenue, the clerk, to hand over $16. Then he fled.

Edgar followed. Outside the door Edgar shouted to a passerby to notify Woodlawn police of the holdup and continued after the bandit. At 63d street and Harper avenue the clerk closed in on his man just as Sergt. Ray Crane and his detective squad neared. He motioned to Crane to seize the fugitive. Carroll was arrested. Crane took Carroll to the Woodlawn station. As they entered, the bystander whom Edgar had asked to notify police was just rushing into the station to report the crime.

Two Yankees Will Try to Salvage Lusitania

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—An expedition which will apply new methods to salvage sunken vessels will start operations by salvaging the Lusitania, sunk during the war off the coast of Ireland, as soon as the necessary permission is obtained from the British government, it was learned tonight. Two Americans, Capt. Hilton Cowell and Simon Lake, who constructed several submarines for the American government, will be in charge. A base has been selected at Kinsale, close to Land's End, eight miles south and southwest from where the Lusitania lies in 40 fathoms of water.

Rules Husband Need Not Buy Frills for Wife

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Frills, which make the life of a woman a constant succession of envy and vainglory, were frankly discussed from the bench today by Justice McCardie, the "bachelor judge," in a penetrating discourse, the point of which was that a husband's pocketbook is no longer liable to female extravagance.

The justice was rendering judgment in a suit by fashionable firm of French dressmakers to recover $1,325 from Gilbert Frankau, novelist, in settlement of an account run up his second wife, Aimee. The couple were divorced here Nov. 9.

"A husband can protect himself from dangers created by an extravagant wife by means of a fixed allowance to his wife," Justice McCardie declared, rendering the judgment and costs of the suit against the divorced Mrs. Frankau and in favor of both the firm of dressmakers and the former husband. "This limits his financial liability and destroys any prima facie right of the wife to pledge her husband's credit in respect to matters covered by an allowance."

Hailed as Remarkable Decision.

Justice McCardie, who is known throughout England for his piquant views in marital affairs, discussed the case at length in what is hailed as one of the most remarkable decisions ever read in a British court. Evidence at the trial showed that Frankau lived up his brain and that his income over a period of years fluctuated between $20,000 and $30,000, but had been slashed in half. the court outlined four points on which a wife should be guided in spending a husband's money as follows:

First, the gross income of a husband differs from the amount which is left after the demands of the tax collector; second, a substantial income earned by a man's brains is no insurance against illness, and there is constant need of providing for a rainy day; third, the future is uncertain and provision should be made for old age; fourth, a man may have primary charges on his income.

"Too many women are slaves of fashion, and too many men are slaves of women," he continued. "The law must be alive to the world as it is today and to women as they actually are. There is no doubt that as far as actual physical necessity for warmth or a desire to conceal the female body the ordinary society woman could clothe herself on one-fifth the money she expends for dress.

Terms Fashions "Powerful."

"Not only do the fashions change greatly but with almost ludicrous rapidity. The vast machinery of fashion creation is ever active, ever powerful, ever merciless. It commands the resources of the world."

Justice McCardie outlined the considerations of a husband in fixing his wife's clothing allowance, stating that the "factor of sex allurement is not without its weight."

"I doubt not that sex interest is most importantly vital to men and women," he continued. "Woman instinctively desires to be well dressed, not only for those with whom she is interlinked but also to attract the attention and admiration of other women and also men she may meet.

"But the husband need not be exposed to in by the extravagance of his wife. I have formed the conclusion that Mrs. Frankau was grossly extravagant."

Mrs. Frankau was ordered to pay the costs of both husband and the plaintiffs, as well as the bill which was the subject of the suit.

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—(Saturday.)—(AP)—The league of nations council announced shortly before noon that it would hold a public session at 4:30 this afternoon in the hope of clearing up the tangled situation surrounding yesterday's truce proposals.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 21.—[Saturday.]—The government today instructed Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate to the league of nations council, to reject any proposal under which Japan would promise not to take military action in Manchuria. Such a proposal, it is felt, would mean total surrender of the Japanese position.

The government announced this was "unthinkable," nor could it accept any proposals which would tie the hands of the army. The government said it was surprised that Yoshizawa had declared he had no objection to the armistice proposal.

Yoshizawa May Lose His Job.

It was said that if he had committed himself to such a proposal he would be asked to resign immediately and Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, appointed to represent Japan at the league. Should Matsudaira decline, Toshiaki Obata, ambassador to Germany and former minister to China, may be appointed.

A government spokesman said that should an armistice be called Japan feared the Chinese would immediately concentrate troops at points menacing to the Japanese.

A growing dissatisfaction with the league of nations is apparent here.

"We cannot trust the Chinese for a moment," a government spokesman said. "If the league desired to end hostilities, why didn't it step in and warn the Chinese when Gen. Ma Chan-Shan was concentrating preparatory to the Nonni attacks?"

CHINA ALSO BALKS

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate to the league of nations, today offered to give up everything except Manchuria, and the league council—all but China—gratefully accepted, reflecting that by such a formula nothing is lost save honor.

In that "everything" the Japanese delegate apparently included Japan's famous five fundamental points, even the insistence on direct negotiations with China and a blanket recognition by the Nanking government of all contested treaty rights in Manchuria.

[The late dispatch from Tokio, as printed above, makes it clear that Mr. Yoshizawa's amiable agreement has already been repudiated by his government.]

Agrees to "Armistice."

Mr. Yoshizawa agreed to an "armistice" in the unofficial war that has been raging for the last two months and he also agreed to the sending of a neutral investigating committee—a six man committee of statesmen on which America is expected to be represented—to the far east to report back to the league.

But he refused to make any pledge to remove a single soldier from Manchurian soil during the long months which must intervene before the investigating committee can complete its work, and there is no indication that he specifically promises to abide by the recommendations of the proposed committee.

League Is Silent.

All these statements are made under reserve, because the league negotiators deliberately left the whole business in a nebulous state. They refused to admit that any formal offer was made or accepted.

League circles, however, have a very definite impression that the Chinese and Japanese delegates have indicated to Aristide Briand, French foreign minister and chairman of the league council, that they will accept, in principle, the council's compromise formula for an armistice and neutral investigation without evacuation.

Alfred Sze, Chinese representative, tonight denied, however, that China has accepted such a formula, even in principle. He indicated that the terms of the formula were still too vague to allow him to make a definite answer until tomorrow's round of private conversations have put it in more concrete form. It is also thought the Chinese are awaiting instructions from Nanking.

Even if the Chinese are finally obliged to accept the arrangement they in no wise approve of it, a Chinese spokesman said tonight. The Chinese give the impression that they think the league will fail in its solemn duty of upholding international obligations by allowing Japanese troops to remain in Manchuria, and that it will be guilty of a betrayal of trust in bringing pressure upon them to accept such a compromise.

In any event the abandonment of the previous intransigeant Japanese stand is something that would have been sensational a month ago and at least is highly interesting today. Throughout the interminable debates, in public and private, the best diplomats of the occident have pounded their nerves to pieces against the courteous stubbornness of the little yellow men.

Time after time Lord Cecil, Briand and others pleaded with Yoshizawa to cite the elusive treaties which Japan claims China must recognize before the evacuation of troops, but always the gray haired, impassive Nipponese turned them aside.

Opposition Suddenly Melts.

When they finally thought they had him, the other day, he escaped them by sweetly suggesting that since the validity of some treaties is questioned —the United States refused to recognize a number of them—China should sign a new engagement pledging herself to recognize the validity of all previous vehicles.

Then came the taking of Taitsihar and the defeat of the last Chinese forces opposing the Japanese advance. Yoshizawa's resistance melted like icicles in the noonday sun.

The Chinese have a very simple explanation of this. Japan, they say, is sure she will never be thrown out of Manchuria and feels no need for treaties to establish her control when machine guns will do just as effectively.

Who Devised the Plan?

However, appearances being everything to the league, the Japanese delegates' concession is really tremendous. How it was brought about is not known. It sounds very much like the work of Briand. He certainly bore the brunt of the negotiations.

Officially it will be offered at the public session as a spontaneous token of good will. According to league officials, the formula just grew. No one appears anxious to establish its paternity and any one can claim the glory.

One phase of the compromise formula—the armistice—is definitely attributed to the German delegate, Bernhard von Buslow, and it was ratified by the other members at this afternoon's private meeting of the secret twelve.

Dawes' Rôle a Mystery.

Ambassador Dawes, American observer, also is prominently mentioned as being chiefly responsible. His 40 minute interview with Briand this morning was expected to be decisive. Nobody, however, knows what was decided.

Some think Gen. Dawes told Briand that America could not allow itself to get entangled in the machinery of the league covenant and that the council then adopted the compromise to solve its fuss. Others insist the compromise was only made possible by America's assurance of support.

Following his interview with Briand Gen. Dawes gave a statement to the press. Some observers declared it contradictad itself.

What Dawes Said.

"The United States is not a member of the league," Gen. Dawes said. "Therefore, it cannot take part in discussions bearing upon the application of the machinery of the league covenant. Since, in the present crisis, it is possible that such discussions may arise, it is obvious that my presence at the meetings of the council would not only be inappropriate but might even embarrass the efforts of the council itself.

"But the position thus necessarily assumed by the United States in no way indicates it is not wholly sympathetic with efforts being made by the league in support of the objective of peace in Manchuria. The United States must, however, preserve its full freedom of judgment as to its course."

Regarding the formula the league labored two months to bring forth, it is impossible to give many details. It is still in a formative state.

Proposal Is Outlined.

According to league spokesmen, however, its main lines would be:

First, the committee would be composed of not more than six members. Theoretically the members would not represent particular countries but different world forces—an American for non-league opinion, a Frenchman for the European military bloc, a distinguished Scandinavian journalist to represent neutral sentiment, and so on.

They would not be experts but public characters of exceptional prestige and authority in their respective countries. Gen. Pershing and Gen. Dawes have been suggested as American possibilities. Also they must be in good health and not too old on account of the rigors of the Manchurian climate.

Time No Object.

Second, the committee would make an intensive study, regardless of time, and make a formal written report to the council, which then would decide the dispute on the basis of the findings.

Third, the committee would not confine itself to the Manchurian situation, but would take in the whole field of Chinese-Japanese relations. It would meet in Tokio, Nanking, Mukden, and other parts of China.

Fourth, the fighting would cease during the investigation, but the occupation, on one hand, and the Chinese boycott, on the other, would continue until the council gives its final decision.

"MEMBER" RAIDS EXCLUSIVE CLUB IN A PENTHOUSE

New York, Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Federal prohibition agents, one of whom had obtained a membership in the organization, early today raided the exclusive Breakfast club on the thirty-first and thirty-second floors of the Hotel Delmonico, at 502 Park avenue.

They arrested eight employes and confiscated 247 bottles of alleged cordials, wines, whiskies, and gin. Liquor and prisoners were loaded into taxicabs and taken to a nearby police station.

The agents, Charles A. Brady and Thomas J. Doyle, one of whom had managed to get his name on the membership list of the exclusive organization, registered as member and guest and seated themselves at a table in the dining room. They said they called for whiskies, and got them, at 75 cents a drink. Then they arose and announced that the management was under arrest.

RUSSIA WARNS JAPAN HER ACTS ARE "ALARMING"

Moscow Fears Interests May Be Endangered.

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Foreign Commissar Litvinov expressed concern in a new note to Japanese Ambassador Hirota, made public tonight, lest widening Japanese military activities in Manchuria involve the interests of the soviet union.

Accepting with "satisfaction" the Japanese government's declaration of yesterday that it had "taken great care that the soviet republic's interests would not suffer, Litvinov said:

"I must, however, take note, notwithstanding the first declaration made by you regarding the instructions given for utmost limitations of Japanese military operations, that these operations since then have widened to a great extent beyond the borders of the first intended zones.

Cause for "Serious Alarm."

"This situation makes it possible that the interests of the soviet republic would be affected, which cannot but call for serious alarm on the side of the soviet union." He was assumed to be referring to the occupation of Tsitsihar, a strategic point on the Chinese Eastern railway.

He reiterated that the soviet government continues to pursue a policy of peace, attaches the greatest importance to the maintenance and strengthening of its present friendly relations with Japan, and considers that the Japanese government is striving to do likewise.

At the same time, he disclosed that the soviet government had instructed its representatives in the administration of the Chinese Eastern railway to observe strict neutrality in Manchuria, countering the Japanese charge that the railway was transporting Chinese troops.

Japan Plans New Conquest.

MUKDEN, Nov. 20.—The gravity of the Manchurian problem has been increased, according to opinion here, by news from Nanking that President Chiang Kai-shek is coming to Manchuria.

There have been profuse indications in the last three days that the Japanese military authorities here intend to clean up the situation by ousting the remnants of former Gov. Chang Hsueh-liang's forces from Chinchow, south of Mukden, to points south of the great wall.

It is reported that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's gesture, which is obviously an attempt to unify the Chinese factions, has resulted in a movement northward of Gen. Hang Yu-chu's Shantung forces and other troop concentrations in north China.

May Be Considered War.

It is considered here that, though a formal state of war may be long deferred, Nanking's official encouragement of Gen. Ma Chan-shan's resistance in the Kwan river district, coupled with Gen. Chiang's journey north, might constitute an actual, though not a technical, declaration of hostilities.

The panic in Tsitsihar during Gen. Ma's hurried flight and the subsequent Japanese occupation is subsiding and business is again being carried on. Tsitsihar's municipal affairs are being administered by a peace maintenance bureau, headed by Liu Yin-Hsiang, Chinese rival of Gen. Ma. The Japanese troops are not billeted in the city, but are restricted to the former Chinese barracks outside the north and south gates.

Gen. Ma is believed to be heading for Hailun, where he is expected to rally the remnants of his army and announce a new Heilungkiang provincial government. The only other sizable Chinese armed forces remaining in Manchuria, aside from the remnants of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's army in the Chinchow region, are 10,000 Kirin forces, who are hostile to the Japanese, located at Sanshin, on the Sungari river northeast of Harbin.

Mongol Priests Back Japan.

Two hundred Mongol Lama priests today asked and received permission from the Japanese Gen. Honjo to hold memorial services at the Russo-Japanese war memorial monument in Mukden "to honor Japanese recently killed and wounded in fighting for the preservation of peace in the orient." These services are planned for Sunday and Monday, and will be followed by five days of chanting in the Yellow temple, beginning Tuesday.

Report Move on Mongolia.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Chinese delegation to the league of nations received a telegram from Nanking tonight saying the Japanese army at Tsitsihar, Manchuria, was organizing a military advance into Inner Mongolia.

SHERIFFS SOLD PRISONERS RUM, U. S. CHARGES

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Thirty-three residents of Massac county, Ill., including Sheriff George Krueger and Deputy Sheriff Fred Risinger, were indicted today by the federal grand jury at East St. Louis on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. Massac county is in the extreme southeast portion of Illinois.

United States District Attorney Paul F. Jones said the government has evidence that the two officers sold liquor to prisoners in the county jail at Metropolis through a trusty.

The liquor, Jones said, had been obtained by the officers in raids on bootleggers and was sold to the prisoners for 50 cents a half pint.

In addition, the officers are charged with permitting speakeasies to run wide open in Metropolis and other towns in the county. The overt acts on which the conspiracy charge is based occurred during the years from 1925 to the present, Jones said.

Polar Submarine Nautilus Sunk Off Norway's Coast

BERGEN, Norway, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The polar submarine Nautilus, in which the expedition of Sir Hubert Wilkins proceeded to the arctic last summer, was sunk off the coast here today. An attempt to sink the craft two weeks ago failed because the tow lines of attending tugs broke during stormy weather.

BERLIN PUTS HER FINANCE ILLS UP TO WORLD BANK

Urges Inquiry Into "Ability to Pay."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—The Young plan is dead and a new plan must be devised to reorganize the world's financial affairs. Thus Germany expresses herself in hidden and polite terms of a memorandum which she presented to the world bank and the powers interested in the Young plan today. The memorandum said:

"Since the Young plan was devised, a crisis, unparalleled in history, has changed the financial and economic situation in the world and particularly that of Germany."

Therefore, Germany asked for a new conference to reorganize these financial settlements, "taking into consideration all the factors, especially Germany's private debt abroad."

Urges a Special Probe.

The first part of Germany's memorandum requested the convocation of a special advisory committee as provided in the Young plan to examine the nation's ability to pay reparations. Then its authors attempted to analyze the situation. The Germans had failed, the note said, to induce France to agree to an immediate conference on reparations and private financial questions, including German debts to America and other foreign countries.

Germany repeated her plea in the memorandum, taking pains to insist that the question of private debts be discussed immediately to "make possible a financial reorganization before the end of February when the financial standstill agreement on private credits expires."

The memorandum spoke warmly of President Hoover's debt moratorium and his "farseeing initiative," but it bemoaned that the "Hoover year alone could not banish the danger of collapse."

The letter also stated that the world bank experts themselves are aware that all measures taken in the past five months gave only temporary relief, adding that these experts have urged that "no time be lost in taking measures to make possible financial transactions which would give Germany and the world the help they need."

Flight of Foreign Credits.

The document then pointed out that nothing has been done in the meantime but that "the world is increasingly aware of the interrelations of financial problems and the necessity of settling them in toto."

It recalled the flight of foreign credits and losses in foreign exchange which reached a point where Germany would have been compelled to declare a moratorium on reparations payments according to the procedures in the Young plan. This, the note observed, was avoided by the Hoover one year holiday.

The government's economic advisory board, established by President von Hindenburg to draw up an economic plan to tide Germany over the winter, was virtually wrecked today when three men, representing the agricultural interests, walked out. They protested that the farmers were being made the victims of the scheme.

VITAMIN D NOW IS PRODUCED IN CRYSTAL FORM

GOTTINGEN, Germany, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Prof. Adolf Windaus, Nobel prize winner in chemistry in 1927 and 1928, has succeeded after four years of experimentation in producing vitamin D—the anti-rachitic vitamin—in pure crystallized form.

Vitamin D, which prevents and cures rickets, can be supplied either in diet or as a result of irradiation.

It occurs comparatively infrequently in foods, the principal sources being fish, live oils, and the body fat of some fishes. It is present in milk, butter, and cheese.

Two Robbers Rule Office for 15 Minutes; Get $50

Two bandits took possession for fifteen minutes yesterday of the office to Harry Palmer & Co., a loan concern at 163 West Washington street, while they searched the place for valuables. They found $50. Miss Gertrude Hurley, the office manager, and two customers were forced to answer telephone calls while the bandits conducted their search.

Matt Moore's Vacation Costs $3,000, Police Told

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Matt Moore, motion picture actor, tells police that a vacation cost him $3,000 in jewelry. He discovered the loss when he returned home. A kitchen window was open and the rugs were damaged with cigaret ends which the invaders had neglected to extinguish.

DRY SLAYER IS SUSPENDED AS STUPID, BRUTAL

"No Brains," Verdict of Woodcock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Declaring that he had used "brute force and no brains," Director of Prohibition Amos W. W. Woodcock today suspended Henry Dierks, dry agent who killed 20 year old Milford Smith of Englewood, Colo.

Mr. Woodcock's action follows wide publicity given the brutal killing of the Smith boy early last week over a pint of wine. Dierks is alleged to have struck the youth in the head with his revolver, causing his death a few hours later.

In suspending Dierks, Woodcock said he was not concerned with the criminal responsibility for the murder.

"I am concerned with his availability as an agent," he said.

Called Stupid and Brutal.

"The offense for which he was endeavoring to arrest Smith was a pitiful, noncommercial one. If he had succeeded, Smith would have paid a small fine and that would have been all. He did not attempt to observe. He knows no more now about the source of the liquor or even whether the proprietor of the little stand was violating the law than when he began. It is just brute force and no brains. We are paying him and have been training him to be a skillful investigator. Actually he was acting like a stupid and brutal peace officer."

Mr. Woodcock added that he hoped "every agent who reads this will take solemn warning that we will not tolerate this type of activity," and in conclusion expressed personal regret to the family of the murdered boy.

Acts Slayer's Report.

The suspension of Dierks followed receipt of a report from him covering the entire incident, Mr. Woodcock stated.

"The criminal responsibility of Dierks from this standpoint is slight, if any," Woodcock stated. "Of course, he did not intend to kill Smith and the law gives an officer the right to use the necessary force making an arrest. If charges are brought against him I trust for the honor of his state that he will have a just and impartial trial."

Mr. Woodcock pointed that under the civil service laws, he has no power to dismiss Dierks completely from the federal service. He stated, however, that he will prefer formal charges against the agent within a short time, looking to his final dissociation with the federal government.

Ignorant of Past Record.

Mr. Woodcock said he had no knowledge regarding Dierks' past record, which since the Smith incident has been attacked on numerous grounds including previous accusations of brutality to prisoners. Dierks was dropped from the rolls before the prohibition bureau was moved from the treasury into the justice department several years ago. Dierks was later reinstated under the Woodcock régime, but his former record remained in the treasury.

The record, Mr. Woodcock said, was not investigated at the time of Dierks' reinstatement, because the civil service had presumably done so before recommending him for reappointment.

Woodcock said he had no fault to find with Prohibition Administrator Vivian, Dierks' chief, who, it is now alleged, did not know Dierks' previous record.

Barred as Insurance Agent.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Henry Dierks, dry slayer, lost his state insurance agent's license in 1926 on the grounds that he misappropriated premiums he collected and falsified applications, records of the state insurance commissioner reveal.

Federal officials in charge of the defense of Dierks, whose murder case was transferred from the state court to the United States District court, said the suspension of Dierks would not affect the legal status of the case.

"My orders are to defend Dierks," United States District Attorney Ralph Carr said.

ORDERS INQUIRY ON N. DAKOTA'S CLAIM ON CITY

City Controller Szymczak yesterday ordered an investigation of the claim of the state of North Dakota for $8,884 in payment for flour purchased by the city under the previous administration. The purchase was made through C. B. Munday & Co., and $1,000 of the bill was paid to an assignee of that company by Charles S. Peterson, controller at the close of the last administration.

Munday, who served a term in Joliet penitentiary as a result of the Lorimer bank failures in 1914, is now under indictment on charges of embezzling $20,000. The charges arose out of Munday's conduct of his Chicago agency of the State Mill and Elevator company of Grand Forks, N. D., a state owned company.

As Chicago representative, Munday, according to reported testimony before the grand jury, received 25 cents for each barrel of flour he sold. It is charged that by juggling accounts he got $20,000 more than his commissions.

Attorneys for North Dakota have served notice on the city that they claim the $7,884 the city owes Munday, on the ground that Munday never owned the flour, and claim also the $1,000 that has been paid on the account to the Congress Trust and Savings bank as assignee. Controller Szymczak will ask the state not to sue for collection until the investigation has been finished.

HOODLUMS BEAT MERCHANT; TELLS ROW WITH UNION

Dues Raised; He Refused to Sell.

Martin P. Murphy, president of the Advance Linen and Towel Supply company at 2516 Armitage avenue, was severely beaten yesterday morning by two hoodlums who attacked him at Roscoe street and Clifton avenue.

His nose was broken and physicians took twelve stitches in his scalp. After the injuries had been attended he went to the detective bureau and told Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker his story.

"I have been in business for three years," Murphy said. "Until three months ago my four truck drivers all belonged to the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union, of which George Bondell is president. I was a member of the Chicago Linen Supply association. Frank Hartless is president of that one, but Murray Humphreys, who used to be—and maybe is yet—a Capone hoodlum, is the real boss.

"The association raised the dues about 100 per cent when Humphreys came in and not long ago they gave him a 16 cylinder car. I refused to kick in $100 for the car.

"A little while ago I was told to call on Attorney Morris Kaplan in the Metropolitan building. He told me and so did his brother, William, business agent for the drivers' union, that I was through and that they'd give me $1,200 for my business. I won't sell and I'll fight this thing out. There are not enough bad men in Chicago to make me quit. They won't let my drivers pay their union dues, but they are sticking with me."

ALDERMEN HEAR GROUPS FAVORING FUNDING OF TAX

Plans for Big Bond Issue Under Fire.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The advocates of the funding of the [illegible] taxes, except the state's part—which followed by the Chicago Real Estate board—had their inning yesterday before the city council finance committee. The criticism, in commonplace of questions, of this plan was almost [illegible] on the aldermen inflicted on Monday upon the installment tax funding plan of the governor's revenue commission.

The first speaker was Peter Foote, [illegible] operator representing the taxpayers' Civic forum. He said:

"In our program we have obtained [illegible] of approximately 37,000 property owners in the last four years and a half.

Tells His Program.

"Our plan is:

"First: Fund the 1930 taxes with a three year bond issue.

"Second: Limit taxes on real estate to 1 per cent of the value.

"Third: Cut governmental costs one-third at least.

"Fourth: Retire all office holders [illegible] our political bosses rather than [illegible] constituents."

Cutting governmental expenses one-third was the policy which received the strongest opposition. Aldermen Joe Nelson, Toman, Jackson and Lyle said it could not be done.

Says It Is Private Business.

"It has been done in every private business," replied Mr. Foote. "Taxes are too high. The people cannot pay, the 1931 taxes cannot be collected. I have ten children and seven of them are in school. If it is necessary to cut expenses, close the schools, lay off some policemen and firemen."

"You don't represent one-thousandth part of one per cent of your [illegible] supporters," said Ald. Nelson, in advocating the closing of the schools. "What would you have the children do?"

"Let them learn to sew on buttons and other sensible things at home for a while," replied Mr. Foote. "The trouble is that you do not know the value of the property owners. You [illegible] your salary, and haven't been [illegible]. We are NOT getting so much [illegible] the police. In my neighborhood [illegible] reports four burglaries and [illegible] in the last four days."

Guste Hamilton, another real estate [illegible], said that the taxes on his [illegible] had been jumped from $39 a [illegible] to $69.

"I have two children in school," he said, "and taxes must come down. Why do they [illegible] schools and pay [illegible] and firemen?"

"Will you also turn off the street [illegible]?" asked Ald. Jackson.

"Certainly," replied Hamilton. "It will not take more than a few days [illegible] people became aroused so [illegible] tax question would be settled [illegible]."

Advocates Big Bond Issue.

Thomas D. Collins, another who said he had been in the real estate business all his life, advocated a bond issue of about $250,000,000 to "lift" the [illegible] debts. He would exchange [illegible] bonds for tax anticipation warrants and issue more bonds upon which to operate the city for a year. He insisted that the banks would exchange tax warrants paying 6 per cent interest for bonds paying 4. Ald. Hoden and Ald. Arvey saw no way to get the banks to make the exchange.

Louis T. Orr, representing the Chicago Real Estate board, talked at length on its funding plan.

"But where could the bonds be sold?" asked Ald. Mason.

"We have it on the highest authority that the bonds could be sold after [illegible] upon by the state Supreme court."

Says Bonds Would Sell.

A little later Mark Levy, president of the real estate board, made a like statement. Pressed for the authority, Mr. Levy said:

"President Melvin Traylor of the First National bank said to me, 'Of course, the bonds could be sold after [illegible] approved by the state Supreme court.'"

"That is exactly the opposite of [illegible] said to us at our conference," said Ald. Waller. "He gave it as his opinion to us that the bonds could not be sold. Isn't that right, Mr. Peterson?"

"He told us the bonds could not be sold," replied the deputy controller. A representative of the governor's revenue commission privately said that Ald. Waller and Deputy Controller Petterson correctly represented the opinion of Mr. Traylor. On the motion of Ald. Thomas the committee voted to invite Mr. Traylor to appear Friday.

Can't Sell Warrants Now.

"We haven't cash because we are unable to sell tax anticipation warrants," said Ald. Hodes. "Why can't they be sold?"

"Because the banks are afraid—and they are justly afraid—that the 1930 or 1930 tax levy will be declared illegal," replied Mr. Levy. "Personal property has escaped its just share of taxes for years. Hayden Bell, county tax attorney, has said that there has not been a valid tax assessment in 25 years. So the banks have [illegible] reasons for refusal to buy tax anticipation warrants. They also have [illegible] additional reason for declining the [illegible] tax warrants. They have not been validated by the legislature in the way the banks desire."

Calls Assessment Illegal.

Alex Lonquist, real estate operator, told the aldermen that the 1929 assessment "is clearly illegal and unconstitutional" because of the [illegible] of personal property from the tax rolls. He urged that the legislature "put teeth" in the personal property tax assessment laws. After [illegible] the real estate board's plan of funding, Mr. Lonquist said:

"It would be deplorable if this committee should indorse the impracticable scheme of the governor's commission."

The council finance committee will resume its consideration of the tax [illegible] before the general assembly next Friday. Chairman Clark of the committee advised the aldermen [illegible] yesterday that it is dangerous to express a hasty or ill considered opinion of the pending bills.

ASKS PURCHASE OF $25,000,000 SCHOOL WARRANTS BY STATE

A new plan to raise money to pay the school employes their back salaries was announced by State Representative Thomas J. O'Grady at a meeting of the Chicago High School Teachers' association at Fullerton hall last night.

The plan is to present a bill before the special session of the legislature asking the state to purchase $25,000,000 worth of 1931 educational fund warrants from the school board with money the state now has in its gasoline tax fund.

The teachers' association voted to have its attorney, Wiley W. Mills, draft such a bill. Representative O'Grady said he would present it to the legislature on Tuesday and would ask that it be included in the special call. If this cannot be done, he said, he will ask the governor to include it in a second call which might be made immediately.

"The state has approximately $30,000,000 in its gas tax fund that it will not use before July 1," he said.

PREDICT CAPONE WILL BE IN JAIL MOST OF WINTER

Al Capone, under an eleven year sentence for income tax violation, apparently intends to spend most of the winter in the county jail.

This was indicated yesterday when his lawyer, Michael Ahern, appeared before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and was granted an extension until Dec. 15 to file a printed record of the trial. Under rules of the court an additional five days from the date set is allowed for the actual printing. Following that the defense has 15 days to file the formal appeal and a similar period is allowed for the government to reply.

Generally such appeals and replies are followed by additional replies from both sides. It was predicted in the federal building yesterday that the appeal might not be argued before the middle of February, with a decision improbable before March. In the meantime, Capone will remain in jail and district attorney's aids said yesterday they were not particular how long the appeal requires, for the time involved will be Capone's own. He will not get credit for it if the sentence is upheld.

POLICE EXPERT HIRED BY CITY FOR 18 MONTHS

A contract employing Bruce Smith, New York police expert, for the reorganization of the police department was signed yesterday by Commissioner of Police Allman. The contract does not expire, except on thirty days' notice by either party, until March, 1933, revealing that Smith may be kept on the reorganization job for a year and one-half.

The services of Smith and his assistants, the contract shows, will cost the city $27,850. For the year ending Oct. 1, 1932, the setup is as follows: Director [part time at $50 a day], $5,000; two assistants, full time, one at $5,000 and one at $3,600; two special assistants, part time, $4,000; traveling and living expenses, $2,500, and stenographic service, $1,000.

For the half year period from Oct. 1, 1932, to March 1, 1933, only two men will be engaged. They will be the director, Smith, and one assistant.

BEATRICE KIRK SUED FOR PRICE OF RIDING HORSE

Miss Beatrice Kirk, 19 years old, debutante daughter of Walter R. Kirk, 229 Lake Shore drive, was named defendant in the praecipe of a suit for $2,000 filed yesterday in the Circuit court at Waukegan by Herbert Goldberg, a Kenosha horse dealer.

Former Judge Claire C. Edwards, Goldberg's attorney, asserted that Miss Kirk bought a horse from his client for which she promised to pay $2,000, rode it for three weeks in the Onwentsia hunt at Milburn, and then sought to return the animal with the plea that her father would not give her the money to pay for it.

Goldberg, Attorney Edwards said, wants the $2,000 and not the horse.

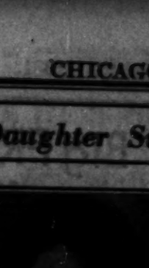
JARECKI SEEKS MORE FACTS ON BANK TAX CUT

Issue of Attack on Assessment.

County Judge Jarecki yesterday ordered further information brought before him regarding a $20,000,000 reduction in valuation granted the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company on its 1929 personal property assessment after he was informed that the board of review had no written records of the hearing at which the reduction was granted.



JUDGE JARECKI. [Mallett Photo.]

The matter came up in connection with the suit of Mrs. Lillian Clear of Oak Park and some 2,000 other taxpayers to have the 1928 and 1929 assessments declared invalid on the grounds that a vast amount of personal property escaped taxation, thus increasing the tax burden on real estate.

Barrett Grants Reduction.

Andrew W. Gatenbey, chief clerk for the board of review, presented its records, showing that the assessed personal property valuation against the bank, placed at $56,250,000 by the board of assessors, had been cut to $35,650,000 by the board of review. The reduction, Mr. Gatenbey said, was granted by Reviewer Charles V. Barrett.

"Where are the records of his hearing?" Judge Jarecki asked.

"There are no other records," Gatenbey replied. "The bank filed a complaint against the assessors' assessment, but there was no public hearing. Representatives presented a number of records to Mr. Barrett before he granted the reduction, but they were not kept on file with the board."

Attorney Morris Schaeffer, representing the complainants in the tax hearing, asked that Reviewers Barrett and Edward R. Litsinger be subpoenaed, and Judge Jarecki agreed that he would do that, probably next week. Mr. Barrett is in California at present, it was said.

Demands Trust Records.

Judge Jarecki also ordered that State Auditor Oscar Nelson appear Monday and that his office present photostatic copies of the reports of trust estates made annually by banks acting as trustees. Attorneys for the banks objected to this, as did Assistant Attorney General William Clausen, representing the auditor. The court had indicated previously that he would demand the records.

The records are sought in an effort to prove that taxing officials failed to avail themselves of the auditor's records and failed to assess the trust estates at their full value. Clausen and the bank attorneys contended that the reports were privileged communications and not available for public inspection.

"Is the state auditor running a private business?" Judge Jarecki asked. "Is a situation to arise that one department of the government cannot get the records of another department?"

POLICE OFFICER ROBBED OF HIS GUN BY BANDITS

Police Sergt. Michael Rice, 5324 West Van Buren street, was robbed of his revolver by four armed men, one of whom held a handkerchief to his face, in a soft drink parlor at 718 North Albany avenue last evening. The bandits took $20 from Mrs. Susan Capciak, the owner.

Sergt. Rice was taken by surprise as the bandits entered with revolvers drawn. He offered no resistance while the man who held the handkerchief to his face searched him. Rice was off duty and in civilian clothing. The robber in turn was surprised when he found Rice's star and revolver.

"O, a copper," he exclaimed. "Well, I guess we can use your revolver as well as you can."

Award Paving Contract for Route to Palos Park

The state highway department at Springfield yesterday awarded the contract for 6.49 miles of paving on route 53 between Palos Park and Kedzie avenue, west of Blue Island. The award was made to the Chicago Heights Coal company for $357,775. The project was included in contracts awarded for 30.28 miles of pavement, which will cost $240,000.

In No Danger

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Ruth Hurley, 8 year old daughter of Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, was in Walter Reed hospital today after accidentally swallowing a Red Cross button.

Physicians at the hospital stated the child was in no danger, as the pin had not lodged in her throat and was causing no damage to the lining of her stomach as it passed through. She is expected to be able to leave the hospital within the next 48 hours.

Secretary and Mrs. Hurley, who were in New York when the accident occurred, are understood to be on their way to Washington, despite assurances that Ruth is in no danger.

According to attaches at the hospital, the child swallowed the button yesterday while at play in the Hurley home. She was taken to the government institution immediately after the accident was discovered.

Bandits Grab Money from Messenger, Escape in Car

Three bandits late yesterday robbed Harold Goldberg, 23 years old, of 1502 East 72d street, a messenger, of $940 in cash and $3,925 in checks. Goldberg, employed by the Leo J. Wilk Wholesale Cigar company, 1401 South Halsted street, was walking to a neighborhood bank with David Wilk, a brother of his employer, when the robbers drove alongside them in an automobile at Halsted and Barber streets. Two jumped out, snatched the money and checks from Goldberg, and escaped in the waiting car.

THREE SEIZED IN COUNTERFEIT MONEY 'FACTORY'

U. S. Agents End Dreams of Sudden Wealth.

Three men were sleeping soundly yesterday morning in a flat at 949 Argyle street when two policemen and a squad of United States secret service agents broke in and rudely awakened them from their almost realized dream of wealth.

Their flat, in addition to serving as living quarters, was also a printing plant where the trio had been industriously engaged in the manufacture of a fine grade of $5 bills. The secret service men found 400 of them ready for spending and 1,500 more printed on one side.

Names of Three Seized.

Those arrested were Willis Nelson, 23 years old; George Wilson, 25 years old, and Henry La Clair, 22 years old.

According to Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan of the secret service, the completed bills were the finest counterfeits that have been printed in Chicago in five years. None of them had been passed, however, the agents having learned of their purchase of the special paper for the printing a few days ago and allowed the makers only time enough to finish their work.

Behind Sliding Panel.

Sergts. George Meinhart and John Steffen of the Humboldt police, who took part in the raid, found the bills and the printing equipment hidden behind a sliding panel in the mantel of the flat's living room. Besides a press there were seven copper plates, twenty negatives from which plates could be made, eight pounds of vari-colored inks and a quantity of chemicals.

In the flat were found a pistol, a blackjack and a map of the home of E. J. Carruthers, 707 Junior terrace. The police believe that Wilson, who admitted owning the weapons, and his companions had plotted to kidnap Carruthers, theatrical booking agent and manager last year of the Exposition park race track at Aurora, or to break into his home.

Carruthers is now on a trip to Toronto and New York.

EVANSTON OPENS SECOND BIDS ON STREET LIGHTS

Bids for Evanston's authorized ornamental lighting system were opened last night by the board of local improvements in the suburb. Nine bids in all were received, the lowest being that of the Donovan Construction company of St. Paul. Fur metal posts the Donovan concern offered to do the work at a cost of $1,007,109. For concrete posts the figure was $1,025,721.

This group of offers was the second received by Evanston officials, the first having been thrown out a month ago because of the invalidation of the state wage scale statute, on which the bids were partly figured. Should the newest offers be unsatisfactory, bids may be readvertised, it was said.

THORNE VICTOR IN COURT FIGHT ON $5,000 CHECK

Drinking Habits Are Told by Defense.

Gordon C. Thorne, heir of the millions his father amassed as a co-founder of Montgomery Ward & Co., was absolved by a Municipal court jury yesterday from paying a $5,000 check he gave William K. Ziegfeld in a Montmartre cabaret in Paris five years ago.

Suit for collection of the check, on which the 38 year old Thorne had stopped payment at the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company, was brought by Julius M. Thomas, an American lawyer practicing in Paris. Ziegfeld, a brother of the Follies producer, Florenz Ziegfeld, had tendered the check to Thomas for legal services prior to Ziegfeld's death in 1927.

Thorne Tells of Drinking.

In returning a verdict for Thorne, the jurymen considered among other things the defendant's deposition, that in a normal evening he could imbibe thirty drinks of champagne, cocktails and assorted liqueurs without losing his equilibrium. Attorney Rupert Barry, representing the Paris lawyer, had told the jury that if Thorne was sober when he issued the check they must hold him responsible for payment under the law.

What impressed them more, the jurymen said, was the plaintiff's failure to prove that Thorne had received something of tangible value in exchange for the check. In his instructions the presiding judge, William E. Helander, declared the check was invalid if no real consideration were involved, a legal point on which Thorne's lawyer, George B. Fitzmaurice, dwelt heavily in his closing arguments.

Reads from Deposition.

Fitzmaurice read from a sworn statement of his client, who did not attend the trial, but made a deposition at his present home in Beverly Hills, Cal.

MR. THORNE—Ziegfeld and I were out drinking all day and most of the night. He was trying to interest me in his promotion of a Ziegfeld roof garden. He claimed he could safely use his brother's name and cash in on it. He talked incessantly and I finally gave him the check to hush him up.

PLAINTIFF'S LAWYER — You know Mr. Ziegfeld very well, didn't you?

MR. THORNE—Not until I left him at the pier. I was told he was likable.

Plan to Stop Payment.

LAWYER—You knew what you were doing when you signed the check? You have signed many checks, haven't you?

MR. THORNE—I've signed too many. I predated that one two weeks. I had a dim idea I would stop payment if Ziegfeld tried to cash it.

The jury deliberated thirty minutes. Attorney Barry made a motion for a new trial and Judge Helander said he would hear arguments on Nov. 30.

BAIN'S KINSMEN EVADE QUIZ BY GRAND JURORS

Continue Battle to Free Banker's Son.

John H. Bain, eldest son of John Bain, president of the Bain chain of twelve banks which closed last June 9, and W. Merle Fisher, Bain's son-in-law, appeared yesterday afternoon before the grand jury investigating the Bain bank transactions. Both refused to sign immunity waivers and the jurors decided not to question them.

CARL HORNUNG.

Carl Hornung, one of the directors of the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, a Bain institution, was a witness before the jury. Hornung refused to sign an immunity waiver on Thursday, as did other directors. Yesterday he told the jurors that he had been poorly advised. He signed the waiver and gave evidence.

Hornung testified, it was reported, that a $25,000 note found in the bank records was merely signed by him at the request of the Bains in order that it might be listed as an asset. He never received any money for the note, he declared.

Questioned on Trusts.

Albert Jennings, acting trust officer at the West Englewood bank when it closed, was questioned concerning the methods of handling trusts in the bank.

Jennings was asked many questions about Trust No. 687 in the bank. It was this trust from which John Bain was reported to have taken properties worth $175,000, replacing them with worthless "gold notes." Evidence before Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg has shown that second mortgages were sold as first mortgages out of the trust to customers of the bank.

John Everitt of Western Springs, another West Englewood bank director, was also questioned. He had obtained no loan from the bank and was before the grand jury only a few minutes.

Seek to Free Young Bain.

Meanwhile, the attempts to free Robert A. Bain from the county jail were continued by his lawyers. Young Bain, another son of the bank president, was sentenced by Judge Feinberg to serve 10 days last Wednesday for contempt of court. He was accused of making evasive answers to the court.

Attorney H. W. Lippincott prepared a bill of exceptions to Judge Feinberg's order which he asked the judge to sign in order that he might appeal to the Appellate court for a writ of error. With the issuance of such a writ, young Bain could be released on bail pending a hearing of the appeal.

Judge Feinberg said he would study the bill of exceptions and give a decision later on the request to sign it. Young Bain spent his third night in jail as a result and with only a half day of court today, it appeared probable that he would also spend the week-end in jail. By Monday, he will have served half of the ten day sentence.

If Judge Feinberg refuses to sign the bill of exceptions, Attorney Lippincott will seek a writ of mandamus from the Appellate court forcing Judge Feinberg to affix his signature to the document, he said.

Calls Order Invalid.

The main legal exception which Attorney Lippincott offered to the contempt order was the contention that the judge had no right to send young Bain to jail on verbal orders. The written order was not completed until after young Bain had served nearly a day in jail and this fact made the order invalid, the attorney argued.

Judge Feinberg replied that there had been no time to prepare a proper written order because of the long hearing.

Through a confusion of identities, a picture printed in an early edition of THE TRIBUNE yesterday which showed John H. Bain leaving Judge Feinberg's courtroom under guard of two highway policemen was so captioned that it appeared that John H. Bain was in custody. John H. Bain has been guarded by the police because of threats made against him. He is not in custody.

2,000 JOBLESS MARCHERS WILL ARRIVE NOV. 28

Mayor Cermak yesterday received a letter announcing that 2,000 unemployed men who are marching to Washington, D. C., would arrive in Chicago on Nov. 28. It contained a demand that the city feed them while they are in Chicago.

"They will be treated the same as every one else," the mayor said, after a conference with Commissioner of Police Allman. "If they beg they will be arrested. As far as food and shelter is concerned, we are striving to aid enough for unfortunate Chicagoans."

The letter was signed by David Mates, secretary of the national hunger march, Chicago column. The men will leave Chicago for Washington on trucks.

The idea of making the collections originated with the children. They contribute each week from their allowances, or from money they have earned."

Virtually every school in the city and suburbs has some children whose families, caught in the general depression, are financially unable to provide sufficient food to keep them in good health. The sum of the money, which is increasing rapidly, will be sent to the hungry fund of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The children are not asked for extra allowances, but are sacrificing an extra candy bar or sundae from their own lunch money. This is put aside day by day in a milk bottle."

Mrs. S. A. Pyne forwarded the proceeds from the above undertaking [$10.80 to date] and the amount was acknowledged in THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

REPORT $105,700 IN RELIEF FUND GIFTS FOR NEEDY

Campaign Total at $6,711,456.

Contributions totaling $105,700 to the joint emergency relief fund of Cook county, carrying the amount thus far raised to $6,711,456, were reported yesterday.

The largest pledges were those of Montgomery Ward & Co. and employés, $20,000, and the employés of Hart Schaffner & Marx, $15,000. The Beatrice Creamery company donated $6,500, employés of the Chicago Film Board of Trade, $4,870, and employés of J. Walter Thompson company, $4,000.

Other subscribers were employés of units of Union Carbide and Carbon corporation, $3,630; Jackson Brothers Boesel company, $3,000; Chicago Cold Storage Warehouse and employés, $2,763; American Furniture Mart Building corporation, $1,000; employés of Chicago Mail Order company, $3,750; employés of Vacuum Oil company, $1,340; employés of Gunthorp-Warren Printing company, $1,000; employés of Pillsbury Flour company, $1,800; Chicago Transfer and Clearing company, $6,000, and employés of Vapor Car Heating company, $1,353; Ætna Life Insurance company and employés, $2,500.

No Speakeasy Collections.

New York may collect its relief funds in speakeasies, but not Chicago. This city will get its funds by solicitation in legal channels.

Not that speakeasy money will be refused if it is contributed, according to Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the fund.

"No attempt will be made to collect money for this fund in Chicago speakeasies," he said, "but if any is so collected and turned in there will be no attempt to return it. That would be impossible. We shall consider such donors as anonymous."

Other members of the group active in raising the fund said that conditions were different here and in New York; that speakeasies ran openly there, while the local ones violate a state as well as the national law and are so concealed that "it is doubtful if many of the people associated with the emergency fund know where one can be found."

Plan Restaurant Drive.

Owners of 10,000 restaurants in Chicago, who employ about 150,000 persons, will be appealed to for donations to the relief fund by a committee formed yesterday afternoon at a meeting in the Congress hotel, according to Leo Oppenheimer, the chairman. The 10,000 restaurant owners will be asked to urge their employés to give 50 cents each out of one month's salary.

The division has a goal of $60,000. Charles F. Raach, secretary of the fund division, will be in charge of collections. His offices are at 10 South La Salle street.

Kiwanis Clubs Plan Work.

Tentative plans for nationwide activity of Kiwanis clubs in unemployment relief and traffic safety for the coming year were offered yesterday by Guy Guernsey of Chicago, chairman of the national committee on public affairs, at the annual meeting of the board of trustees of the international organization meeting in the Medinah Athletic club.

All clubs were urged by Mr. Guernsey to help raise the necessary relief funds in their local communities to help care for the unemployed.

Burglars Loot Summer Home Near Libertyville

Burglars broke into the summer home of James E. Nielsen, Chicago millworks manufacturer, near Libertyville, probably early yesterday, and stole oriental rugs, linens, clothes, and other articles valued at approximately $5,000. The home is located on Buckley road, one-half mile northeast of Libertyville. Deputy Sheriffs Geno Palmeri and John De Smidt said the burglars evidently used gloves for no fingerprints were found. Mr. Nielsen lives in River Forest.

Woman Ordered Held.

Mrs. Edith Crabtree, 6632 Octavia avenue, was ordered held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury yesterday.

The inquest was into the death of Mrs. Mary Pettibone, 70 years old, 512 Central avenue, Wilmette, wife of Police Magistrate E. A. Pettibone, who was killed on Oct. 22. The automobile in which Mrs. Pettibone was riding collided with the sedan driven by Mrs. Crabtree at route No. 58 and Elmhurst road. Witnesses yesterday said that Mrs. Crabtree failed to observe a stop sign.

Santa Fé, N. M., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Garth Hyatt, a Chicago newspaper man for several years, was killed in an automobile accident ten miles from Santa Fé tonight. Hyatt, blinded by the lights of an approaching car, pulled to the side of the road, and struck a soft shoulder. The car turned over three times, rolling down an embankment. Hyatt was spending a vacation in the southwest. He was a veteran of the world war.

Steal Four Wheels from Auto Parked in Street

Lloyd L. Dilworth parked his automobile in front of his home at 4432 Greenwood avenue last night and went in for dinner. An hour later he started out to take a drive. Instead of taking it, however, he went back to the house and called the Hyde Park police, to whom he reported that all four of his car's wheels had been stolen and that the rest of the machine was resting on the axles.

PETITION HOOVER TO PARDON HOME BREWING JANITOR

Raid on Flat Illegal, President Told.

Representatives of foreign-American groups yesterday addressed a petition to President Herbert Hoover asking a pardon for Boleslaw Lidikewics, the Lithuanian janitor who was sentenced to 60 days' imprisonment for making beer for his own use in his basement. The petition stresses the fact no search warrant had been obtained and that the invasion of Lidikewics' home was a violation of the constitution.

It was in an effort to save Lidikewics from a jail sentence that Charles L. Wiley, business man and Lithuanian, was charged with contempt and now faces indictment. Flaherty and Lidikewics were adopted by the Cook county council of the American Legion condemning the procedure against Wiley, and other powerful organizations are aiding him.

A Question of Custom.

The signers of the petition to President Hoover said they believed the case of Lidikewicz was one involving more than the imprisonment of an individual. They were impelled to do something in his behalf, they said, because, similar to themselves, he had old country customs and traditions of him.

The petitioners are: Louis A. Ruzicka, general counsel of the Polish National alliance; Joseph M. Anzelmo, chairman of the Bridgeport Lithuanian club and a son of the builder of St. George's Lithuanian church at Auburn street and Auburn avenue; George Cerny, chairman of the board of trustees American Czecho-Slovak League and also commander of post No. 2 of the American Legion; and Frank Klepal, secretary of the American National Alliance of Czecho-Slovaks, president of the American Czecho-Slovak Legion.

"We respectfully petition your excellency," says the petition to President Hoover, "to consider the case of Boleslaw Lidikewicz, convicted and sentenced by Judge John P. Barnes of the District court of the United States at Chicago, for violation of the Volstead act, with a view of suggesting pardon for Lidikewicz.

"We direct your attention, President, to the following facts:

"Mr. Lidikewicz lived at 3901 Kimball avenue, Chicago. He is 60 years old, was born in Lithuania, is a naturalized American citizen, has one son, Albert, 22 years of age, who is a law student. His wife died in Lithuania.

Janitor's Home Is Raided.

"On April 10, 1931, two government prohibition agents and two city police men arrested Lidikewics and confiscated two one-half barrels of home made beer. They had no search warrant and they justified their entry into his home by saying they knocked at the door and some one said, 'Come in.' Mr. Lidikewicz said they found him while he was digging in his back yard and that while two officers guarded him the others went into his basement and searched it.

"On Nov. 1 of this year Mr. Lidikewicz received notice that his case would come up for trial Nov. 4, and he was asked to state whether he would plead guilty or not guilty. He consulted a friend and tenant of the building, Mr. Charles L. Wiley, owner of a drapery business in the furniture mart of Chicago.

"Mr. Wiley said that inasmuch as Lidikewicz had no money with which to employ a lawyer, and inasmuch as he had only made home brew for his own consumption it would probably be advisable to plead guilty and the court would probably only impose a small fine.

Language Is a Handicap.

"Mr. Lidikewicz does not speak or understand English very well. He accepted the advice of Mr. Wiley and upon going to court met an attorney who was also a Lithuanian. This attorney was not retained, but was engaged to act as a friend in court.

"The attorney advised Judge Barnes that the defendant wished to plead guilty. Testimony was given concerning the seizure of two one-half barrels of beer in the basement and the agents said that from taste it was four per cent beer. No chemical analysis had been made.

"Before the court pronounced sentence Mr. Wiley addressed the court as follows:

"'I'm a bit to blame for this man's plight. He used to make a little beer for his own use. I was planning a smoker for a few of my friends of the American Legion and asked him to make some for me as a personal favor. There's no question of profit or profit involved here. He does not sell beer. He has refused to sell it to me and to my neighbors. Could the court grant him leniency.'

Held As Accessory.

"Thereupon Assistant District Attorney Walter E. Wiles moved that Mr. Wiley be held as an accessory and Wiley was held in $1,000 bond. He was later released when the Commander of Mandle post of the American Legion signed his bond.

"The Legion and other organizations interested themselves in behalf of Mr. Wiley. No organization undertook to aid Mr. Lidikewicz." Attorney Stephen A. Day, son of a former justice of the United States Supreme court, did volunteer his services as

Raid on Flat Illegal, President Told.

Representatives of foreign born societies groups yesterday addressed a petition to President Herbert Hoover asking a pardon for Boleslaw Lidikewicz, the Lithuanian janitor who was sentenced to 60 days' imprisonment for making beer for his own use in his basement. The petition stressed the fact no search warrant had been issued and that the invasion of Lidikewicz' home was a violation of the constitution.

It was in an effort to save Lidikewicz from a jail sentence that Charles L. Wiley, business man and Legionnaire, was charged with conspiracy and new bona indictment. Resolutions were adopted by the Cook county council of the American Legion condemning the procedure against Wiley, and other powerful organizations are aiding him.

The signers of the petition to President Hoover said they believed the case of Lidikewicz was one involving more than the imprisonment of an individual. They were impelled to do something in his behalf, they said, because similar to themselves, he has many customs and traditions of his native land.

The petitioners are: Louis A. Pindelski, general counsel of the Polish national alliance; Joseph M. Asukas, adjutant of the Bridgeport Lithuanian club and a son of the builder of St. George's Lithuanian church at 32d street and Auburn avenue; George W. Lang, chairman of the board of trustees American Czecho-Slovak Legion and also commander of post No. 96 of the American Legion; and Frank Hagel, secretary of the American National Alliance of Czecho-Slovaks and assistant of the American Czecho-Slovak Legion.

"We reverently petition your excellency," says the petition to President Hoover, "to consider the case of Boleslaw Lidikewicz, convicted and sentenced by Judge John P. Barnes of the District court of the United States at Chicago, for violation of the Volstead act, with a view of suggesting a pardon for Lidikewicz.

"We direct your attention, Mr. President, to the following facts:

"Mr. Lidikewicz lived at 2901 North Halsted avenue, Chicago. He is 49 years old, was born in Lithuania, and is a naturalized American citizen. He has one son, Albert, 23 years of age, who is a law student. His wife is ill in a hospital.

Janitor's House Is Raided.

"On April 10, 1931, two government prohibition agents and two city policemen visited Lidikewicz and confiscated two one-half barrels of home brew. They had no search warrant and they justified their entry into his home by saying they knocked at the door and some one said, 'Come in.' Mr. Lidikewicz said they seized him while he was digging in his back yard and that while two officers held him the others went into his basement and confiscated it.

"On Nov. 1 of this year Mr. Lidikewicz received notice that his case would come up for trial Nov. 4 and he was asked to state whether he would plead guilty or not guilty. He consulted a friend and tenant of his building, Mr. Charles L. Wiley, owner of a drapery business in the Furniture mart of Chicago.

"Mr. Wiley said that inasmuch as Lidikewicz had no money with which to employ a lawyer, and inasmuch as he had only made home brew for his own consumption it would probably be advisable to plead guilty and the court would probably only impose a small fine.

Language Is a Handicap.

"Mr. Lidikewicz does not speak or understand English very well. He accepted the advice of Mr. Wiley and when going to court met an attorney who was also a Lithuanian. This attorney was not retained, but volunteered to act as a friend in court.

"The attorney advised Judge Barnes that the defendant wished to plead guilty. Testimony was given concerning the seizure of two one-half barrels of beer in the basement and he openly said that from taste it was a five per cent beer. No chemical analysis had been made.

"Before the court pronounced sentence Mr. Wiley addressed the court as follows:

"'I'm a bit to blame for this man's plight. He used to make a little beer for his own use. I was planning a dinner for a few of my friends of the American Legion and asked him to make some for me as a personal favor. There's no question of sale or profit involved here. He doesn't sell beer. He has refused to sell it to me and to my neighbors. Couldn't the court grant him leniency.'

Held As Accessory.

"Thereupon Assistant District Attorney Walter E. Wiles moved that Mr. Wiley be held as an accessory and Wiley was held in $1,000 bonds. He was later released when the commander of Mandle post of the American Legion signed his bond.

"The Legion and other organizations interested themselves in behalf of Mr. Wiley. No organization undertook to aid Mr. Lidikewicz. Attorney Stephen A. Day, son of a former justice of the United States Supreme court, did volunteer his services as an attorney for Mr. Lidikewicz. The judge denied the petition to grant a new trial and Mr. Lidikewicz was returned to the county jail of Cook county where he now is.

"Attorney Day has said that an appeal might take more time for action than the sixty days which Mr. Lidikewicz must serve.

Raid Violates Basic Law.

"In petitioning your excellency to pardon Lidikewicz we justify our request upon the basis that there was no justification of a violation of the constitution of these United States by an unlawful entry of the Lidikewicz home for the purpose of seeking evidence of a violation of the Volstead act.

"This violation of our constitution is worthy of condemnation and we trust that you, as President of the United States, will not condone an unlawful invasion of the sacred precincts of a citizen's 'castle' to gather evidence with a view to conviction under said Volstead act. This procedure of government agents is not conducive of respect of our federal laws which has brought about in a large measure a disrespect for law and order to a great degree.

"The undersigned feel that in petitioning your excellency for a pardon they are performing their duty as citizens and respectfully trust that your excellency will see fit to grant the above request."

They ask that any reply be made to the office of Mr. Pindelski, who is an attorney, at 1689 West Division street.

Walter Sidler, a member of the Medinah Athletic and Hamilton clubs, was sent to join the alimony club in the county jail by Judge Joseph Sabath, in the Superior court yesterday. Attorney Emmet F. Byrne told the judge that Sidler owed Mrs. Grayce S. Sidler, 4445 Ellis avenue, $2,609 in back payments on the alimony ordered when she divorced him in April, 1928. Sidler, a sports promoter, formerly connected with professional hockey and football ventures, has remarried and lives at 1490 Lake Shore drive.

BRITISH TO SEND CRACK REGIMENT TO FIGHT INDIANS

Riots Spread; Call Welsh Guards for Duty.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The spread of riots and unrest in northern India has saved the Welsh Guards, a crack British regiment, from extinction. Instead of being disbanded, contemplated under Great Britain's economy drive, the regiment will be rushed to India to help put down new riots and revolts.

The pay of the Welsh guardsmen is higher than that of corresponding ranks of infantry, but the cost of their upkeep, while in India will be assessed against the Indians. The sending of the guardsmen such a distance from London for garrison duty has set a precedent in British military movements.

The unrest in northern India, which began with a Moslem revolt against Sir Hari Singh, the maharajah of Kashmir and the "Mr. A" of a London blackmail scandal several years ago, has spread to the Punjab. Troops are being rushed from southern India to the Punjab, where the jails are filled with Kashmir rebels, who, it is reported, are dying from a cholera epidemic, and their countrymen are heralding their plight as martyrs.

The revolt in Kashmir has become so serious that the British government is reported to be considering taking over the state until peace has been restored. British troops are already on the scene and are helping Sir Hari fight the Moslems.

Afridi tribesmen, who have been making sporadic raids against the military forces, have been beaten off by airplanes and tanks, but the sorties are continuing.

Prime Minister MacDonald today told a hasty lapel on the rules controlling the diehard Tory opposition to his policy on India, with a stern demand that Stanley Baldwin, leader of the party, keep his followers to the promise the Conservatives made to abide by the late Labor government's commitments.

Mr. Baldwin, as head of the party, pledged himself "to get behind" the prime minister on the Indian question when the first national government was formed. Other parties supporting the government also pledged their assistance.

The chief spokesman for adopting a firm hand in India arose in the house of commons this afternoon. It was fiery Winston Churchill. He warned that a grave danger was hidden in the statute of Westminster, which sweeps away the theoretical supremacy of the British parliament over those of the dominions as embodied in agreements reached at the imperial conference under which the dominions obtained virtual independence. The bill was passed on its second reading without a division today.

"I am informed on good technical authority," Mr. Churchill said, "that the bill confers on the Irish Free State the right to abolish the Irish treaty at any time they see fit. It will be open to the dail to repudiate the oath of allegiance, and also to destroy the proportion which the Irish army bears to the Irish population."

CAROL PATCHES QUARREL WITH ELOPING PRINCE

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A truce between King Carol of Rumania and his brother, Prince Nicholas, in regard to the latter's marriage to a commoner was reliably reported from Bucharest tonight. The mediator was identified as Prince Friedrich Hohenzollern, brother of the late King Ferdinand and uncle of the two men.

King Carol was said to have sent a message by Prince Friedrich saying that he did not object to Prince Nicholas maintaining friendly relations with Mme. Dalotji, his morganatic bride, but that he must not attempt to validate the marriage in a religious ceremony. Prince Nicholas agreed to the king's demands.

1 KILLED, 2 HURT IN TRAIN CRASH AT BARRINGTON

One man was killed and two others injured, one seriously, in a rear end collision of an empty passenger train and a freight train on the Chicago and North Western line just outside of Barrington early this morning.

The dead man was R. B. Hayward, a cattle raiser of Morenci, Mich. The injured are Barney Ziano, 31 years old, 223 North Hamlin avenue, and Abe Cohen, 32, of 4043 North Central Park avenue. Ziano, a fireman on the passenger train, suffered a possible fracture of the back. Cohen, a trainman on the same train, suffered lacerations.

The accident occurred when the passenger train, running between Carey and Barrington, crashed into the rear of the stock train. The caboose and two or three freight cars were telescoped. The man killed was riding in the caboose. Ziano suffered his injuries when he leaped from the cabin of the passenger locomotive.

DENIES MURDER OF WOMAN NEAR RAILWAY STATION

Vernon Royals, 16 years old, pleaded not guilty to the murder of Mrs. Agnes Lavander near the lonely Forest Glen railroad station on Feb. 17, 1930, and to the rape of Mrs. Jane Meyers near the scene of the slaying a year later, when he was arraigned yesterday. Judge Walter Stanton of the Criminal court set the trial for Jan. 11.

The parents of the youth, R. A. Royals and his wife, Elizabeth, were in court. Mrs. Royals said her son was the "black sheep" of the family. Apparently unimpressed by the court proceedings, young Royals said nothing.

Royals was arrested on Oct. 21, the day after Mrs. Meyers, 53 years old, living at 5245 Ardmore avenue, was attacked. She identified Royals. Royals, police said, confessed the attack and the slaying of Mrs. Lavander.

TOUR OF EUROPE ADDS $15,000 TO TAXPAYERS' BILL

Expense Accounts In for Prison Junket.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Last summer's junket of the Illinois legislative commission on prisons, probation, and parules cost the taxpayers of the state approximately $15,000.

All five of the senate members and three of the house members have submitted their expense accounts. All but one of these accounts have been paid. Combined with the figures for steamship transportation, they show that the average cost per member was close to $1,400, without prorating the expense of a clerk who went along and received a total of $1,866.20, some of which was general expense.

In other words each of the eight men heard from officially has been paid or will be paid an average of $200 a week for visiting Quebec, London, Amsterdam, Berlin, Dublin, Paris, and other foreign points of interest.

Members Collect Allowances.

These facts were disclosed here today by an examination of the expense accounts which have been approved by the department of finance and, with one exception, have been paid by the state treasurer. The senate members who have collected are Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling of Rockford, of the commission, Harry G. Wright of De Kalb and Arthur A. Huebsch of Brookfield, Cook county, all Republicans, and John Broderick of Chicago, a Democrat.

The house members who have collected are Gordon W. Childers of Normal and Rollo R. Robbins of Augusta, both Republicans. The account of a third Republican, Edward M. Overland of Chicago has been approved and is in process of payment. The other two of the ten members are Democrats. Michael Fahy of Toluca has not submitted an expense account, but is expected to do so.

Michael L. Igoe of Chicago, minority leader, announced in advance he would pay his own expenses and several weeks ago returned to the state treasurer the $617.50 advanced to Chairman Barr for his steamship transportation for the round trip, which was covered by one purchase for the entire commission.

Some Wives Went Along.

Nearly all the married members of the commission had their wives with them. Some took one, two, or three children. But there are no charges for millinery or children's shoes in the accounts.

The cost per member for steamship tickets for the round trip was $617.50. The total expense per member is obtained by adding that sum to the total of the account of each man shown in the following tabulation, cents being omitted:

	Fare.	Meals.	Hotel and Incidentals, taxis, etc.	Total.
Senators—
Barr	$242	$579	$457	$1,289
Sterling	216	486	113	815
Wright	285	335	187	735
Huebsch ...	213	484	227	925
Broderick ..	207	488	113	808
Representatives—
Childers ...	242	556	133	931
Robbins	271	456	100	827
Overland ...	213	491	103	809

In fairness to Chairman Barr, it was pointed out by a state employe here that his account included some items expended for the commission as a whole. They included $165 for a London stenographer, $75 for the rental of London cars, and $50 for a Berlin interpreter. But below a section covering the trip from Quebec to Joliet was an item "baggage, $50.18," and this was not believed to concern the other members, as the senator returned without them.

Sticks to $10 Rooms.

It was also noted that Senator Barr was one of the two members who charged $10 a day for his (or their) room whether it was at the Mayfair in London, the Amstel in Amsterdam, the Adlon in Berlin, the Bellevera in Dresden, the Esplanade in Prague or the George V. in Paris. The other $10 sleeper was Representative Childers. He was the secretary and went with the chairman even when the latter left the main body.

Senator Huebsch also listed himself as having borne some general commission expenses. They included $65 for "lunch given to officials" and $50 for "buses to prisons" in Quebec.

Senator Wright's expense account was the lowest of the eight, but there was comment upon the fact that he charged upon Oct. 19—and the commission returned from Europe early in September—$17.26 for a round trip between De Kalb, his home city, and Springfield. No similar charge is found in any of the other accounts.

Senator Broderick had a monopoly on one item so far as his seven associates were concerned. That read: "London to Dublin, $94." And Dublin isn't so far from London at that.

At the bottom of the state expense account forms the man submitting the bill is asked to supply this information: "Purpose of trips; specific purpose; general terms not sufficient."

The item was ignored in all the accounts.

P. S.—And not a single receipt was submitted with one of the eight expense accounts.

AGENT DIRECTING DRIVE ON ALIENS HUNTS FOR PRINCE

Murray W. Garsson, special assistant to the secretary of labor, who has been carrying on a deportation drive against illegally entered aliens in Chicago, said yesterday that he was seeking Prince Georges Matchabelli, to question him about a report that he was an agent of the cheka, the secret police of the Russian soviet government.

Prince Matchabelli, a native of the principality of Georgia in the Russian Caucasus, was formerly Georgian minister at Rome. He now conducts a perfume business in New York, but left Chicago a few days ago following a visit here.

His wife, Princess Carmi Matchabelli, came to the United States in 1923 and played the part of the nun in "The Miracle." She ended her stage appearances by filing suit for $510,170 against Morris Gest, producer of the play.

SLASHES HIS WRISTS; DIES.

Charles Huxford, 55 years old, a carpenter, died in the county hospital yesterday after slashing his wrists in his room at 2117 Ogden avenue on Thursday night.

USE LIE DETECTOR IN SEARCH FOR WOMAN'S SLAYER

The lie detector was used yesterday in an effort to solve the murder of Mrs. Louise Sulk, 62 year old widow, whose body was found at 115th street and Cicero avenue after she had been beaten to death last Tuesday night.

Those examined through the machine were Mrs. Clara Shields, 1632 Monroe street, daughter of Mrs. Sulk; Patsy Ferrino, 33 years old, alleged lover of the woman, and James Russell, a friend of Mrs. Shields. According to Dr. Leonarde Keeler of the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university, Mrs. Shields fared the worst in the test. Ferrino appeared to lie at times. Russell emerged with the best record.

Earlier Mrs. Shields and the men were held on charges of accessory before the murder, and were lodged in the county jail pending court hearing and a resumption of the inquest Dec. 2. All denied knowledge of the crime. Ferrino, in explaining a letter he wrote to Mrs. Sulk demanding money, said the original was written by Mrs. Shields and that he only copied the letter. He claimed to be illiterate. The lie detector test supported his claim, it was said.

SETTLE ISSUE OF SUPPORT FOR INJURED BOY

Arrangements for Cliff Edwards, motion picture and vaudeville performer under the name of "Ukelele Ike," to pay for the support of his son, Clifton, Jr., 12 years old, were completed yesterday before Judge Harry B. Miller in the Superior court. The boy lost both legs last summer when he fell under a railroad train in Maywood.

The boy, now a patient in the Westlake hospital at Melrose Park, had been living with his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Edwards Rhyholm, who divorced Edwards several years ago and remarried. Attorney Emanuel Goldstrich, representing Edwards, agreed yesterday to an amendment to Mrs. Rhyholm's divorce decree under which Edwards agrees to pay $1,000 in back payments for support of the boy, hospital bills totaling $1,200, and $200 a month henceforth.

LINDBERGH FLIES HUGE SHIP FROM MIAMI TO CUBA

33 Passengers Aboard; Jamaica Next Stop.

CIENFUEGOS, Cuba, Nov. 20.—(AP)—[By Pan-American Airways Radio to Miami.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh piloted a new queen of the skies on her maiden commercial voyage today into Latin America, but after a late arrival here decided to remain overnight instead of proceeding to Kingston, Jamaica, as scheduled.

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH.

Col. Lindbergh, flying the giant American Clipper, did not wish to risk a night landing at Kingston with his 33 passengers and crew of five.

Resume Voyage Today.

The seaplane took off from Miami one hour and 45 minutes late this morning, due to last minute motor trouble. Col. Lindbergh will resume the voyage tomorrow to Kingston and Cristobal, Canal Zone, the plane's destination.

A gala welcome was accorded the Clipper and her passengers and crew here. Similar celebrations are planned along the route as the colonel pilots his way across the Miami-Kingston-Barranquilla-Cristobal route.

Limdy Turns Over Controls.

A broken starter motor, discovered after the 33 passengers and more than 200 pounds of mail were ready for the takeoff for Cienfuegos, delayed the start from Miami until 11:13 a. m.

Col. Lindbergh took the controls for the first one and a half hours of today's flight, but turned them over to Mate Pilot Basil Rowe at 12:52 p. m. The Clipper settled down in the bay here at 1:32 p. m., two hours and nineteen minutes after the Miami takeoff.

INQUEST ON ROBBER'S DEATH.

A coroner's jury investigating the death of Raymond Kane, 19 years old, 7812 South Hermitage avenue, yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. Kane was shot by Fred Berg, owner of an Oak Lawn roadhouse, during a robbery.

Aviation Notes

A large increase in air mail carried on the New York-Chicago-Pacific coast route of United Air lines, which carries 40 per cent of the nation's air mail, was recorded in October when 214,032 pounds were carried, against 201,524 pounds for September. The line also carried 4,490 passengers in October.

New schedules with three round trips daily between Chicago and Cincinnati, Louisville and Cleveland, will be put into effect soon by American Airways. At present there are only two round trips daily. A stop will be made at Indianapolis on the Chicago-Cincinnati route.

A six and one-half hour daylight service between Chicago and Washington, with a reduction in rates, and an overnight plane rail service have been inaugurated by United Air lines in conjunction with Pennsylvania Air lines. These planes also carry mail. The plane-rail passengers leave Chicago late in the afternoon and connection is made at Cleveland with an overnight train to the capital.

Bob Buck, 17 year old pilot, who holds the junior transcontinental round trip flight record, arrived in Chicago yesterday and will autograph copies of his book, "Burning Up the Sky," this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Marshall Field & Co. store.

Residents in Highland Park, Highwood and Lake Forest were alarmed yesterday morning about 9 o'clock when an air mail pilot was forced to descend to an altitude of only 150 feet when a heavy rainfall occurred and turned the sky almost as black as night. The pilot circled over the housetops, obviously lost in the haze. Chief of Police Edward Moreney of Highland Park telephoned Maj. R. W. Schroeder, manager of Sky Harbor airport at Northbrook, and the airport night landing lights were turned on. The pilot landed his plane, a Hamilton all-metal monoplane, at Sky Harbor and waited until the storm passed before taking off again for Milwaukee.

Two Seized with Gun on Way to Make "Cleanup"

Two men who expected to "clean up" in Sioux Falls, S. D., by selling Chicago gin at $4 a pint were arrested in Oak Park yesterday with fifty bottles as they drove through the suburb. They are Clifton Cook, 45 years old, 3016 Marmora avenue, married and the father of five children, and Kalfrey De Noma, 23 years old, of Sioux Falls. They were stopped in the latter's automobile. "I was out of work, and De Noma told me the suckers were glad to pay $4 a bottle," Cook told the police, "so I thought it would be a chance to clean up some money."

SO. BEND KILLER HANGS HIMSELF FROM JAIL BUNK

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Joseph Jonas, 32, held as the slayer of Emery Bokor, 45, South Bend chain grocer, committed suicide today in jail.

Jonas attached one end of his belt to an upper bunk and the other end around his neck and threw himself forward on the lower bunk, strangling to death.

Throughout the night Jonas had appeared to be on the verge of collapse, apparently due to intoxication and mental strain. He wrote a note attempting to exonerate the driver of the car in which he had fled after the slaying. Police, however, are confident the driver had full knowledge of what was taking place.

A feud existed between Bokor and Jonas. The latter operated the "Indiana Recreation club" across the street from a Bokor grocery and evidently believed Bokor was responsible for a raid made on the club by federal agents. When he saw Bokor drive down the street he jumped on the running board and, after a struggle, fired three times. Witnesses said the two men fought while the car was running through a stop signal at a busy corner.

The murderer, witnesses said, then jumped off. The automobile, with Bokor still at the wheel, swerved from side to side and finally stopped in the front yard of the National Lumber company. The slayer was seen to jump into a light coupe and disappear. This car is said to have been driven by Stanley Stanewski, who was arrested.

Jonas was arrested. There were powder burns on his vest and he was identified as the slayer by a 13 year old newsboy. Bokor had deposited $1,500 in a bank just before the murder and it is believed Jonas followed him to and from the bank.

Miss Caroline Switlana, sweetheart of Jonas, was arrested after the shooting and released.

DANGER TONIGHT!

Protect your car . . . but don't take chances with a "boil-away" anti-freeze

Don't let your car freeze tonight. For cars are going to freeze . . . some of them caught unprepared . . . others whose owners took a chance with an "anti-freeze" that boiled off and didn't last until now, when it's needed. Eveready Prestone would have saved them!

Experienced motoris[ts] know how costly it can be to gamble with make[shift] products . . . and they depend on an anti-freeze that stays on the job through heat and cold alike, and gives sure, permanent protection. More than a million and a half car owners, last year, used Eveready Prestone, and were repaid with lasting peace-of-mind.

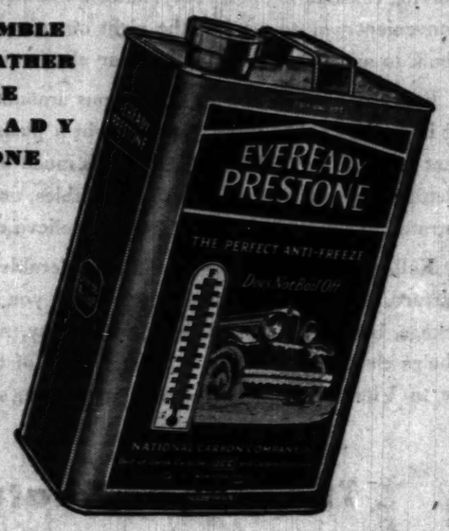
The new Eveready Prestone, improved and perfected, gives added safety. It retards the formation of rust in the cooling-system. It has less tendency to leak than water. It won't evaporate or overheat your motor, even in summery weather. And it won't let your car freeze, however low the temperature drops. It has been accepted by leading car manufacturers and automotive engineers.

Eveready Prestone is economical. Because it is concentrated, less of it is needed than with ordinary anti-freezes. And a single supply makes you safe for the winter. No constant testing! No refilling! Don't be misled by cost per gallon. Figure the cost per season.

Right now, you need an anti-freeze! But this cold-snap may pass, and be followed with thawing weather. You need an anti-freeze that will protect you now, and live through the warm days coming, to safeguard you later on. One that gives lasting protection. Eveready Prestone!

Go to your dealer or garage-man. Have him clean and tighten your cooling-system, then give you all-winter safety with the new, improved Eveready Prestone. You can put it in and forget it!

DON'T GAMBLE WITH WEATHER . . . USE EVEREADY PRESTONE



NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, Inc.

9 POINTS OF SUPERIORITY

1. Gives complete protection.
2. Does not boil off.
3. Positively will not damage cooling-system.
4. Will not heat-up a motor.
5. Circulates freely at the lowest operating temperatures.
6. Will not affect paint, varnish, or lacquer finishes.
7. Non-inflammable and odorless.
8. Prevents formation of rust in the cooling-system.
9. Economical — one filling lasts all winter.

NOTE: The difference between the operation of Eveready Prestone and alcohol is simple and easily understood. When the engine is operating at an efficient temperature and the cooling mixture is alcohol and water, the alcohol boils off and the water remains. The alcohol must then be replaced. When the cooling mixture is Eveready Prestone and water, the water evaporates and the Eveready Prestone remains. Only the water must then be replaced.

$99,000 BANKED BY LINK IN CANAL WHOOPEE REGIME

Deposits Smaller than Crowe's and Others.

Frank J. Link, the only representative of the Deneen Republican faction on the sanitary district board during the "whoopee era" of 1927-'28 when Timothy J. Crowe was president of the board, made bank deposits of $99,000, according to new evidence disclosed yesterday. Previously published evidence from the office of First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup shows much larger deposits made by Crowe and other members of his regime.

The disclosure of Link's bank record was made in the law office of Fisher, Boyden, Bell, Boyd & Marshall when depositions were taken in support of a series of five suits filed against the former district trustees by the Chicago Daily News. The suits are for the purpose of forcing restitution to the sanitary district of funds alleged to have been spent extravagantly by Crowe and his former associates on the board.

Crowe and Link are under indictment with other trustees and officials of the "whoopee era" charged with conspiracy in the misuse of sanitary district funds. They are scheduled to go to trial on Dec. 1.

Bank Records Produced.

Bank officials and representatives of various brokerage firms were called on yesterday at the deposition hearing by Attorneys Thomas Marshall and Frank J. Loesch, as associate counsel, to produce their records showing cash deposits and withdrawals made by the defendants.

The depositions confirmed the previously published information from Mr. Northup's office that Crowe had made large cash deposits in his own name and in the name of his wife. The currency deposits made by Crowe from March, 1927, to October, 1928, totaled $150,100, according to the evidence. However, the state's attorney's office says that at the forthcoming criminal trial it will be shown that the deposits were even larger.

John F. Miller, former superintendent of the permanent plants and structures department of the district, according to the deposition evidence showed a total of $812,265 from between July, 1927, to September, 1928. According to the evidence part of the currency was deposited in banks, part was used to retire loans, and part turned over to the E. Lewitz & Co. stock brokerage house. Miller is one of the ex-officials named in the whoopee indictments.

The Link Bank Account.

The new evidence developed yesterday—that of Link's bank dealings—is shown in the following table of deposits made by him in the Central Republic Bank and Trust company:

Feb. 1, 1927	$10,000
Feb. 2, 1927	500
Feb. 28, 1927	500

July 29, 1927	5,000
Aug. 8, 1927	5,000
Sept. 15, 1927	5,400
Oct. 25, 1927	5,300
Oct. 31, 1927	3,000
Nov. 18, 1927	20,770
Dec. 7, 1927	1,500
March 24, 1928	1,000

Sept. 7, 1928	2,000
Sept. 14, 1928	1,200
Oct. 4, 1928	9,000
Total	$99,100

The deposition hearing also brought out the previously published information that George L. Chamberlain, president of the U. S. A. Electrical company, which had many sanitary district contracts, made more than $800,000 withdrawals of cash during the thirteen months period in 1927-1928.

Some of the bank accounts of the former trustees, however, probably will never be publicly known because Prosecutor Northup says he cannot obtain them from the Wisconsin banks in which the deposits were made.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN JR. ASKS 15 GOVERNORS TO RESCUE SILVER

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Echoes of the famed oratory of William Jennings Bryan in his memorable cry for "free silver" are heard in the issuance by his son, William Jennings Bryan Jr., of invitations to fifteen governors for a conference on silver.

"I have no political aspirations," Bryan said. "This organization shall be nonpolitical and nonpartisan, devoted solely to dissemination of authentic information upon silver and monetary problems. The time is ripe to launch an organized effort to remedy the position of silver, which has been one of the chief causes of stagnation of world trade and commerce."

Bryan hopes for a conference with the governors some time during January at a city to be selected.

The invitations were sent to the governors of North Dakota, Washington, New Mexico, Oregon, Colorado, Nevada, Idaho, Wyoming, Arizona, California, South Dakota, Utah, Texas, Oklahoma, and Montana.

EXPLOSION PERILS 1,000 MEN IN MINE; 18 KNOWN DEAD

DONCASTER, England, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Eighteen miners were killed, seven were missing, and twenty-seven were injured tonight in an explosion and fire in the Bentley colliery near Doncaster, one of the biggest in Yorkshire. The seven missing were believed to be in the pit, where flames raged furiously, and there was little hope they would survive.

About 1,000 men were below at the time of the explosion and hundreds of them were temporarily isolated by roof-falls, but succeeded in escaping.

An inrush of gas followed the explosion, setting fire to the mine. Late tonight the fire was burning fiercely and the fate of many of the miners was unknown.

Hundreds of volunteer rescuers were working, but conditions in the pit necessitated their coming to the surface frequently, despite the fact that they were equipped with gas masks.

IOWA FARMERS WARN GOVERNOR OF IMPEACHMENT

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Impeachment of Gov. Dan Turner if he does not "continue to recognize petitions presented by citizens of the state" for the repeal of the tuberculin test law is sought by the Farmers' Protective Association of Iowa.

This was asked in a resolution passed by the association in annual convention here today.

The same resolution also asked for "elimination" of Secretary of Agriculture Mark Thornburg and "legislators responsible for this unjust law."

Delegates from 25 counties attended the conclave, which concluded late tonight with an election of officers.

J. W. Lonker of Tipton, Cedar county, and C. L. McKinnon of New London were reelected president and vice president, respectively.

The protective association had as the motive for its organization unified opposition to the tuberculin test law.

FINLAND CABINET PROPOSES STATE LIQUOR CONTROL

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 20.—The cabinet today suggested alteration of the entire prohibition system in Finland.

It is proposed to grant control over trade in alcoholic beverages to a special board with dictatorial powers and rights over manufacturing and importing of liquor, with the sealing privilege given as a monopoly to a company, the majority of the stock in which is to be owned by the state.

It is proposed also that when the present illicit liquor trade has been stopped some system of imports, with high taxes on liquor brought in, shall be adopted. Half of the entire income of the liquor monopoly would go directly to the state and the remaining half for social purposes, such as pensions and relief of the poor.

ganization on a firm foundation of permanent peace."

Grandi Promptly Follows.

Sig. Grandi came because M. Laval had come, and Mussolini wanted parity with France, not only in naval strength, but in the new diplomacy. Mr. Hoover was glad to receive him, in furtherance of the alignment of the United States, Great Britain, Germany, and Italy in favor of armament reduction and revision of the Versailles and St. Germain treaties. This is another step in the isolation of France, which Mr. Hoover initiated with his manner of proposing his moratorium.

Sig. Grandi got something else which Mussolini wanted. This was the expression of the hope in the Stimson-Grandi joint statement that France and Italy would settle their differences and join in the London naval treaty, the implication of which is that Mr. Hoover regards France to blame for the present impasse in the Franco-Italian negotiations on navy quotas.

And Now Manchuria.

The Hoover-Stimson diplomacy in the Manchurian affair is now to the fore. Whether the administration will back up the league of nations in any steps it may take to stop the Sino-Japanese war is the subject of much speculation.

The President started out by delegating a participant in the league council meeting to initiate a reminder to Japan and China of their pledges under the Kellogg anti-war pact. At once the irreconcilables in the senate accused the President of putting us in the league by the back door. Ambassador Dawes is now consulting with the league council in Paris, but is not sitting in its sessions.

The Briand statement yesterday suggesting that intervention in Manchuria by the United States, either independently or in conjunction with the league, is the only sure means of stopping the war, discloses the efforts being made to entangle America in this affair. The answer to Briand, for the time being, is contained in the Dawes statement today, that the United States reserves freedom of action.

GUEST OF PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 20.—(AP)—The echo of his New York reception still ringing in his ears Dino Grandi came to Philadelphia this afternoon for a 24 hour visit to hear the acclaim of further thousands.

He arrived only a few minutes after Signora Grandi had arrived on another train from Washington. She did not accompany her husband on his New York visit.

A single incident marred the reception here. A young Italian, expressing hatred for the Italian Fascisti, jumped to the running board of the car bearing Signor Grandi from the station to the Athletic club for luncheon. He was immediately arrested and held for investigation.

Tonight the foreign minister and his wife were the guests of honor at a large dinner tendered by the Sons of Italy at the Bellevue Stratford hotel.

The railroad stations were heavily guarded by policemen as were the places visited by the Italian party.

New York Greets Grandi.

New York, Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, rode up a fog bound Broadway today, through the heaviest police guard New York has ever mustered around a distinguished guest, and at the city hall received from Mayor James J. Walker the well worn keys of the city.

On the roofs of buildings along the line of march were men with arms in their hands. Once, when, at Barclay street and Broadway, a photographer set off an old fashioned flashlight powder, the police drove back the crowd, and one man was knocked down.

But at the city hall Mayor Walker reassured his visitor.

"Your excellency," he said, making his speech of welcome, "if you are not safe in this city, I am going to move."

In the cold, damp hours of the early morning the official tug Macom decked with dripping flags fetched Signor Grandi across the Hudson from his sleeping car.

Sig. Grandi caught this town too early for an uproarious welcome.

At the Jersey City pier, where his train pulled in early this morning, 100 policemen held back thirty onlookers.

There were perhaps 200 spectators in Battery park. Along Broadway there were about 10,000 men and women behind the cordon of 1,200 bluecoats.

ROME IS HAPPY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 20.—The United States and Italy have reached a mutual and cordial understanding on major international problems, according to the way Rome looks at the joint Stimson-Grandi communique issued from Washington yesterday.

The unofficial views expressed about Grandi's talks with Washington politicians are that another step has been marked by the United States in its departure from its position of isolation. According to Forges Davanzatti, former member of the grand Fascist council, the communique indicates that from now on the United States will regard Europe's problems as her own.

JOHNSON SWINGS ON HOOVER UPON CAPITAL RETURN

Fights Policies, but Mum on Own Candidacy.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] returned to Washington today breathing defiance of President Hoover but declining to say whether he would be a candidate against Mr. Hoover for the Republican nomination for President.

"I am opposed to the Hoover moratorium," said Senator Johnson. "And I do not care if my vote is the only one in the senate against it. I shall vote against it."

Senator Johnson attacked the policy of the Hoover administration, declaring the administration was neglecting misery at home and bending all its energies to stabilize abroad for the benefit of the international bankers.

An Embarrassing Question.

"It is a much easier and safer thing to yap about disarmament," said Senator Johnson, "than to ask J. P. Morgan and Albert H. Wiggin how much foreign paper they hold and what they stand to gain by foreign debt cancellation and moratoriums and the like."

Senator Johnson said he had not made up his mind whether to offer a resolution asking the international bankers these questions. He intimated he would be glad to do so if he could get support in the senate for its adoption.

The California senator, asked whether he planned to get into the race for the Republican presidential nomination, replied that if he ever entered the campaign he would announce it to the press. Another question put to the senator was whether any effort was being made in his state to take the delegation to the next Republican convention away from President Hoover. His reply was:

"I know of no present effort to take the delegation away from Mr. Hoover."

"Debt Cancellation Plan."

Senator Johnson said the intergovernmental debt moratorium is the entering wedge to the cancellation of the foreign debts owed this country. "I do not believe in cancellation of these debts," he asserted. "The plan is to make our taxpayers pay an additional $250,000,000 the coming year and ultimately about ten billion."

Senator Johnson said he supposed the world court would be brought up early for consideration during the senate session.

"It ought to be defeated," he said. "The decision of the court in the German-Austrian case is a clear indication that it is a political court. I am convinced that the first thing we should do is to attempt at least to alleviate unemployment in this country."

Farmers of Manitoba Ask for Social Ownership

BRANDON, Man., Nov. 20.—(AP)—United Farmers of Manitoba, after making a series of sweeping demands, ended their three day convention today. They declared for a state of social ownership in which rent, interest and profit would be unknown. The 28 year old agrarian body also urged a central bank, consolidation of commercial farm bodies, nationalization of land resources and utilities, improved credit facilities, lower tariffs and freight rates, and an inquiry into marketing costs.

SCIENCE DISCOVERS NEW VIRTUES in Kellogg's All-Bran

THREEFOLD BENEFITS:

1. BULK to promote proper elimination
2. VITAMIN B to tone the intestinal tract
3. IRON to help build blood

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is the dependable daily choice of millions of people because it relieves both temporary and recurring constipation in an easy, natural manner. It affords a convenient way to get just the right quantity and quality of bulk to assist the system in regular elimination.

Every normal diet needs a generous amount of "bulk," and in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN you get it in a pleasant, ready-to-eat cereal. The "bulk" or fiber in it is much like the fiber in lettuce, spinach and other leafy vegetables, only it is concentrated in a more convenient form to relieve constipation.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN absorbs a considerable amount of moisture. Inside the body it isn't at all like you see it in the package, but a soft mass. Gently, in an easy, natural way, it helps clear the intestines of waste. Part of this effect is due to Vitamin B, richly present in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Vitamin B helps tone the intestinal tract and assists in keeping the intestines active and healthy.

Still another benefit from eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN may come from the iron in it. Iron is valuable for making red blood. It has been established that there is twice as much iron in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN as in a similar amount by weight of beef liver.

Try eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly for a week and see if it doesn't help you to keep fit and regular. All you usually need for common constipation is two tablespoonfuls a day, or with every meal for more stubborn cases.

Isn't this better than dangerous self-medication . . . dosing with pills and drugs that violently whip the intestines to strenuous, over-tiring action? If you have serious intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Be sure to get Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN . . . the bran that gives bulk enriched with iron and Vitamin B. Use it as a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream. Or try it in cooking. Delightful recipes on every red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers.

Made only by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SOIL CONFERENCE TO SUBMIT PLAN OF ACTION TODAY

Economists Delve Into Farm Revolution.

BY PAUL POTTER.

A number of leading agricultural economists delved deeper yesterday into the problems of an economic revolution going on in agriculture. Their discussions at the national land utilization conference which ends today at the Stevens hotel indicated a plan would be announced today on which the federal, state and county governments could base their policies regarding the best use of the great continental domain of nearly two billion acres that we call the United States.

DR. H. G. KNIGHT.

The proposals of the conference are expected to affect not only farmers and owners of forest or waste lands, but possible drastic reforms in local governments and the basis of taxation for all property owners as well.

886,000,000 Acres in Farms.

Of the 1,903,000,000 acres in the United States, only 886,000,000 acres are classed as farms. And on a little more than one-third of this farm land, 360 million acres, is being produced the food and fiber of the nation with what Secretary of Agriculture Hyde declares are "vast surpluses of crops in addition."

Already, according to Dr. Henry G. Knight, federal soils chemist, at least 21 million acres have gone out of cultivation in a generation because of destructive erosion. This is a loss in area greater than that of Japan's entire arable holdings.

Other economic forces such as the motorization of farms that depletes horse population, the increasing efficiencies in cultivation and production, make "new levels of competition in such crops as corn, wheat and cotton." This point was made by M. L. Wilson of Montana State college, who cited ample evidences that all foods and fibers would be produced in the future more economically than at the present low levels.

Less Land Is Needed.

All this means that less land is constantly required in the nation's agricultural plant. Steps to correct this trend which has kept wasteful lands in cultivation were proposed by Eric England, federal farm economist, and by Dr. C. L. Holmes, federal farm management expert.

England would recognize that taxation is involved in the land readjustments, and would first classify all lands as to their production worth, subject to modifications in regional and international competition. Thus the poor or worthless lands would pay less taxes, assessed on their actual value in production rather than on resale values.

Dr. Holmes declared his studies had revealed that large scale farming "is not to become universal or even typical in American agriculture."

The federal farm board's economic studies into future trends in production were in contrast to those of Dr. Holmes. The board's chief economist, Dr. John D. Black, professor of economics at Harvard university, declared that "there are good reasons for thinking that he scale of production will increase in many lines of agriculture in spite of factors in the other directions."

"Two kinds of farms principally will increase in numbers, the small family residence type, and the farm of from a few hundred to several thousand acres," Dr. Black said.

Assails Government Reports.

In the midst of the discussion of land uses, taxation, credits, forest operations, and soil surveys, the economists experienced a verbal explosion when H. R. Tolley, director of the Giannina Foundation, University of California, appeared on the program. Known as the "father of the federal agricultural outlook reports" started ten years ago to inform farmers of economic trends to guide them in crop production, Tolley chastised the federal government's recent "clamping down on this information."

He called the government's report to farmers made last September "woefully lacking in information that will be helpful in planning production." Wheat growers wanted to know, he said, and were entitled to know whether the returns from wheat must be expected to remain at low levels for some time to come."

Byrd Plans to Revisit Antarctic, Recover Planes

Brockton, Mass., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, speaking here, revealed that he plans to return to Little America next September. He hopes to recover the airplanes which had to be left behind after departure of the last expedition. He added the new expedition also would involve further research and exploration.

"MAROONED"

LILA LEE.

San Francisco, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Arriving here today from a three months' vacation at Tahiti, Lila Lee, motion picture star, smilingly announced she has "indefinitely postponed" her marriage to John Farrow, Hollywood scenario writer.

Miss Lee said she would leave for Los Angeles at once to go back to work, but that Farrow planned a trip to Europe before returning to Hollywood. She sailed for Tahiti from San Francisco four months ago to complete her recovery from a physical breakdown. Farrow followed her a month later.

Miss Lee said she was "marooned" at Bora Bora when the Interisland ship from Tahiti failed to arrive for her party.

U. S. INDICTS 7 FOR COLLAPSE OF BENTON BANK

Link Officers in Plot to Embezzle Cash.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—An indictment charging conspiracy to violate the national banking act was returned in the federal court at East St. Louis, Ill., today against three officers and four directors of the First National bank of Benton, Ill., which closed Nov. 28, 1930, unable to meet the demands of its depositors, but later reopened under receivership.

Those indicted are: George C. Cantrell, president; Walter W. Williams, vice president; George A. Powers, cashier, and Dr. J. Beverly Moore, Edward B. Nolen, J. L. Ohle, and Dr. Lester W. Brand, directors. The indicted officers also are directors of the bank.

All are charged with conspiracy to make false entries in reports and statements of the bank to deceive the comptroller of the currency and the examiners appointed by him to examine the affairs of the bank, and, in the language of the indictment, "to embezzle, abstract, and wilfully misapply the moneys and credits" of the bank.

Cantrell is the son-in-law of the founder of the bank, the late W. W. McFall. Williams, an attorney, was once reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in southern Illinois.

CAPTOR OF TWO BANDITS TO GET A POLICE JOB

Walter Wallinski, who single-handed captured two armed holdup men, has been requested by Commissioner of Police Allman to appear at his office on Monday. The interview is likely to result, the commissioner indicated, in the employment of Wallinski as a member of the police department.

Legally Wallinski cannot be made a policeman. However, as he has already taken the physical examination in an effort to get on the force, Commissioner Allman said he would find some work for him in the department. The job will give Wallinski an opportunity to prepare for other tests to be given to the police applicants. His work was also praised by Mayor Cermak.

Wallinski became suspicious of the bandits when they passed his father's butcher shop at 5055 Fullerton avenue after holding up a neighboring store. He pursued the bandits' automobile for a block in his own, forced it to the curb, and captured the occupants.

'Dark Glory' Another Book Concerning Poe

With Some Words About Matters of Fashion.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Dark Glory," by Dorothy Dow. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

"DARK GLORY" is subtitled "The story of Edgar Allan Poe." In all of literary history there is no figure more tragic than the figure of Edgar Allan Poe, who made such beautiful music with his pen as America never knew before and who ironically never could sing the song of his life in harmony with his fate. The chronicles of man rarely have offered a story with the intensity of contrasts between desire and fulfilment, between striving and achievement, between actual hard work and human reward, to compare with the story of Edgar Allan Poe.

DOROTHY DOW.

For the nature of the hero of that story was stronger than any possible outside influence—the passionate, undeniable urge to put down on paper the beautiful melodies that sang in his brain. Poe was one of the few "naturals" of creative writing, all of his biographers seem to agree. He wrote as a bird sings, through instinct, not design. From every point of view the story of Edgar Allan Poe is a romantic, a darkly romantic tale, a story which must cry out to other poets to be told by them. Hervey Allen heard that cry and wrote one of the great biographies in American literary history, "Israfel."

Dorothy Dow, herself a poet, has hearkened to that cry, "Dark Glory" comes to us palpitant with another poet's understanding of the greatest weaver of rhythm patterns that American poetry has known, and a human being's actual "suffering with" that misunderstood and unhappy genius [which is the true meaning of the word "sympathy"].

"Dark Glory" is not really the story of Edgar Allan Poe. It is not a biography in the accepted sense of the word. The actual record of Poe's doings which it contains would fill a volume only a tenth the size of "Dark Glory" [which itself is not long]. It gives no new information to a waiting public, and surprisingly little old. It does not interpret either critically or socially the character and work of its hero. It is a great deal more about other poets than it is about the poet in question. It is full of extraneous information [after the manner of Thomas Beer's "The Mauve Decade"] about the kind of dresses the ladies were wearing and the fact that "there was not one single pediatrist in the whole United States, nor a beauty parlor, nor a radio, nor a moving picture, nor an automobile," matters which concerned the hero of "Dark Glory" less perhaps than they concerned anybody in the world, of his day, so little interested was he in the economics of his own or any other land because he was so deeply, so tragically concerned with beauty and capturing it in words.

There are times when the reader hasn't a notion what kind of book he is reading. There will be a clever summing up of the mores of the day, or a keen critical estimate of the literary events of the world at the moment, material skilfully [and sometimes brilliantly] sieved from history, and the reader will decide that the author is sketching her hero lightly against the more detailed background of his period, for the very obvious reason that while he was placed there by fate he did not belong there, and the background triumphed in a tragic way over the figure in the foreground. Brilliant idea, one says to oneself.

And then on the next page there will be a fictionlike conversation between Poe and his child wife, material which no history could ever provide the author, and on the next a quick, all-seeing look into the mind of the hero.

The conversation may have been synthetically achieved from Poe's letters, but the thoughts could be from only one possible source—deductive reasoning and psychological understanding.

On one page the reader thinks that he is reading fiction. Then he finds that it is criticism and an historical vignette that is the special gift of the next page. It is all very disconcerting, and without pattern.

But with that apparently haphazard method, Miss Dow has really succeeded in giving the reader a terrifically moving sense of Edgar Allan Poe the man, and the poet. She writes, in a paragraph which I am quoting because it is characteristic of her approach to her subject, her method of discription and her own intensely personal highly embroidered but often beautiful style, "There were two of him always; he, who had been Edgar Allan for so many years, and who was always to be a little unhappy over being out at the elbow, down at the heel; to have a dim envious hatred for what he had just missed, to wear somewhat defiantly like a bedraggled plume the chivalric gesture of the southern gentleman, to mind very much what people said about him, and to need companionship more than any frightened child; and the other, the poet, the mystic, Poe . . . with his incorruptible belief in that classic face of Beauty which said nothing and everything, according to the understanding of him who brought his violets to her feet; going straight ahead on the path his instinct marked out for him, unspoiled, never contaminated by shallow philosophy, or cheap popularity, or the trivial desire to be LIKE."

Dorothy Dow is Mrs. James Edward Fitzgerald of Chicago.

Stanley Rogers Does Another Dashing Book of Dangers at Sea

Stanley Rogers has written and illustrated another dashing book of the sea, this time "The Pacific" [Crowell]. If you liked his ocean trilogy—"Ships and Sailors," "Sea Lore," and "The Atlantic"—get his latest and enjoy what is perhaps his best. Mr. Rogers knows his briny deep and not only can write about it in lovely English, but can picture it in sketches of charm, both black and white and in color.

Like his other books, "The Pacific" covers a wide field, though of course, only sketchily. But he has the knack of painting vivid word pictures of shipwreck, piracy, and exploration and condensing the thrills into compelling little true stories worth knowing about and remembering.

His chapter on "The Literary Pacific" and his comments on Melville, Stevenson, Jack London, and Pierre Loti are especially instructive and readable.

Polish Youth Hero of Strange Tartar Revolt

It's Thrilling Story for High School Age.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

[Director of children's work for branches of the Chicago public library.]

"The Golden Star of Halich," by Eric Kelly [Macmillan].

"The Scarlet Fringe," by Helen Fernald and Edwin Slocombe [Longmans-Green].

"Señor Zero," by Henry Justin Smith [Harcourt-Brace].

WITH "The Golden Star of Halich" Eric Kelly concludes the fine trilogy of Polish historical stories which began with "The Trumpeter of Krakow." It is perhaps sufficient to say the same standard of excellence which distinguished the earlier books has been maintained in this one.

The setting is fourteenth century Poland and it tells the story of Michael Korsets, 15 years old, who, as a reward for saving the life of King Kazamir of Poland, is permitted to accompany a party which the king is sending into Halich to find the mysterious golden star, symbol of the insurrectionists who are endangering the country.

Becoming separated from his company, Michael falls captive to a band of Tartars and before long finds himself in the very heart of the intrigue, unraveling the mystery of the symbol and fulfilling the pledge given the king to bring back to Poland the golden star of Halich. The story is marked by its fine description of the ancient city, and the reader finds himself thinking of its great churches with their subterranean passages, its bridges and great walls long after he has finished the book. Suspense, adventure, and romance combine to make the tale ideal for the young reader of high school age.

Two other fine stories in the historical-adventure group which will appeal to this age are "The Scarlet Fringe," by Helen Fernald and Edwin Slocombe and Henry Justin Smith's "Señor Zero." The first is a fascinating and exceedingly well told story of the Incas, having for its hero Paullu, a young lad who sets out to recover the Star Ruby, an ancient possession of the tribe which for generations has been the token of its well being. Very stirring indeed is the story of the boy's devotion and fearlessness, and very dramatic the incident in which the confidence of his people in their young leader is put to the test with the burning of the bridge over the chasm, their only access to the outside world. No voice is raised in protest and Paullu has earned the "scarlet fringe" of leadership.

"Señor Zero" goes back to the days of Columbus and takes for its theme the various trips made by the Spanish explorers to the western world. The hero is a young Spanish lad who sails as a stowaway aboard the Santa Maria and thus begins a series of adventures in the new world, adventures which left him a captive among the Carib Indians on the Island of Jamaica for many years, and later made him their friend and admirer. A story of action based on historical foundations which is well worth reading. All of these titles are deserving of places on the roll of distinctive books for young people.

"Sonnets to Laura," Other Poems Appear in New Full Text

A few of the poets who have translated sonnets of Petrarch into English are Chaucer, Wyatt, Surrey, Spencer, Wordsworth, Swineburne and Rossetti. Their translations always were incomplete, and it has been a mystery why there has been no really great and complete translation of this ecstatic poet—perhaps the rigid form of that poet's sonnets and the length of the job have something to do with it. Joseph Auslander has been working for five years on the task under the title "Sonnets of Petrarch" [Longmans Green]. His translation has just been published. Petrarch's love lyrics are among the world's most beautiful. He, the most popular of Italy's poets, sounded the note of the coming renaissance, and was one of the men upon whom history passed the verdict "the first modern man." Petrarch lavished the passionate warmth and poetry of his nature upon the beautiful Laura, who was young but married to another.

From the first time he saw her until his death he dedicated his art to her. Married to another for twenty years, she was deaf to his reproaches, his passion and his praise. Joseph Auslander translates these sonnets with sensitiveness and intelligence. His rendering of the poetry is neither exaggeratedly literal nor exaggeratedly interpretative.

Then the author turns back to the early life and ideals of this well-known Democrat. We see pictures of his hero's college days, his sensational entrance into politics at the age of 29, his campaigns for Woodrow Wilson, and his activities during the two Wilson administrations.

The book tells about his nomination for the vice-presidency at 38, and some intimate and unknown details about the conduct of the war, during which he was assistant secretary of the navy.

We see the man as he appears to his friends and his family as well as to his enemies.

FOX RIVER FOLK ASK U. S. FUND TO DEEPEN CHANNEL

Civic Groups Make Plea to Congressman.

Three hundred representatives of local [illegible] and civic organizations in the Fox river valley at a meeting yesterday in the Kane county courthouse at Geneva presented Congressman Frank Reid of Aurora a united demand for the improvement of the Fox river channel with federal funds.

FRANK REID. [Koehne Photo.]

Mr. Reid, who is chairman of the flood control committee of the house of representatives, expressed himself as heartily in favor of the proposal and promised to do all he could to get appropriations. He pointed out, however, that Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, had turned thumbs down on the project on the ground that there was no need for it.

Suggests State Appropriation.

"It might have been better," said Representative Reid, "if the residents of the valley had first obtained from the state legislature an appropriation to pay for a part of the cost. That would have been direct evidence to congress that the people do want and need this improvement."

At the close of the discussion, which lasted about two hours, the assembly of delegates passed resolutions urging congress to give Mr. Reid the aid that would be needed to get over the hurdle which he is to introduce for the improvement.

Rodney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare, declared that the work on the channel was needed to purify the waters of the Fox river and to regulate its flow. Also, he declared, large tracts of land along its banks should be purchased and held for use as parks.

"We are justified," he declared, "in approaching the federal government with a determined demand on this proposition. If the Fox river were an English stream it would have been canalized years ago. If it were canalized as it is there it would be a real service to industry and a promotion of the use of pleasure craft."

Urge Deeper Channel.

The Fox is now navigable for small craft from McHenry north to the Wisconsin line, and those attending the meeting held that the fifty miles between McHenry and Ottawa should likewise be made navigable and that the whole deepened. Large traffic to serve the industrial counties of northern Illinois would then be available, it was stated.

It was decided that the Fox Valley federation, which called yesterday's meeting, would hold a banquet in December for a fuller discussion of the proposed improvement.

Among those who spoke for the resolution that was passed were Albert of the Century of Progress staff, W. G. Potter of the state division of waterways; Mayor C. M. Bishop of Aurora, Mayor Myron Lee of Elgin, and Bob Becker of the Tribune staff.

In the call for yesterday's meeting the federation called attention to the fact that the federal government took much more money from Illinois than it returned in the way of improvements.

WOMAN ATTACKS 3 MARSHALS A MATE IS JAILE

Excited because her husband had been ordered to jail for refusing to obey a court order, Mrs. Anna Folka, 1138 Kimball avenue, Chicago Heights, attacked three deputy United States marshals late yesterday afternoon in the courtroom of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

She was subdued after an extended struggle in which the marshals were scratched and bitten and was sent to the psychopathic hospital.

The husband, John Folka, was first committed to jail on Aug. 4 when he declined to sign away his property to creditors who had forced him into bankruptcy. When he maintained the stand yesterday Judge Woodward continued his case until Tuesday and ordered that in the meanwhile a printer who could speak Polish be asked to explain to him the intricacies of the law.

Mrs. Folka left her four children, the oldest 7 years old and the youngest an infant, in the rear of the courtroom and ran to her husband screaming: "He can't go back; the children are starving." The youngsters were turned over to a sister of Mrs. Folka when she was led away.

WESTERN UNION RECORDS SHOWN IN LIQUOR TRIA

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Records of the Western Union office at Omaha, Neb., showing transmission of $90,000 to persons on trial in federal court here in the tri-state liquor conspiracy were offered by the government today as evidence.

They were brought into court under subpoena by I. H. Bastien, head of the department of the Omaha office, and showed the money was sent from Sioux City, Des Moines, Davenport, and other Iowa as well as Nebraska points, principally to Mike Blumberg of Clinton, Ia., one of the twenty-two defendants.

A ruling on the admissibility of the records was reserved. Government attorneys declared they would demonstrate that persons involved in the alleged conspiracy in Iowa dealt in money orders, while those in Illinois dealt in cash.

Ted Newberry, reputed Capone gangster, was mentioned for the first time during the trial today, but was not connected with the case. Policeman William Hanley testified he saw Newberry near the Blackhawk hotel in Davenport in 1921.

FOX RIVER FOLK ASK U. S. FUND TO DEEPEN CHANNEL

Civic Groups Make Plea to Congressman.

Three hundred representatives of municipalities and civic organizations in the Fox river valley at a meeting yesterday in the Kane county courthouse at Geneva presented to Congressman Frank Reid of Aurora a united demand for the improvement of the Fox river channel with federal funds.

FRANK REID. [Hedin Photo.]

Mr. Reid, who is chairman of the flood control committee of the house of representatives, expressed himself as heartily in favor of the proposal and promised to do all he could to get appropriations. He pointed out, however, that Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, had set himself flatly down on the project on the ground that there was no need for it.

Suggests State Appropriation.

"It might have been better," said Representative Reid, "if the residents of the valley had first obtained from the state legislature an appropriation to pay for a part of the cost. This would have been direct evidence to congress that the people do want and need this improvement."

At the close of the discussion, which lasted about two hours, the assembled delegates passed resolutions urging congress to give Mr. Reid the aid that would be needed to get over the bill which he is to introduce for the improvement.

Sidney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare, declared that the work on the channel was needed to purify the waters of the Fox river and to regulate its flow. Also, he declared, large tracts of the land along its banks should be purchased and held for use as parks.

"We are justified," he declared, "in approaching the federal government with a determined demand on this proposition. If the Fox river were an English stream it would have been modified years ago. If it were canalized as it is there it would be a real asset to industry and a promotion of the use of pleasure craft."

Urge Deeper Channel.

The Fox is now navigable for small craft from McHenry north to the Wisconsin line, and those attending the meeting held that the fifty miles between Ottawa and Ottawa should also be made navigable and the work deepened. Barge traffic to serve the industrial counties of northern Illinois would then be available, it was stated.

It was decided that the Fox Valley committee, which called yesterday's meeting, would hold a banquet in Batavia for a fuller discussion of the proposed improvement.

Among those who spoke for the resolution that was passed were Allen T. Albert of the Century of Progress staff, W. G. Potter of the state division of waterways; Mayor C. M. Bjorkgren of Aurora, Mayor Myron Lehman of Elgin, and Bob Becker of THE TRIBUNE staff.

In the call for yesterday's meeting the intention called attention to the fact that the federal government took much more money from Illinois than it returned in the way of improvements.

$5,000,000 BANKED BY OLVANY FIRM IN SEVEN YEARS

Ex-Boss Has Bad Day on Stand.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 20.—[Special.]—George W. Olvany, former head of Tammany Hall, passed an unpleasant afternoon in the witness chair today while Samuel Seabury and various members of the Hofstadter legislative committee pelted him with embarrassing questions.

Mr. Olvany described himself as "a Good Samaritan." But Mr. Seabury's line of questioning regarding the profits of the Tammany chief's legal firm from cases involving city departments drew a somewhat different picture.

Just before adjournment an accountant employed by the committee read into the records a statement of deposits made by Mr. Olvany's law firm, Olvany, Elsen & Donnelly. Seven years were covered by the accountant and every banking account that could be located was included. The total deposits amounted to some $5,283,000.

Banner Year $999,857.

Beginning in 1926 the firm tucked away, in round figures, $688,833. Business picked up in 1927 and $999,357 was deposited. The total for 1928 was $781,220, and in 1929 the firm banked $880,630. Things slacked up a bit in 1930, the amount being $638,-953, and up until Nov. 1 of this year $855,163 had been banked.

The red faced politician shook his head angrily when the figures were read after the legislative committee had voted five to four to introduce them into the records. Previously Mr. Olvany had declined to swear that a list purporting to show his law firm's clients in board of standards and appeals cases was full and correct. At the same time he heatedly declared that under no circumstances would he permit the committee to inspect the books of his firm.

Mr. Olvany, at first, was not even sure his firm had any books. Later in his testimony he decided it would be "against the law" to give away secrets of his legal clients.

"You wouldn't ask me to break the law, would you?" boomed the former Tammany head man.

Mr. Seabury did not get through with Mr. Olvany this afternoon, and the Tammany man probably will be asked a lot about pier leases and condemnation suits when he resumes testimony.

One Client's Profits.

On a cash investment of $25,000 one of Mr. Olvany's clients realized a profit of more than $454,000 on land taken by the city for park purposes. The property was located near the northern tip of Manhattan and was acquired for an extension of Highbridge park. It was purchased, according to Witness George M. Garson, president of Park River corporation, from the Barney Estate corporation.

Although the price agreed upon in the sale was $310,000, only $25,000 represented the immediate payment. When the city finally got around to buying the property it paid $755,492, including interest. Garson's company, in its contract with James F. Donnelly, one of the partners in the Olvany law firm, guaranteed the attorneys 2 per cent of the condemnation award up to $900,000 and 25 per cent for all over that.

REARED AS GIRLS, 2 BROTHERS SUE TO BECOME MEN

Bare Mother's Strange Masquerade.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—A strange story of two fully grown brothers who had been reared from birth as girls was told in court here today when they applied for a judicial decree officially designating them as men.

The story is that of a mother, now dead, who longed in vain for a daughter and who, when her longings were unsatisfied, masqueraded two of her sons as girls until her death. The two bearing the names of Geneva Armstrong, 33 years old, and Nola Lee Armstrong, 31, formally filed a petition in the Circuit court here.

In the petition it is asked that permission be given to Nola Lee to assume the Christian name of Noel, and for Geneva to bear the name of Gene Douglas. In effect, attorneys point out, the petition asks the court to designate their sex as masculine.

Have Four "Brothers."

The brothers stated that their mother had always yearned for a daughter but that all her six children were boys. She gave them girls' names and dressed them in feminine clothing to satisfy her maternal craving, the petition says.

Until their mother's death seven years ago the two brothers had never worn masculine clothing. Some of the more intimate friends of the family were aware of their dual rôle. However, others actually believed them to be girls and when the two adopted men's garb these friends, they said, doubted they really were men.

Own Attorney Doubted.

Among those most astonished was Arthur Call, Anderson attorney, who filed the petition for the brothers. He had visited the Armstrong home several times on business and had always regarded Geneva and Nola as girls.

When they called on him dressed in masculine clothing, he did not recognize them until the situation was explained.

PLAN OPERATION ON OHIO VICTIM OF HICCOUGHING

Mansfield, O., Nov. 20.—(AP)—An operation, intended to remove an abdominal infection, may be performed tomorrow on Ira A. King, who for the last 13 days has been helpless due to a chronic case of hiccoughs.

His relatives said today he had partaken of nourishment for the third successive day and that he appeared to be gaining strength slowly. If his condition will permit, they reported, an operation will be performed tomorrow.

The attack has abated somewhat during the last three days, although the ailment has stubbornly failed to react to numerous treatments of his physicians.

The infection was discovered by X-ray pictures, and some expressed a belief it may be the cause of the hiccoughing.

Meanwhile reputed cures of the ailment continue to pour into the King home and his room at General hospital from persons throughout the United States.

100 4 H MEMBERS TO BE PICKED FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

One hundred boys and girls are to be chosen from the nation's Four H club enrollment to participate in $50,000 in scholarships offered by the International Harvester company. The selections are to be announced on Dec. 2 during the International Live Stock exposition. The work of selecting the winners was under way in the Chicago club yesterday. The judges are Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of the United States department of agriculture; E. J. Bodman, senior vice president of the Union Trust company, Little Rock, Ark.; Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific railroad, Omaha, Neb.; Frederick H. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago.

It is expected that 1,500 Four H club members will attend the tenth annual club congress held during the live stock show, according to Guy L. Noble, managing director of the national committee on boys' and girls' club work.

Milder because they're fresh

CAMELS are never parched or toasted!

FOLKS who smoke really fresh cigarettes made from choice sun-ripened tobaccos never have to give a thought to their throats.

That's because such fresh cigarettes retain natural moisture—and are gratefully smooth, cool, throat-friendly, mild.

Camels are the fresh cigarette—everyone knows that now—they're blended from the finest Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos that money and skill can buy

We would never dream of parching or toasting these choice sun-ripened tobaccos—that would only drive off or destroy the natural moisture that makes Camels fresh in nature's own mild way.

The Camel Humidor Pack protects a fine cigarette fresh with natural moisture—it could do little or nothing to freshen a cigarette that is dried-out or factory-stale.

If you smoke for pleasure, see for yourself what freshness means in mildness and flavor—switch to Camels for just one day—then leave them, if you can!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE MONEY ISN'T THERE.

The special session of the legislature was called to avert a series of municipal bankruptcies in Cook county. The financial condition of the local governments became desperate as a result of a number of influences, but behind them all and overshadowing them all is the fact that the taxes now assessed each year in the county exceed the capacity of the people of the county to pay.

The money isn't there. It can't be raised by present methods of taxation and it won't be raised by any others which the legislature may devise. New forms of taxation, no matter how ingenious, cannot avert insolvency. The one hope lies in reducing the costs of government, which, in turn, will permit a reduction in the tax bills.

The belief that the situation in Chicago is so desperate that Chicago representatives must accept anything which the legislature offers as relief seems to be fairly general in Springfield. It has led to a number of efforts to charge Cook county taxpayers with an even larger proportion of the costs of the general government of the state than they now bear. That is the purpose of the income tax. According to the computations of Senator Hearcy of the Springfield district, Cook county pays 87 per cent of the federal income tax collected in Illinois and presumably will pay at least this proportion of any state income tax. If an income tax is enacted, Cook county money will be appropriated for downstate purposes, while the total tax bill in Cook county will be increased.

But Cook county is already taxed beyond its capacity to pay. It cannot produce the $350,000,000 a year which is levied now by direct taxation and it is ridiculous to pretend that through some hocus-pocus the county can be bled for more than $300,000,000. If any members of the legislature think to the contrary and have their way, they are due for a period of disillusionment. They will discover that their expectations have not been realized. By the time that the other governments of the state which are counting upon Chicago money to pay their expenses discover that the money has not been forthcoming half the governments of the state will have joined those of Cook county in insolvency.

Every legislator should paste in his hat the sentence, "The money isn't there." That is the cardinal fact about squeezing more revenue from Cook county upon which fiscal legislation must be built if it is to be sound.

THE RATIONALE OF VOLSTEAD.

Fruit Industries, Ltd., has changed its sales methods, according to an announcement made in Washington. Heretofore it has placed the grape concentrate in the citizen's cellar and has relieved the buyer of any apprehension that something might go wrong. A handler who knew what to do to the product and when to do it visited the premises. The trick of making wine was not elusive, but the citizen had confidence in the expert and when the finished article was in its bottles he knew he had an intoxicating beverage. He knew also that it had the sanction of a dry government and that enforcement agents would not come in and shoot him. Thus all was as well as things of this sort can be in the land of Volstead.

Out in Kansas, where jake ginger was given a strong play until it produced many cases of jake paralysis and scared the teetotalers, a grape company ran into a federal court decision that its practices were violations of national prohibition. That was sour news in Washington, the government having backed the wine producers with loans, but the industry decided that a change in sales methods would save the business. Chairman Stone of the farm board, through which the government subsidy has reached the wine makers, and Prohibition Director Woodcock, who is supposed to prohibit the making of wine, say that they had nothing to do with the decision, but are pleased that it was made. Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former firebrand prohibition prosecutor of the department of justice, is legal adviser for Fruit Industries, Ltd.

In the new method of distribution the company will not put the keg in the basement or give it any service. The purchaser must get the concentrate from a retailer and roll his own. He may make some mistakes, but he'll probably make wine.

It has not been easy in all cases to get satisfactory information from the farm board, but Senator Tydings of Maryland has said that the government loans to the wine making grape industry were $20,000,000 a half year ago. Lately it was reported that the vineyards were seeking more government money. It is said that Fruit Industries alone has had $3,500,000 from Washington. It is only one of the companies.

A grotesque phrasing of words in the enforcement act has permitted the interpretation that if fruit juices, such as cider and grape juice, go alcoholic in the basement that is nature's business and not the government's. If Dr. Clarence True Wilson does not like it he can repeal the law of fermentation. Consequently, with government money, with expert wiring in Washington and an unrepealed natural law, dry America has been in a good way of becoming, under Volstead, a wine drinking nation.

An intelligent visitor in the United States, observing this amelioration of the fury of prohibition, might come to some wrong conclusions and, when his error was explained to him, depart more mystified than ever. In such case no one could blame him. The Volstead law and its enforcement can be understood only by a mental contortionist. Our intelligent visitor would conclude that if the government subsidizes the making of wine, which naturally will have an alcoholic content of ten per cent or more, it would beam with pleasure upon the making of beer in the home and might even subsidize the maltsters and the growers of hops. But no.

The citizen who may have a heady wine may find himself in jail if he makes a three or four per cent beer. The malt beverage has no benediction. The government which has encouraged the production of grape concentrate has tried to prevent the sale of malt extract and various malt products. Dealers have been raided and retailers have been brought to trial and citizens have been sent to jail.

The intelligent visitor would conclude that the rationale of federal prohibition was beyond comprehension unless it was to be taken as an unpleasant medieval survival. At that, he might be right.

MOTORS WITHOUT LIGHTS.

Too many motorists are neglecting their lights. Cars without lighted headlights, or with one light in operation, or with no tail light, seem to be increasing and are adding to the hazards of the road for traffic and for pedestrians. This is a condition the police are very foolish to tolerate. They are making trouble for themselves as well as for the public. A car moving without lights ought to be a special object of suspicion, but if the police are lax in enforcing the regulation the neglect of lights will presently be, if it is not already, common enough to deprive it of any meaning.

Driving without lights or with defective lights is very seldom excusable. In the vast majority of cases it is simply the result of selfish disregard of public safety and should subject the offender to sharp discipline. It is an offense that should be checked and can be by proper police action.

GOV. RITCHIE'S ECONOMIC CREED.

Gov. Ritchie of Maryland was a principal speaker at the third international conference on bituminous coal, held the other day at the Carnegie institute at Pittsburgh. He agreed that the outlook for the coal industry is not all it might be. He had heard that the cure lay in governmental action and he rejected the advice as quackery. Self-help, self-regulation, and self-control in the industry he thought far more likely to succeed.

"Ruthless competition," he said, "we now find can often do more harm than good to the consumer if we see the picture as a whole. So it seems to me that in your industry a consolidation of mines into bigger units by ownership and co-association or the use of selling agencies with production adjusted to meet demand at a just price may not be against the public interest and may prove advantageous to both producer and consumer."

Mr. Ritchie advises each industry to put its own house in order. That is sound doctrine. If the government undertakes the task it will be badly done. The people of the United States will have to pay for government interference twice: once in excessive costs and once in taxes for the support of the bureaucracy engaged in regulating or operating industry.

NEXT YEAR'S ALL-AMERICANS.

Several of the football games today are regarded by the sports people as naturals in that tradition, experience in competition and the inherent qualities of rivalry select the teams opposing each other. Thus Southern California-Notre Dame, Michigan-Minnesota, Indiana-Purdue and Yale-Harvard. If nothing has arisen to change the schedule there is, however, a game booked for Sunday which is the natural of naturals. The champion New York penitentiary eleven plays the police team of Port Jervis, N. Y., and Alabama Pitts, new all-American quarter back, leads the Black and White for good old Sing Sing.

American life constantly enlivens itself. It cannot be held down to the drab and uneventful. There is too much imagination and too much yeast. Another season may find the country's undefeated team in Joliet or Atlanta. Amos Woodcock may make a ceremonial trip from Washington to see his best gunmen play a team of Volstead law victims in Leavenworth and Al Capone may be an all-American full back. And among the intersectional games the most interesting may be Southern Methodist at San Quentin.

Editorial of the Day

BUREAUCRACY'S TABOO OF ART.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The collector of customs at Chicago opened a package of imported pictures the other day and got a shock. Two artists, named James McNeill Whistler and Anders Zorn, had been so misguided as to etch portrayals of nude figures, he found, and a Chicago art dealer had had the effrontery to import copies of their works. The blushing collector hastily referred the matter to Washington. The customs bureau presumably was shocked, too, for it had forbidden entry of the etchings. It might be all right to import such horrid pictures for art galleries, but not for commercial purposes, it ruled.

By this decision, art dealers are left with sanction to deal, in their import departments, only in depictions of sunsets, trees, fully clad individuals, bowls of fruit, platters of fish and similar moral subjects. However, the patrons of this Chicago dealer need not be disappointed if they wish to own copies of the pictures they have admired on museum walls. They need only step over to the Art institute, where postcard size reproductions of these or similar Whistlers and Zorns have been on sale for some years, without hindrance of the customs bureau, the police or the anti-vice societies. If they wish to leave the realm of the artistic and invest in nudity for nudity's sake alone, there are hosts of "art magazines," sold without molestation from the news stands.

Under the old procedure, the customs bureau's ridiculous ruling against these recognized works of art by two master etchers would have stood. Now, however, by enactment of Senator Cutting's anti-censorship bill, the tabooed pictures are entitled to a court trial. Puritanism may triumph in bureaucratic circles, but it will not have so easy a time at a public hearing.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. RAA

This Week's Asbestos Lined Doughnut Goes to Uncle Sam.

We take real pleasure in announcing that the prize winner this week of the Line's Most Frightfully Mortifying Moment contest is awarded to dear old Uncle Sam of Washington, D. C. We present him with the prize, a lovely asbestos lined doughnut, for his letter presented herewith (turn rule and quote): "Dear Line: Might I tell you my Most Frightfully Mortifying Moment? It hasn't happened yet, but it probably will. You see, the League of Nations has asked Charley Dawes over in Paris to get the United States to make Japan stop the war in Manchuria. Well, suppose I tell Japan that she has no business taking Manchuria away from the Chinese and then Japan turns around and says: 'Say, Mister Uncle Sam, where did you get all that part of your country which is now occupied by Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada, Utah, and most of Colorado? And who started that "manifest destiny" thing anyhow?' Of course, I've got to go ahead and do as the League of Nations says, but, really, if Japan asks me that about our swiping all that southwestern territory, honestly I know it will be my Most Frightfully Mortifying Moment! Really, I just know I'll go right through the ground! Won't it be terrible? Yours truly, "UNCLE SAM."

SHORT STORY.

She smiled serenely, knowing all the time her sweet behavior only pantomime.

He watched her face and straightway fell in love, and never heard the beating wings above,

never saw the shadows on her breast for thinking how he'd put her heart at rest, for dreaming how her hands would smooth his brow,

and how he'd never, never break his vow.

Kiss her lips, my man, and keep your faith.
It should be easy when you love a wraith.

OH, BUT THERE'S a dreadful fate awaiting any prohibition enforcement officer whose superiors find him out. Take the case of Mr. Henry Dierks, who killed the seventeen year old boy out in Colorado because the lad had half a pint of wine in the possession. Oh, it's really awful what the prohibition department has done to Mr. Dierks. They've suspended him. Can you ee-maj-een!

"HURRY ON YOUR LINEBOOK of 1931," wired Prattling Priscilla to us yesterday. "I just can't wait for it. It is the most useful book I can possibly buy when it has your picture on the cover. I use it to frighten little Junior with when he is naughty. 'Look,' I say, pointing to your picture, 'look what will get you if you are a wicked, wicked boy!' And the little darling quits crying right away and behaves like a sweet lamb all the rest of the day. Do send the new Linebook as soon as it's off the press." We probably turned down Prattling Priscilla's poems about Lindbergh or, When Icy Breezes Blow or Welcome Death if Love Be Dead. But Junior looks at our picture and says, "Oh, booful, booful!"

Agricultural Report No. 6.

"O yeah, us farmers feel considerable encouraged," said my friend, the Skinridge Agriculturist, "with wheat that cost $1.25 a bushel to produce selling at fifty cents. Of course, most of us had to sell last summer at forty cents to meet the first installment on harvesting expenses. But, anyhow, as our Great Leader remarked the other day, the world seems to be turning to confidence, or something. Japan and China are fighting, but they are not at war. Gangsters and hoodlums are still doing a little desultory shooting and holdupping; but Uncle Sam has served notice on them that if they don't pay up their income taxes more promptly from now on they will be virtually put out of business. I tell you Uncle Sam is no trifler when it comes to heinous offenses. I look for Al Capony himself to be in Leavenworth before old age overtakes him. He appears to have a strong constitution.

"There are several favorable harbingers in the air. For instance, I see where Gloria Swanson has went and married an Irish Farmer. Such a merger at this time ought to put heart in all us tillers of the soil, especially widowers and bachelors.

"Yeah, my daughter is still training to be a movie performer. I send her to a picture show every Saturday night, and she's learning to speak a good deal of English. She's planning to get her hair platinumed soon, but I tell her that by the time she gets it to looking like chromium plate some other style will likely come along.

"She practiced up on playing a gangster's Moll for a while, and done pretty well at it, too, twisting her shoulders and drawing one corner of her mouth down; but she says that kind of stuff is out, now, positively. Old Homestead and East Lynne plays are coming in, she says, with plain country girls in distress in leading parts. Says she's been one of them all her life and fears she won't be able to act like one.

"That pile of bricks in the front yard? Why, that's to build my gas station out of next spring. I aim to put in seven tanks of gas—all the colors of the rainbow, you know. Got a slogan thought up already: 'Fuel for the Fast and Fastidious. Let us solve your color scheme for you. Wise guys harmonize. Also Chicken Dinners.'" EOLUS.

TYPES OF DRUNKARDS.

ROGER LEE pronounced alcohol highly inflammable, whether it is burned in a stove or discussed in a forum. Several years ago Dr. W. A. White demonstrated the truth of Dr. Lee's pronouncement by asserting that men became drunkards because they were mentally abnormal. It came to be accepted that Dr. White was right, and then came the battle over these questions: Is alcohol more sinned against than sinning? Does drunkenness, as an effect of mental abnormality, outrank it as a cause thereof?

Mr. R. R. Peabody has written a book entitled "The Common Sense of Drinking," in which he lands himself in the middle of these questions. He discusses only two types of drunkards. One is the chronic drunkard who must have his bracer before he is himself. The other is the "bad actor" drinker—the man who gets drunk and kills somebody or does some other outspoken, anti-social act.

The chronic he considers as in the worst situation of all. He is a drug addict, and he uses alcohol for its drug effect, just as the morphine and cocaine addicts use theirs. Left to himself, he is inevitably headed for destruction.

There is a common idea that the secret drinker, the man who is generally pickled, but who is never known to drink, is in the most helpless situation of all. Peabody does not agree with that opinion.

Another common opinion is that the man who stays on the water wagon for months and then starts drinking and does not stop until he lands in the gutter is one of the worst of all types. Peabody does not give any opinion as to this type.

The chronic drunkard drinks because he wishes to escape from the realities of life. His habit is a manifestation of a certain degree of cowardice, considerable lack of mental poise, and deficiency in personality qualifications.

The most important part of the book relates to the cure of drunkards of these types. They can be cured if they want to be; if they have the normal amount of common sense, the ability to persevere, and enough breadth of mind to admit the truth—to be honest with themselves.

Nothing is gained by putting medicine in a drunkard's liquor. If he lacks the desire and the determination to be cured the case is hopeless. There is not much use in the family trying to force a cure. The cure will not take unless the man, on his own initiative, seeks the cure.

Cure is a matter of mental and personality training. It cannot be the main objective of the training; either from the beginning or somewhere along the line the drunkard must acquire the determination to handle life and make his desire to handle his appetite merely a part of that which he is accomplishing.

When he has acquired the right attitude toward life his habit is cured almost spontaneously. The man must acquire an ambition to show that he is his own master. He must become a teetotaler. As Peabody puts it, "once a drunkard always a drunkard, or a teetotaler." There is no halfway stop.

OFFICE COLD FEET.

J. P. T. writes: You implied recently that there wasn't any handy cure for cold feet in the office. Now, I wonder.

Electricity is fairly cheap. How about putting a big fan or two in strategic places on the floor and shooting a heavy stream of cold foot air right up into the ceiling of hot air? Wouldn't it spread and crowd downward the hot air there? It occurred to me theoretically that this might be more effective than putting the fan overhead and blowing the hot air down as the foot cushion of cold air might dam that off the floor. Then, too, if the apartment below admits, how about a couple of gratings in the floor to let the warm air up through and the cold air down through?

Condemn a few architects to do their office work in just such a room and wear slippers, and it's dollars to doughnuts they would find a cure. As it is, 'tis not their feet that get cold.

IT WOULD NOT DO.

Mrs. L. H. writes: Could the transfusion of blood from the parents to the children protect them from infantile paralysis even though the parents never suffered that disease?

REPLY.

No.

The special value of serum injections is in preventing the spinal cord complications and muscle wasting rather than prevention of the disease. The serum used is that from people known to have had the disease.

As you see, the vaccination phases of the matter are far from satisfying.

ZONING ORDINANCE.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—I own a building in a residential district. Recently I attempted to remodel it and convert the front part into a store. The building department refused a permit on the ground that a store could not be built in a nonbusiness street in a residential district. My neighbor has a store. The building is being remodeled and is to be moved to the next lot. I believe moving the store to another lot where a new foundation is being erected constitutes a violation of the ordinance which guards against building a store in a residential district. Am I right? If so, why has he obtained a permit while I am unable to improve my property in a similar fashion?

J. T.

To remodel a building used for residence purposes into a store would be a clear violation of the zoning ordinance when your district is zoned for apartments. However, if there are existing stores, which were existing at the time of the passage of the zoning law [1923], these are called nonconforming uses and are legal. The store you mention is a nonconforming use, but will be brick veneered, which will greatly improve its appearance and be a benefit to the neighborhood. When this work will be completed it will still be a nonconforming use.

UNPAID INTEREST.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have a $1,500 first mortgage on our home with taxes and everything paid up to date. I have just returned from the hospital and went back to work to find that they had some one to take my place for cheaper wages. We have an interest note due Nov. 3 and cannot pay it. When I informed the bank, which is now closed, they spoke as though they could put us out whenever they saw fit. What action can they take? H. L. L.

Fifteen months are allowed for redemption from the foreclosure sale. There is a fair chance that the judge may refuse to put in a receiver until this period has expired. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Is the marriage legal in Illinois? We have been separated two and one-half years now and if either one wants to get married again must they get a divorce? J. M. S.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 21, 1915.

LONDON.—Greece must disband its army or put it into the field on the allies' side. This demand, a Malta dispatch says, has been presented to the Athens government. The entente powers do not insist that Greece fight in their interests, but they do require Greek assurances that they will not be interfered with in their Balkan campaign. If the Greek king fails to comply with the demands it is expected that the allies will resort to force at once.

PARIS.—French and English are constantly landing fresh troops at Saloniki. An Italian expedition is expected soon. Reports are current again that Rumania is about to grant permission for Russian troops to cross her soil into Serbia and Bulgaria.

PARIS.—Fighting with hand grenades in the "labyrinth" in Argonne and in Lorraine took place two days ago and artillery battles occurred yesterday at many points. The French cannon leveled the trenches of the Germans and the war office reports that the result of the battles is an advantage to the allies.

VIENNA.—Goritz is burning in many places from the steady rain of Italian shells. The Italians have thrown 3,000 shells into the city and many of the inhabitants have been killed. Property damage is enormous. From a military standpoint, however, the Italians have accomplished little.

WASHINGTON.—Four governments have taken up the search for Mrs. Walter Farwell of Chicago, correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, whose dispatches from the war zone have appeared under the name of Mildred Farwell. The United States, Germany, Greece, and Bulgaria, at the request of THE TRIBUNE, have undertaken to find and protect Mrs. Farwell, of whom nothing has been heard for several days. She was reported at Monastir, Servia, a few days ago by John T. McCutcheon, THE TRIBUNE cartoonist-correspondent.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 21, 1901.

CHICAGO.—For neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer, Capt. Luke P. Colleran, chief of detectives, has been discharged from the Chicago police department. The action of the civil service commission ends a police career of eighteen years without honor. Three allegations, first brought to the attention of the public in the columns of THE TRIBUNE—the Featherstone, the Dunlap, and the Barrett cases—were found to be true and these revelations led to the undoing of Colleran. His downfall probably means the disintegration of the detective bureau. Mayor Harrison's plans regarding the bureau are without definite shape, but it is possible there will be no central detective bureau and that all the detectives will be under the direction of the chief of police.

CHICAGO.—The long struggle between the striking machinists of the Allis-Chalmers works and the nonunion employés of the company resulted in the fatal shooting of Fred Trapp, supposed to have been a picket of the strikers, by Andrew Burkhauser, a nonunion employé. The shooting occurred when pickets attacked nonunion workers and Burkhauser fired after he had been struck from behind with an iron bar.

VIENNA.—The Neu Frei Presse prints a report that Queen Draga of Servia was shot in the street in Belgrade. Another rumor is that she committed suicide. It is impossible to confirm either report.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 21, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—William Jones, who is under arrest on suspicion of having shot at Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, while Guiteau was on his way in the prison van to the jail from the courthouse where he is on trial, denies he is the man who fired the shot. He is 29 years old and well connected. The police authorities now entertain great doubt that Jones is the man who tried to kill the assassin. Witnesses failed to identify him as the man who rode up on a horse and fired through an opening in the prison van.

LONDON.—Immense throngs gathered to hear Dwight L. Moody in Spurgeon's tabernacle for both morning and evening services. The bishop of Manchester preaching at Oldham referred to the visit of Moody and Sankey. He feared that some of the forms which religion was taking among well meaning but fanatical men were far from the spirit of soberness which pervaded Christ's teachings.

NEW YORK.—F. Theodore Walton, whose betting exploits in England the past season have gained him world-wide fame as "the American Plunger," arrived home. He says he won about $465,000 on the races in England. On Foxhall alone he gathered in $75,000 in three races.

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Lucy D. Fisk has sent a note to the New York Herald defending Jay Gould from assaults made upon him. She says Gould has been the only friend of Mr. Fisk who has responded to her actual needs and wants since Fisk's death.

THE OLD STORY.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—It is 1912 all over again. The statesmen are all chasing around making peace, while little wars are growing into bigger ones.

We had disarmament then. The czar of Russia was broke and could not afford to spend money on guns. So he became big hearted and wanted the world to disarm. Now we have Italy and the United States taking the place of the czar, and for the same reason.

In 1912 there was The Hague which deplored the Balkan situation and asked for mediation. Now we have the league making its own futile and ridiculous gestures.

The situation is so similar that it only requires two systems of alliances to complete the picture. Last time it was the world against Germany. The only foe the world will unite on now is Russia. China will be Russia's Austria. It will be a tremendous gamble for the powers of the world. BERNARD SANOW.

RELIEVING THE PRESSURE.

Cayuga, Ill., Nov. 17.—If I were a crook, a gangster or an anarchist, and became discouraged in my success as such I would at once turn to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for encouragement. I would have the walls of my room covered with the cartoons by Orr and every time I went forth on my dastardly work I would look at these cartoons and go forth encouraged and fired with a greater contempt against the enforcement of all laws in general.

I do not believe that any paper that will publish such cartoons or write such editorials as some of which appear in your paper is any better than the worst crook or gangster. W. B. STOTT.

HE WANTS A STAR.

Calumet City, Ill., Nov. 15.—Will you please ask some gentle reader to loan me a dry agent star for about an hour? I wish to do a Henry Dierks on my next door neighbor for drinking beef, iron and wine tonic.

JAMES H. BOWEN.

PROHIBITION KILLINGS.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Your remarkable cartoon, "In the Name of Government," is timely and most forcible in compelling serious attention to our national peril caused by federal prohibition laws. The cartoon is accurate in presenting conditions deplorable and intolerable. We may expect, however, a continuation of the killings, so long as this is a lesser offense than the possession of a few ounces of wine, and actuated, as these officers are, by immunity from punishment.

C. S. PAGE, D. D. S.

FEDERAL MURDER IN COLORADO.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—I very much enjoyed your editorial, "Federal Murder in Colorado." More power to you, and keep that certain case before the public eye till it has been completed, not in the rear pages but right in front, to show up some of these hypocrites who are supposed to be upholding the laws of the federal government. G. L. B.

WHAT A BLESSING.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—After reading about a prohibition killing, sensational divorce, or story of hard times, it is a relaxation to turn to the sport section for Herbie's latest amusing adventure. What a blessing a comic strip can be. S. E. B.

SUCH ROT.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—I am wondering how many readers of THE TRIBUNE enjoy reading such rot as the serial story by Vina Delmar, entitled "The Marriage Racket." In my opinion such reading matter leaves a dark brown taste in one's mouth. ALMA H. LAUDER.

THE RENAISSANCE.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—I should like to oblige "Demosthenes," who asks that the organization of an evening class in elementary Greek at University college, the downtown branch of the University of Chicago, be deferred until the spring quarter; but matters have gone too far. Already forty-six applications have been received and there is every likelihood that at least three evening classes in elementary Greek will be required to supply the demand.

However, "Demosthenes" need not be discouraged. The existence of these Greek classes will so intensify the present interest in Greek as to necessitate another elementary course, to be given in the spring quarter. All that "Demosthenes" need do as his share of the preliminary work, is to seek recruits among those of his acquaintance who show symptoms of maturity.

WE'RE GONNA GET GREEK.

WISECRACK.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Apropos the assertion of your correspondent that his ignorance of Greek did not militate against Mr. Hoover's elevation to eminence: I offer the thought that since every subject that comes within the purview as President seems to be Greek to him, it's rather a pity he didn't learn the language. S. J. BAYNE.

THAT WAS ANOTHER ONE.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—In THE TRIBUNE issue of Saturday, Nov. 14, there appeared a picture [on the back page] of Gilbert Stuart's painting of George Washington, alongside of which appeared Marshall Solberg, labeled as owner of the portrait. As I remember, when attending elementary school back in 1916 or '17, we school children collected a fund for the purchase of Gilbert Stuart's oil of George Washington at $75,000 for the Art institute. When I saw the above mentioned picture I was set to wondering how Mr. Solberg came into possession of the painting when it is supposed to be in the hands of the Art institute.

LOUIS C. SEEBERG.

A NATURAL.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—It has been said that a charity game between Northwestern and Notre Dame would more than pack the lake front stadium. If 100 is so, why should precedent, red tape and the rules of the Northwestern or Notre Dame athletic bodies stand in the way of such a game, which would contribute so mightily to so many poor unfortunates in these trying times, and is a far greater measure than a game between any other two teams would?

Unless individuals and organizations which are in position to do the utmost for charity by opportunities such as this respond, how can the common people, who are pinched to death almost by taxes and present conditions, be expected to be encouraged to give until it hurts? J. LAWRENCE.

ABOVE THE BELT.

Potomac, Ill., Nov. 17.—Me-ow! To one raised on the W. G. N. this estimate comes as somewhat of a surprise. We refer to the numerous and constant reference to a certain recently apprehended law evader as "Hoover's brother-in-law." Now, we have our own personal opinions of Mr. Hoover, but it seems to us, reared to decent politicians and straight hitting, that using such thrusts as this admits that direct journalistic methods do not serve the purpose of telling the world what W. G. N. thinks of Hoover. We were of the opinion that yours is an organ strong enough to express its convictions directly, with all hits above the belt. F. C.

KENTUCKY MINE BATTLE SLAYING TRIAL NEARS END

State Asks Death Despite Weak Case.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mount Sterling, Ky., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—The commonwealth of Kentucky through J. B. Snyder, coal company attorney from Harlan county and special attorney in the prosecutions growing out of the coal field disorders, tonight demanded the death penalty for Bill Burnett, the miner who shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Jesse Pace at Evarts on April 17 last.

JUDGE HENRY R. PREWITT.

Mr. Snyder made the first argument for the commonwealth at the close of the trial, following W. R. White, defense attorney, who asked the jury in Judge Henry R. Prewitt's court to turn Burnett loose on the plea of self-defense.

Commonwealth Attorney W. C. Hamlin and Capt. R. R. Golden of Pineville will address the jury in the morning and the case will be given into their hands about 11 o'clock.

Three Verdicts Possible.

Under the instructions of the court three verdicts are possible. These are guilty of willful murder, with a penalty of life imprisonment or death at the discretion of the jury, a manslaughter verdict with a penalty of from 2 to 21 years in the penitentiary, or a not guilty verdict on the grounds that the shooting of Pace was necessary to the protection of Burnett's life.

Few in the courtroom or in town seem to think that the evidence in the case warrants anything heavier than a manslaughter verdict, with a light sentence, but Mr. Snyder, after reviewing the evidence said:

"We demand the maximum sentence, the death penalty. The death sentence is deserved by any one who shoots an officer down in the discharge of his duty. Juries of the commonwealth must protect officers in the discharge of their duties."

He pictured the officers as brave fellows going into a dangerous situation. Mr. White pictured them as overbearing, driving the poor miners around without regard to the law. To his mind they are much like the hated company police of Pennsylvania and Colorado. Mr. Snyder tried to bring out that I. W. W. men were in the crowd of loafing miners, but this was ordered stricken by the court. Mr. White pictured them as peaceful, harmless men, sitting by the roadside spring, trying to get a little happiness out of life.

A verdict is expected by tomorrow afternoon.

21 Defense Witnesses.

The defense rested its case shortly before noon. The twenty-two witnesses for this side supported in the main the Burnett version of the shooting, which is that the trouble was started by Deputy Sheriff Frank White, who fired the first shot, and that when Pace entered the battle Burnett had already been shot and turned on his assailant in self-defense. One defense witness, Louis Venable, a boy who lives in the community house at Evarts, said that he saw Burnett throw up his hands at the time he was shot.

One of the most disinterested witnesses was B. C. Hammond, traveling salesman for a shoe company, who was in Evarts at the time of the shooting and testified that he saw a man fire the first shot, placing this man in the position that all the other witnesses, including the prosecution, have placed White. He did not know any of the men concerned.

Case Hangs on First Shot.

The state sought by cross-examination to show that both Venable and Hammond were in positions from which they could not see the shooting at the coal car. A map of the premises, produced by the prose[cu]tion, was placed on the floor in [front] of the jurors, but both these defense witnesses said the map was wrong that there was nothing to obstruct their vision.

The importance of the first shot is controversy lies in the question of in[tent] in the case. It does not control the fact that Burnett shot Pace, and he is on trial for this killing, not the White shooting. If the jurors believe the defense story, however, could not find a verdict of willful [mur]der and so much doubt has been raised on this point that the general street opinion is that an acquittal will result.

The state has sought to bring out as the underlying picture in the case that the crowd of miners at Evarts spring on April 17 were [strik]ers and union trouble makers. Shots by before that day there had been outrage on a nonunion worker. had been stripped and beaten, and a Negro had slapped his face as a final indignity. The officers were on their way to serve warrants in this affair and expected the shooting. That is why they were so heavily armed.

Keep Labor Angle Out of Case

The defense has succeeded in [keeping] most of this out of the case. has been brought out only that the [min]ers were close to the house of W. H. Jones, at that time a United Mine Worker organizer, and that most of them were not working. One of the defense witnesses admitted that he was a delegate to the Industrial Workers of the World. Jones, was later shown, was active in the defense of this case, helping to round up witnesses.

The defense introduced several character witnesses, farmers and miners, who swore that Burnett's reputation was that of a man of peace. It remains for the jury to decide between the testimony of the deputy sheriffs, which make Burnett the instigator and that of the defense, which places the burden on the officers. There is a clear cut division here, ten witnesses swearing one way and ten another.

48 POLICE GUARD WALL STREET TO FOIL BOMB PLOT

Reds Threaten to Blast Morgan Offices.

New York, Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Forty extra policemen, some in plain clothes, some in uniform, guarded the J. P. Morgan offices, the sub-treasury, and the stock exchange today following an alleged communist threat against property in the financial district. The day passed without incident.

COMMANDER MULROONEY. [Acme Photo.]

Who sent the threat or who called for the extra police detail was not established. Police Commissioner William Mulrooney and Chief Inspector John Sullivan admitted they had augmented the Wall street special squad, and the commissioner said the extra force will be maintained indefinitely, but why the unusual precaution was taken was not made clear.

Denies Requesting Guards.

The commissioner said he was acting on a request from the department of justice in Washington. On the other hand, the department of justice denied it had made any request.

Rumors as to the reason for the extra guards were many and varied. One was that an anti-fascist sympathizer had written to the Morgan firm, threatening to blow up the bank if any loan to Italy should result from the Grandi visit; another that undercover men for the police department had discovered a city-wide communist plot to destroy capitalistically owned property.

Members of the Morgan firm would not discuss the matter. All day their building the sub-treasury and the stock exchange were surrounded by a number of uniformed policemen and by city detectives, in addition to the usual corps of ex-marines in uniform and in plain clothes hired by private agencies.

Receives Threatening Letter.

There was a report that Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the emergency unemployment relief committee, had received a threatening letter signed, "Communist," but at his office and at the committee headquarters representatives of the banker said they had heard nothing of it. They said if any extra police had been put on in the building they were not aware of it.

FIVE SEIZED IN BURGLARY.

Five colored youths were seized early yesterday morning in a vacant apartment at 704 East 51st street, as they were attempting to cut a hole through the floor into the S. F. Ackin Dress shop below. A burglar alarm brought two squads of policemen to the scene.

CONFESSION IS INVALID; DEATH CHARGE DROPPED

William Girten, 38 years old, 5334 South Hermitage avenue, was freed of a murder charge yesterday in Judge Philip L. Sullivan's Criminal court when a confession he made as to the murder of William Lewis, 26 years old, 6803 South Winchester avenue, a chauffeur, was ruled inadmissable as evidence. Girten, according to the evidence, signed the confession while suffering from delirium tremens. The prosecution had no other evidence to the stabbing on April 7.

JOYCE FACING NEW SUIT FOR DEBTS OF WIFE

James Stanley Joyce, millionaire lumber man who was ordered last week to pay a $16,733 jewelry bill contracted by his estranged wife, Mrs. Nelle M. Joyce, faces another suit brought on by her shopping tours, in the Municipal court. Judge William E. Helander yesterday set for hearing on Jan. 11 the suit of Hattie Carnegie, Inc., of New York, against Joyce for $1,500. The suit grows out of a $1,099 bill contracted in 1929 by Mrs. Joyce for hats, sports apparel and gowns.

ALDERMAN RAPS BILLBOARDS AS PUBLIC MENACE

Hodes Says City Should Abolish Signs.

Billboards in apartment and residential districts were attacked as crime breeders and eyesores yesterday by Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] in a speech before the Women's City club. He urged that the city banish the thousands of billboards which have been erected illegally in residential areas. The city's purpose would be preventing crime and "dressing up" Chicago for the 1933 World's Fair.

Ald. Hodes quoted five grounds, cited by the city some years ago before the Illinois Supreme court, for his assertion that billboards in such districts are a menace to public order and health.

Gives Five Reasons.

The grounds were:

1. Billboards offer protection to disorderly and lawbreaking persons.
2. Residential districts are not afforded as full police protection as are business districts, and billboards hamper police supervision.
3. Women and children are on the streets unaccompanied in larger number and more frequently in residential districts and crimes against them are encouraged by billboards.
4. Billboards provide a front for dumping of refuse and garbage which is a menace to public health.
5. Disorderly and immoral practices proceed under the cover and shelter of billboards.

Different in Business Sections.

A difference must be drawn, Ald. Hodes said, between billboards erected in industrial or business sections, and those put up in residential and apartment house districts. Frequently the latter are set up in defiance of zoning regulations, he said.

"They are an unharmonious note in the fine, conservative residential and apartment districts," Ald. Hodes said. "There can be no justification for their existence in such districts. The thousands of illegal billboards in Chicago should be removed, and ordinances passed. If necessary, to make it impossible in the future to blight such areas with the billboard nuisance.

"These illegal billboards savor of a frontier community, and have no place in any city beautiful plan. Chicago is striving at present to present its best appearance to the world in 1933. Strict and complete enforcement of ordinances preventing the erection of illegal billboards will do a great deal to give Chicago the physical beauty it wants."

COURT BLOCKS ORDER TO CLOSE RADIO STATION

The Federal Circuit Court of Appeals late yesterday granted a temporary restraining order to radio station WCHI which will permit the station to operate pending the outcome of an appeal. The station was ordered off the air by the federal radio commission for failure to serve public interest and for violation of the radio regulations, and the order was to have taken effect at 2 o'clock this morning.

Maj. J. F. Haines, president of the Peoples Pulpit association, operators of the station, sought an injunction from Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday. Judge Barnes held that he was without authority to act on the ruling but granted an appeal to the higher court.

FOUR INDICTED IN KANE COUNTY KIDNAPING CASE

The Kane county grand jury returned four John Doe indictments yesterday at Geneva before Circuit Judge John K. Newhall in connection with the kidnaping on Oct. 20 of William Ollinger, part owner of the Fox Gardens, a roadhouse in North Aurora.

Ollinger was kidnaped and held for $100,000 ransom, the grand jurors were told, but was released five days later after his partners, Clarence Schickler, Matthew Kersch and Joseph Gleason had paid $7,000. Ollinger and the partners were questioned by the grand jurors, but denied that they knew the kidnapers. State's Attorney George D. Carbary said that he expected arrests next week.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, is assisting the investigation. The four roadhouse owners were quizzed about their acquaintance with one "Getaround" Riley, said to have been at one time a partner of Kersch and Schickler in various enterprises, but denied that they had identified him among the kidnapers.

Judge Newhall, in ordering the grand jury to investigate the kidnaping, also directed that it investigate "breeding spots of crime" in Kane county. The jury called before it Mayor John Erickson of North Aurora and other town officials as well as a number of gamblers and bootleggers.

Her husband, Harmon Hummel of Chicago; her parents, and two brothers survive.

GASTON B. MEANS IN AGAIN, THIS TIME FOR HITTING POLICEMAN

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice investigator and a prominent figure in the senate investigation of former Attorney General Harry Daugherty, was arrested in his home near here late last night on charges of assaulting an officer and disorderly conduct.

He spent the night in the police substation jail at Bethesda, Md., and was released this morning on $600 bond for his appearance in court in Rockville, Md., on Nov. 28.

According to police, Mrs. Means called the substation last night and asked that an officer be sent to the Means home, as her husband had threatened to kill her. Arriving at the residence, police declared, they tried to settle the dispute between Means and his wife, when the formerly suddenly struck one of the policemen.

Means has served two 2 year sentences in Atlanta penitentiary running concurrently, one for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and one for attempted bribery. He is the co-author of a book purporting to tell the facts of the Harding administration which was recently repudiated by his collaborator.

ASKS INCREASE IN CITY'S CIVIL SERVICE STAFF

The first report that J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, has recommended an increase in the personnel of a city department as the result of his survey was heard yesterday in the city hall. In all of Jacobs' other efforts in preparing estimates for the 1932 budget he has recommended drastic reductions in the number of employés outside of police and fire departments.

The additional employés, according to the reports, are to be added to the 33 now carried on the rolls of the civil service commission. They will be a chief of the examining division at $4,200 a year; a service rating examiner, $3,600; a classification examiner, $4,200, and a junior examiner, $2,480.

The duties of the classification examiner, the reports say, will be to visit the city departments to determine if all employés are doing the work that their grade and rank in the civil service provides for them.

SEEK TO OBTAIN FREE SERVICE ON HEATER CHANGES

Members of the subcommittee of the city council's health committee yesterday decided to ask the corporation counsel if the committee can force the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company to pay for re-locating gas water heaters that are now illegally installed in bathrooms.

Following orders of Health Commissioner Bundesen, the gas company is disconnecting 73,000 gas heaters. Workmen have been disconnecting the heaters at the rate of 700 a day.

Members of the subcommittee asserted that 22,000 of the heaters are not dangerous because they were connected with flues to the outside. W. G. Rudd, vice president of the gas company, said the heaters with flues also will be removed.

Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], chairman of the subcommittee, said that tests had proved that the heaters with outside flues were not dangerous and that tests on other types will be conducted.

DOUGLAS FLOOD WINS CONSULAR SERVICE TEST

Then he will return to Washington for further instruction and reassignment. POISON GIVEN GIRL DURING 2 MONTHS, TOXICOLOGIST SAYS

Pekin, Ill., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Mildred Mason died of poison administered over a period of two months, a toxicologist's report to Coroner A. E. Allen of Tazewell county said today.

The report of William D. McNally, Chicago toxicologist, contradicted the statement of the girl's mother and confessed slayer, Mrs. Alice Mason, who said she had given the child only two doses of poison a week apart.

The woman today was subjected to steady questioning by State's Attorney Louis P. Dunkelberg, who refused to take time for lunch while examining the prisoner. Clinton Armstrong, neighbor and friend of Mrs. Mason at Delavan, and his son, William, waited in the sheriff's office for their turn. Armstrong had been arrested Thursday for questioning, but was not held in jail overnight.

The state's attorney was endeavoring to discover which of the various stories the accused woman has told is true. She implicated several others in her confession that she poisoned her husband a year ago and her 12 year old daughter last August. The prosecutor intimated he might be ready to present the case to the grand jury tomorrow.

Eugenie and Such Hats to Give Way to Fisherman's

New York, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Those arrogant little hats with sweeping plumes that reflect the elegance of the long ago will be replaced at the winter resorts by tiny fishermen's hats—rakish and chic. These bonnets, revealing more than half of the head, were first introduced at the French watering places by a little old woman who lives in the village of Saint Tropez. They are made of loosely woven straw.

ASK SEARCH FOR GIRL.

FILIPINOS CHEER DAVIS AT MANILA FAREWELL FETE

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, Nov. 20.—A farewell banquet was given tonight by the entire cosmopolitan community of Manila for Gov. Gen. Dwight F. Davis, who begins a leave of absence tomorrow.

A Filipino, dressed as a poor laborer, presented a humidor to the governor in behalf of the masses, saying that they were most appreciative of his sympathy and understanding.

More than 1,000 persons, predominantly Filipinos, attended. They rose spontaneously time after time to toast Mr. Davis and cheered incessantly at every mention of his name. The band of the Philippine constabulary played "Auld Lang Syne" at the end. Mr. Davis expressed his desire to return to the Philippines if at all possible, but stated that he would cherish the memories of his administration under all conditions.

Dies in Electric Chair for Murder of His Wife

Columbus, O., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Tilby Smith, self-confessed plotter of the murder of his wife, Clara, forfeited his life in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary tonight.

CORRECTION

Yesterday's Chicago Tribune advertisement quoted the retail milline rate of the Chicago Daily Times as follows:

Retail milline rate in effect during the greater part of the six months' period ended March 31, 1931	Retail milline rate in effect during the greater part of the six months' period ended September 30, 1931
$.84	$1.07

This was an error which the Tribune regrets. An old Times rate card which had not come to the attention of the Tribune shows a higher line rate than that used in calculating one of the milline rates. The correct statement of retail milline rates is as follows:

Retail milline rate in effect during the greater part of the six months' period ended March 31, 1931	Retail milline rate in effect during the greater part of the six months' period ended September 30, 1931

WINE JUICE AND WILLEBRANDT ANGER JUDGE

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Judge Frank Smith criticized California grape concentrate manufacturers and chided their counsel, Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former special assistant attorney general, at the trial today of a suit to condemn six cans of the material.

The grape concentrate had been seized by police in the store of Herbert Stein. The court took the case under advisement.

"I can't see why the people of California should be favored in this jurisdiction," he said. "They wink their eyes at prohibition out there while forcing this same law on the east. These lily-white western states are not going to manufacture a potable drink and retail it in this state even though they have Mrs. Willebrandt behind them."

Defense counsel contended sale of the concentrate was not a violation of the prohibition law because purchasers were directed to add one-tenth of one per cent of benzoate to destroy fermentation.

"Why doesn't your friend Mrs. Willebrandt put the benzoate in her juice," Judge Smith replied, "instead of chasing her customers to a drug store to buy it? Anyhow, the majority of the people wouldn't know just how much one-tenth of one per cent was."

MARCONI'S NEW LOW WAVE RADIO PHONE APPROVED

GENOA, Italy, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Government wireless experts today approved Senator Guglielmo Marconi's experiments with radio telephone transmission on a wave length of only 50 centimeters—about a foot and a half.

The inventor calls the extremely short wave lengths "quasioptical" because they behave practically like light waves. The new apparatus, on which he has been working for many months, will be used to connect Italy by telephone with its island possessions.

Charles True Adams on Official Contract Bridge

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

It was Kit Lennow's twenty-sixth birthday. She'd worked four years as receptionist in a swanky hotel and she felt herself in a groove. When an East Africa guest offers a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Seydoret, Kenya, she gladly accepts. Theo Sable was married but Kit wanted him more than anything in the world. They'd been in love, but their romance was broken because of his mother. Kit sails on the Bride's Boat. Jess North is on board, too. Joey is going out to be married.

INSTALLMENT VI.

SUNRISE AT SEA.

At dawn there was generally a tiny breeze. Hardened travelers told her that this was a comparatively cool passage. But it was hot enough for Kit.

She slipped on a white silk dress over practically nothing and went up on the saloon deck. It was a gray morning. A heavy haze hung low, and she could see nothing, although she knew they were skirting the Arabian coast. But it was true—blessed thought!—there was a stir in the dense air; a breeze blew over the rail, the haze shimmered and parted, as a miraculous shower, that she knew to be a shoal of flying fish, darted through the air. Some hawsers were swabbing another deck, and their low crooning song came to her ears. She was filled with the mystery and the promise of unknown lands. Where was she going to? What did it hold for her—that land of Africa?

Just then a door opened immediately behind her, and closed with a click. She looked around. She was just by one of the luxury apartments of the boat.

"Look—we're just going to see the sun rise!"

that were called "millionaire suites." She had never seen any of their occupants. She supposed they kept to themselves.

But the man who came out of the door was not unknown to her. She recognized him at once. It was the man she had collided with in the train from Paris, when she had dropped her bag and papers and he had picked them up.

Once or twice she had remembered his eyes, that were so brilliantly blue and yet so cold. And the surprise she had thought she saw in them. It had roused her curiosity. But she had had no idea that he was on board.

He advanced towards her, his white suit making his handsome, ironical face more bronzed than before. He was hatless, and she saw that his hair was cut short and almost black with a few white threads about the temples. He greeted her with the same quizzical smile.

"You have come out to get a chance to breathe, too?" he asked in the rich, vaguely disturbing voice that she also remembered.

For some reason she felt uncomfortable and her voice stuck in her throat. "I don't expect to find anybody here."

"Well, there isn't anybody—but me." He gave a little laugh, careless and debonair. "Why did you look at me as if I were a ghost when I came out?"

"Because I didn't know you were on board," she replied, flushing, because she felt so awkward and was ashamed of it. It might look to him as if she had come here on purpose. His eyes, with the blaze and the coldness in them, were observing her with such consummate detachment.

"You remember me then? I am so glad of that. Fact is, I wasn't on board until a day or two ago. I discovered at Marseilles that I had some business in Cairo. So I flew over there and joined the boat at Port Said. My name is Crowhurst."

"Miss is Lenoure."

Strange, she suddenly found herself at her ease. His manner was so impersonal. Light, and yet there was strength behind it. His face was nice, too. Jaded to a degree, yet there was something picturesque in the blunt features. Kit was reminded of prints of guards' officers at the time of Waterloo. A face that had been handed down. There was something very distinguished about him. A paradox—and a personality! Her experience at the Ritz House hotel had taught her to pick out race and breeding at sight.

"I hope we are going to be friends, Miss Lenoure."

She drew in her horns at that. No so fast! He thought she knew nothing about men and the world.

His next abrupt question, however, made her laugh.

"Are you one of the brides on this boat, may I ask?"

"No! What makes you ask that?"

"Because you might so very easily be, and I wanted to know who the lucky man is."

His manner was so bold but so natural that she couldn't take offense. And his voice was disconcerting in itself, so that it took all her wits to listen to it without showing embarrassment. One of those voices that seem to touch the ear through the spine. And then it occurred to her that she was telling rather false colors. He was occupying what had been pointed out to her by Jess North as the most expensive quarters on the boat. He was obviously rich, and something more—big. She could think of no other word. He didn't know that she was going out to work in a hotel. It didn't make a difference.

"No," she said, rather stiffly. "I am going to a place called Soydoret in Kenya to take up a post as reception clerk in a hotel there."

"O, are you, by Jove?" His smile was no longer quizzical, but the interested look was still in his eyes. "How splendid! Forgive me if I was rude, but I've heard there are several brides on this boat. It's one of the ports of East Africa, you know. We're all interested in these girls—quite touchy, I call them!"

"The girl who shares my cabin is going out to be married," said Kit. "To Kambesa—as soon as she gets there."

"O, is she?" But there was no further interest in his voice, although he had just said that "the Bride's Boat" was one of the features of East Africa. "Look—we're just going to see the sun rise!" He pointed straight ahead, where a pearly iridescence was breaking through the mist above a bar of ink black cloud. "You're like me," he added, "you think this is the best time on board ship—when there's not another soul about!"

Just then footsteps sounded on their right, and an elderly man in flannel shorts and a shirt came walking along at a great pace, as if he were training for a race. He had a pleasant red face and grizzled hair and mustache. Kit knew him by sight. He was a friend of one of the women who had been especially nice to her, and who lived in Soydoret.

He pulled up sharp at the sight of the girl and her companion, whom he evidently knew.

"Morning, colonel!" said the tall man, and his smile struck Kit as somehow different. "You're the devil for keeping yourself fit, aren't you?"

"Morning, Crowhurst!" was the answer in a cheery voice. "We heard you were on board at Port Said and were wondering what had become of you. Haven't seen anything of you for donkey's ages, have we? Are you coming out for a spell?"

"Yes, for a bit. I don't quite know how long."

"And you're coming our way this time? Last time we never set eyes on you."

"Yes, I think I shall be coming your way this time, colonel. We must get together and have some good times."

Kit knew that he was looking directly at her, but just at that moment the sun burst forth in splendor and blinded her. An inexplicable confusion overcame her. She murmured that she must get back to her cabin and hurried away.

Good Morning!

WHAT a common occurrence it's becoming nowadays for the movie fan to be taken into the newspaper office and shown what, presumably, makes the wheels of our metropolitan dailies go round!

The scenarist's hectic idea of reporters, photographers, publishers, managing and city editors is apt to become the public's—which in a way is funny. For newspaper people are really just, folks with two arms and legs and a pair of eyes. Their hours are sometimes different from those of the rank and file, but as a rule they have homes and fathers and mothers and children, and drink orange juice in the morning and yell at football games and enjoy matinées and clean linen much like the rest of the civilized world. They fall in love and out of it. They get sick and they have thrills and heartaches. They are game and once in a while yellow—even as you et al. Just hard working citizens, you see, who look forward to their pay checks and spend or save them as Fate doth decree.

Essays aside, let's contemplate "Sob Sister."

The heroine is a girl tabloid reporter, famous for her faculty of scooping the most seasoned of her male competitors. She is the bête noire of them all, particularly Garry Webster of the Times—who proceeds to fall in love with her the first time the two meet socially.

Their affaire d'amour is interrupted by assignments, punctuated — and punctured!—by misunderstandings. One of these last—a whopper!—due to leaves from a diary Jane is supposed to have stolen from Garry, almost breaks up the romance forever.

Only—it doesn't. You know how they fix those things in the movies . . . !

The action is hectic and, at times, far from credible, but it's exciting and passes an hour away entertainingly.

You'll like Linda Watkins as Jane. Pretty girl! Smart one, too. But James Dunn, who was such a wow in "Bad Girl," proves a disappointment. Where on earth did all that personality he seemed to have go to? He's not daft—just saltless. Other rôles are handled ably enough and the director did his best by a story that would never make St. Peter fall out of heaven.

See you tomorrow!

Stop! Look! Listen!

Today's your day to HAVE FUN doing a GOOD DEED! BECAUSE—

Between the hours of 11 a. m. and 1 p. m., all the motion picture theaters of Chicago and Cook county will give a benefit performance, the entire receipts of which will be donated to the joint emergency relief fund. This necessitates an extra performance being given in many neighborhood and suburban theaters, which, as a rule, don't open until later.

During this time all union labor is given gratis. Theater employés, film companies, theater owners, equipment companies, etc., have pledged $60,000. It is expected—if fans do their share, which you will, won't you?—that the benefit performance will bring in $40,000, thus raising the total to $100,000.

MARK THIS! There will be no solicitation of any kind in the theaters. When you've paid for your ticket you're all through spending money.

If your children usually go to a matinée on Saturday, why not scoot them over to the movie house for the 11 to 1 show?

This ought to be a big day for you and the neighbor who needs a hand.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

In the play of yesterday's play-a-problem South turned cave man and followed the instincts of some remote ancestor. Only in this case the weapon was a spade and not a club. The hand was:

♠—9
♥—3,9,5,4
♦—K,Q,J,10,7,5

WEST
♠—2
♥—8,7,6
♦—8,6,4,3

♠—K,Q,J,3
♥—Q,2
♦—A,9,2

SOUTH
♠—A,10,8,7,6,5,4
♦—None
♣—K,2

East dealt and bid a spade. This was a great shock to South, but he recovered sufficiently to realize that he had three and one-half high card tricks and a biddable heart suit and so overcalled with a bid of two hearts. West passed. North, though sorely tempted to show his nice diamond suit, decided that discretion dictated a heart raise, and so bid three hearts. East passed; South bid four hearts. All passed.

West opened the ♠ 2, dummy played the 9, East the J, and South the A. South then led the ♣ 4. West played the ♦ 3 (it was useless for West to trump, since dummy held higher trumps). Dummy trumped with the ♥ 4, and East played the 2. Dummy now led the ♦ K, East covered with the A. South trumped with the ♥ 2, West playing the ♦ 4. South now led the ♣ 5, West played the ♦ 6, dummy trumped with the 8, and East played the ♠ Q. Dummy returned the ♦ Q, East played the 2, South discarded the ♣ 2, West playing the ♦ 8. Dummy then led the ♦ J, East played the 9, South discarded the ♣ K, and West trumped with the ♥ 6.

South, of course, expected a trump by West, but the ♣ K was a loser anyway that might just as well be gotten rid of at this point. West, hoping South might still have a club, led his ♣ A which South trumped with the ♥ 10. South now led the ♠ 6, West playing the ♣ 4. Dummy trumped with the ♥ 9, East playing his last spade—the K. Dummy now led the ♥ J, East covered with the Q, South played the K, and West the 7. South put down the ♥ A, clearing the suit, and his three remaining spades were good.

At some tables where this hand was played the bidding varied. Some Norths, after South's two heart bid, figured up five supporting tricks for the partner's heart bid. Since North holds four hearts, his singleton spade is worth one and one-half supporting tricks, his doubleton club one supporting trick, his four card heart suit one-half supporting trick, and he has in addition two high card tricks in diamonds. On this basis he jumped South's two heart bid to four. After East passed, South, being much encouraged by North's jump assist, bid six hearts. Of course, they made the six and earned a large bonus which, to my mind, was scarcely deserved. It is only because of a fortunate distribution of the opponents' cards that North and South are able to make six odd at this hand and there is nothing in the bidding which could definitely show either North or South that this distribution exists.

At certain other tables North heeded the temptation to bid three diamonds over his partner's two hearts. This in no way affected the final result, as South immediately went back to three hearts and North then raised to four.

Have you sent in your entry to the Golden Card tournament? It is only ten days off which means that you only have about a week to get in your entry and be sure of receiving your equipment.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card, cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as 2, H, K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

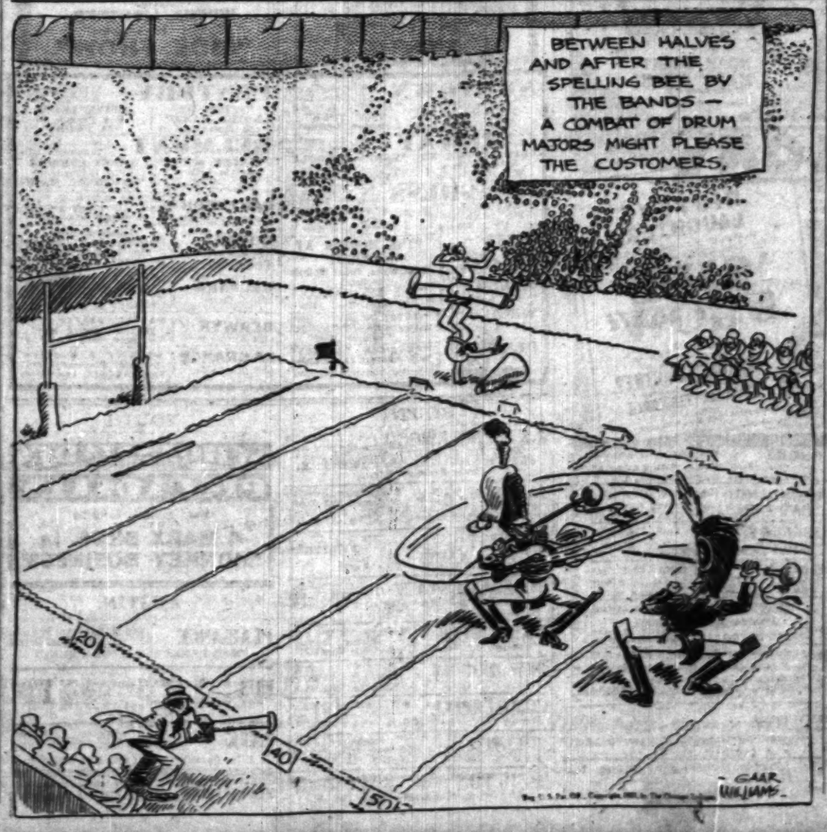
SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



Golden Card Contest Draws More Backers

Club Women and Business Men to Take Part.

NOW is the time to get into the Chicagoland Golden Card tournament sponsored by The Tribune for the benefit of the Joint Emergency Relief fund and the Hungry School Children fund.

Play will be on Dec. 5, but orders for the prearranged packs of cards are rolling in, and it may be that there will be a shortage of the finest specially printed tournament sets by that date. Individuals, clubs, hotels, and business organizations already have announced they will take many hundreds of packs.

Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, yesterday urged all member clubs to hold their own Golden Card tournaments.

"This is a wonderful opportunity to aid the cause of relief," she said, "and we who know the needs of the poor should take advantage of it. It would please me a great deal if every club of women in the county had its tournament on Dec. 5."

Frederick J. Ashley, director of public relations for the Association of Commerce, announced that the association would organize a party, the play to be in the organization headquarters.

"I am taking great pleasure in doing my part to make the Golden Card tournament a success," he said. "That represents, too, I think, the attitude of our members and directors. It is an easy and effective way to roll up thousands of small contributions to relief into a pile of dollars. Almost everybody who plays bridge can afford the small fee, and the response should be tremendous."

Three judges, Philip Finnegan, Harry B. Miller, and Michael McKinley, are to be guests of Attorney Frank E. Cantwell for the tournament. They have all set to work brushing up on their bridge under direction of Mrs. Grace Quinlan, so their handling of their bids and play will be expert.

The tournament has the indorsement of the Joint Emergency Relief fund and in particular of Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, director of the women's division. She mailed out letters yesterday to all clubs in her section, urging them to hold Golden Card tournaments of their own and promising credit toward the honor list if they do so.

Perhaps more important yet is the fact that the poor who will be aided by the big fund and the little school children whose parents can't afford to feed them will indorse it 100 per cent. They need the money and the bridge players of Chicagoland can help while having a good time themselves.

All players have to do now is to send in orders and remittances for the cards. Four pre-arranged packs are necessary for each table. The price is $2 a pack, or $8 a table. As the cost of the cards and printing will be only 40 cents a pack, or less, each table will represent $6.40 of relief. The Tribune assumes all other expenses and guarantees to have the cards ordered in the hands of the donors well in advance of the day of play.

Rules are exceedingly simple and will be explained in these columns frequently before Dec. 5. Charles True Adams, bridge expert of The Tribune, will discuss them over W-G-N, and will make at last minute résumé of them at 8:15 on tournament night. Play begins at 8:30, either at auction or contract, at the option of the players.

Those who send in scores most nearly representative of perfect play will be invited to a final tournament on Dec. 10. There the winners will be awarded a Chicagoland championship and handsome trophy cups.

Women Crowd Cooking School; Learn of Fish

Stuffing and Baking Are Taught as Art.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

WEST SIDE women regretfully voiced their farewell to their own session of The Tribune School of Cookery late yesterday afternoon. But before the last class came to an end more than 5,000 housewives who had packed Guyon's Paradise ballroom to the last inch of space all afternoon, chorused their demands for more cooking schools with Miss Ida M. Chitwood, nationally known food expert, as their instructor.

As had been the case during the three previous classes of the west side session, women started gathering early in the morning at the entrance of the ballroom. They didn't seem to mind the downpour of rain, but they were grateful when the doors were opened and they were allowed to enter long before the hour the program was to start. By 1 o'clock, however, the ballroom was filled to the last seat and ushers were dashing about hunting additional chairs for those standing. At 4 o'clock women were seen grouped about the locked doors at the entrance.

As Mrs. Chitwood, conductor of the school, came on the stage after being introduced by Mary Meade, Tribune home economics editor, the great ballroom thundered with the applause of the housewives who had come to learn her secrets of cookery.

The first dish she prepared was stuffed baked fish.

"I use a three pound red snapper," Mrs. Chitwood began. "And I bone the fish. You can do this easily by taking a sharp pointed paring knife and slipping down around the bones.

"Now I take three hard boiled eggs and chop them in large pieces in a bowl. I add one tablespoonful of finely chopped onion, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and two tablespoonfuls of butter or margarine. Maybe you use crackers for the stuffing, but I use two cupfuls of cornflakes and three slices of bread, broken in large pieces. I add just enough water to stick the material together.

"Roll this material into balls and stuff into the fish with your hands rather than with a spoon. Fill the cavity entirely and fasten the opening with toothpicks, or sew or bind with clean cord. Place the fish in a baking dish brushed with fat. Pour over it two cupfuls of tomato juice. This is the sauce. Sprinkle around the fish green sweet peppers, a little parsley, rings of sliced onion, and salt to taste. Bake in a 400 degree oven until the fish turns white through and through, or about 45 minutes."

Mrs. Chitwood then gave the method for testing when the fish is done. She inserted a sharp paring knife in the fish to the bone area, then pulled the incision apart. If pink veins were visible the fish was not done.

Frank Bennett, with Mrs. Cathryn Bennett at the piano, led the community singing at the opening of the program. Others appearing during the entertainment hour, introduced by Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, were Ruth Streeter, soprano, and Henry Phillips, tenor; the Caroline Enceil trio from the Chicago conservatory, and dance novelties by dancers from the Ned Wayburn dance studios.

The climax of the afternoon came with the award of the grand prizes. The electric refrigerator went to Mrs. H. C. Omsberg, 3009 Logan boulevard. Mrs. Helen Boston, 4143 North Laramie avenue, was the winner of the electric washing machine. Other electric articles went to the following: Mrs. T. H. Fitzpatrick, 4214 West Grand avenue, mixer; Beatrice Lunasek 4623 North Harding avenue, percolator; Mrs. Lucille O'Neill, 1711 Nashville avenue, toaster, and Mrs. W. H. Mager, 5355 Iowa street, iron.

The final sessions of the school will be held at the Coliseum next Monday and Tuesday, both afternoon and evening.

Movie Gossip as It's Heard in Hollywood

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Carter De Haven Sr., veteran actor, passed out the cigars yesterday. A baby boy weighing 6 pounds 3 ounces was born to Mrs. Betty Byrd De Haven, musical comedy actress, at California Lutheran hospital. The couple were married in Chicago in October, 1929. De Haven's 20 year old son, Carter Jr., was married last year to Sadie Campbell, New York show girl.

William Wallace Reid Jr., 14½ year old son of the late Wally Reid, film idol of years ago, has taken a picture test. Wallace Jr. is in his third year at Fairfax High school.

The youth took the screen test at the instance of Carl Laemmle Jr., executive at Universal studio, where his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Davenport Reid, has figured in many pictures, originally as actress and later as a woman director and producer.

Wally Reid died nine years ago, leaving his widow, the son and an adopted daughter, Betty, now 13 years of age.

After months of negotiation, the $130,000,000 suit for infringement of "talkie" patents bought last February by Orlando E. Kellum and Mary G. Kellum, his wife, against motion picture producing corporations has been settled out of court "for a substantial sum." The plaintiffs' attorney, James M. Shields, moved that Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick dismiss the case on stipulation of counsel that an agreement had been reached.

The defendants included were Warner Bros., Inc.; Paramount Public, Inc.; Pathe, Inc.; Columbia Pictures, Inc.; Consolidated Film Industries, Fox Film corporation, Fox Theaters, General Theater Equipment company, Technical Color company, First National Pictures, and six other concerns.

Miss Chapman to Make Debut on December 28

Two of the most important debut parties of the season will be on Monday, Dec. 28—a dinner dance at the Casino, given by Mr. and Mrs. John A. Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Fowler McCormick for Miss Marion Chapman, and a ball at the Edgestone for Miss Louise Clarke, at which Mrs. A. Harris Whiting will be hostess.

The dinner dance will be Miss Chapman's formal bow to society; Miss Clarke made her debut at a tea at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Charles F. Gunning, 6 Scott street, on Nov. 6.

Mrs. Edward L. Cudahy and Miss Helen Gurley are planning a luncheon for Miss Clarke on Sunday, Dec. 27, at the Casino before the performance of the Harvard Instrumental clubs' concert at the Studebaker. Monday night the clubs will give a concert in the new Kuppenheimer Memorial hall at the Skokie school in Winnetka, and many dinners are being planned on the north shore to precede this performance. Barrett Wendell Jr. has recently been elected president of the Harvard club of Chicago, and serving on the committee in charge of the Chicago performances of the Instrumental clubs are Kellogg Fairbank Jr., Holland Johnston, John W. Valentine, and Donald McClure.

The Princeton Triangle club is departing from its custom of giving only an evening performance here, and this year, on Saturday, Dec. 26, it will give a matinée as well as a night performance. There will be numerous luncheon and dinner parties preceding the "shows," among the dinner hostess being Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, who will entertain for Miss Chapman, Miss Betty Brown, and Miss Anne Smith, all debs of the season, and Mrs. Raymond E. Durham of Winnetka. Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Mrs. Charles H. Rowe, and Mrs. Robert H. McCormick are planning to give a ball for their respective daughters, Polly Perry, Betty Brown, and Patty McCormick, this winter, and they are about decided to give it after the Princeton show, but the plans are not absolutely definite yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton will give a dinner and theater party for Miss Chapman and Miss Smith on Wednesday, Dec. 30. John Simpson and young Watson Armour are planning a dance for some time during the holidays, and they have about decided to have it on New Year's Eve, but that date is tentative.

Carolyn Walker and W. M. McCoy Will Wed Today in West.

It's too bad that more of Carolyn Walker's friends can't be present at her wedding today to W. Milton McCoy at Big Horn, Wyo., because the bride is to wear her mother's wedding gown of the '90s period, with a seed pearl and orange blossom crown headdress, a seed pearl necklace, and brocaded slippers with pearl trimming to complete the costume. She will carry a shower bouquet of white sweet peas, orange blossoms, and gypsophila.

The ceremony will be performed at 4 o'clock before an altar of smilax and white chrysanthemums in the ranch home of Miss Walker's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Monerieffe, and there will be a reception afterward. The bride, who will be unattended, will be given in marriage by her uncle. John Cover will be best man for Mr. McCoy.

Out-of-town guests include the bride's sisters, Mrs. John Paul Welling and Mrs. James A. Field; Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, and the groom's sister, Mrs. Brock Pemberton, who flew from New York to attend the ceremony.

The bride and groom will occupy the Edward S. Moore residence at Big Horn after a short wedding trip, and will spend part of the late winter at Aiken, S. C.

Of interest today is the lecture to be given this morning at 11 o'clock at the Palmer house by the Countess Margit Bethlen on "History in the Making and Personalities Who Make It," and the opera matinée which undoubtedly will attract a large and fashionable audience, being the Chicago premiere of "Mona Lisa." In Evanston the football game at Dyche stadium between the Evanston High school and the New Trier High school will attract a large number of north shore residents, for the Junior league of Evanston is sponsoring the game and will use the proceeds in charity work. Mrs. William Stahl is chairman of the committee in charge. Mrs. Barthelomay Osborne will entertain a luncheon for the Countess Bethlen after the lecture, later taking her guests to the opera. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Brentano will give a dinner for the countess at their residence, 423 Barry avenue.

The English Speaking union has cards out for a dinner on Friday, Nov. 27, at 7:15 o'clock in the ballroom of the Blackstone for Edward Price Bell, who will speak on "The British Election."

Arts Club Is Crowded for Showing of Leger's Film.

In spite of the nasty weather the tea for Fernand Leger, distinguished French painter, yesterday at the Arts club attracted one of the largest crowds ever assembled in those attractive club rooms. The crowd was so great that it overflowed from the main gallery. There M. Leger's film "Le Ballet Mecanique," was shown. The crowd also used the other galleries and even the lounge where the tea table was laid.

Miss Alice Rouiller introduced M. Leger who made a brief address in French about the film which was shown for the first time in America yesterday, although it has been seen in all the principal cities of Europe since it was produced in 1924. In the mechanical ballet are bottles, kitchen utensils, machinery, a peasant climbing apparently endless steps, a level, a girl's eyes and lips, a straw hat, in fact, almost anything and everything all in a kaleidoscopic picture that is strange but interesting. Accompanying the film yesterday were the piano records made especially to go with the film by the American composer George Antheil. Something went wrong with the projection machine at the end of the first half of the film and the crowd began thronging to the tearoom, but as soon as it became known that there was more to come they took their teacups and returned to where they could get a view of the picture.

The tea table was a stunning thing covered with a white satin cloth edged

Slight Complexion Blemishes Subject to These Remedies

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Liver spots, white spots, and moles are skin afflictions which, while not so common, still manage to make certain women uncomfortable with their presence.

Liver spots are larger than freckles, but like freckles are light tan to brownish black. How they got the name is not known. They have nothing to do with the liver in good condition or out of it. We are told on medical authority that they are due to some disturbance of peculiarly female functioning.

Local treatment is similar to freckle remedying. Bleaches and lotions are to be had. Skin peeling will remove the outer cuticle and the spots along with it. Sometimes the following lotion will prove efficient: Salicylic acid, 60 grains, and 2 ounces of bay rum. You apply it with cotton several times a day, allowing the preparation to dry on. Stop applying the lotion immediately any irritation is felt and use cold cream to relieve the irritation.

White spots are said to be indicative of some glandular disturbance. Frequently they are found where goiter is present. But only a physician should be relied on for proper guidance. In the meantime the patches may be covered cleverly with a foundation cream and powder.

All moles are not to be categorized under the head of suspicious characters. Some are harmless things, easily removed. But because there is always that one chance of their being dangerous, it is wise to interview a good skin authority before taking any steps to remove them. The physician may recommend the electric needle treatment, but even with the mildest type of mole, he'll urge the most expert of workers for the job.

If your face has a scar from a mole removal or from acne, don't wait until the tissue is completely destroyed. See a good skin specialist before the scars are old, and in all probability he can save you any further embarrassment.

Women Voters Approve Study of Birth Control

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

AFTER considerable discussion pro and con the Illinois League of Women Voters yesterday voted to include a birth control plank in their study program.

The topic adopted for study is: "A measure which will give the physician the right to use the mails to give scientific information on contraceptive measures for therapeutic and welfare reasons."

Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, chairman of the social hygiene committee, who submitted the plank as an addition to the social hygiene study program, afterwards described the step as "an unexpected victory."

It was the only plank calling forth any discussion, among those in the child welfare and social hygiene programs, both accepted at the morning convention session. That meeting was held in the Social Science building, University of Chicago.

Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, chairman of the committee on efficiency in government, objected to adoption of the birth control study on the grounds it might create a prejudice on the part of many against the league and jeopardize the league's efforts to obtain the passage of the Shepherd-Towner bill for federal aid in giving prenatal and postnatal care to mothers and children.

Mrs. Savilla Millis Simon, a younger member of the league, daughter of Prof. H. A. Millis of the University of Chicago, argued the state legislators might not distinguish between study of birth control and support of it. That might prevent coöperation in questions of legislation, she suggested.

Dr. Yarros replied that the health of mothers and children was more important than anything else and suggested to her sister voters that they not allow "fear to jeopardize our courage and conviction."

Miss Helen Thayer of Chicago and Mrs. John Schact of Rockford spoke in favor of adopting the plank for birth control study.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams were hosts at dinner this evening, their guests being officers of the navy and their wives.

Senator and Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie have come from their home in Nevada and are again in their house at 2122 Leroy place for the winter.

Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, chief of cavalry, U. S. A., and Mrs. Henry gave a dinner this evening.

Capt. Neal B. Farwell, U. S. N., and Mrs. Farwell were among the naval officers giving dinners before the dance which officers of the navy yard gave tonight in the Sail Loft of the yard.

Royal Blue Comes to Fore as Modish Color

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—During the last hectic days of the season at Cannes and the long fall season at Biarritz, royal blue as a sports color was adopted by many fashionable women. This shade is worn chiefly for sports frocks and pajamas, and with a sports coat of white. The new jerseys and tricots are the materials that make most of these clothes, but both of these materials come now in basket weave effects, in the ribs of serge, etc. They are scarcely distinguishable from regulation machine woven woolens. It is a whim of Paris fabric fashions to ape some material other than the one they actually are.

The Jane Regny sports frock shown in our sketch is made of a new basket knitted jersey in the latest sports color—royal blue. It has a naval officer atmosphere, and a touch of the gob uniform about it, too. The silver buttons with the insignia of the navy embossed on them, that fasten up the blouse and hold its pockets shut, are taken from the jackets of petty officers, and the white collar with its blue bands is just a gob's collar turned around backward, with the pointed ends that belong in front knotted at the back of the neck. These marine touches are the rage all along the Cote d'Azur and both sports jackets and dresses must have them.

The belt of this dress has a silver bowknot buckle. The skirt is narrow in line, with fullness from released tucks given below the knees at the front and back. The tucks begin from a rectangular apron panel in front and from the waistline in back. The sides of this skirt are perfectly straight.

GANDHI SAINTLY, BUT HE ISN'T ALL INDIA, MAHARAJAH SAYS

"However much Mr. Gandhi may be respected for his saintly spirit and his saintly attire, he does not represent all of India. Gandhi is no doubt a great leader in his own way—a great patriot, and I have no quarrel with him on that score," proclaimed Sir Bijay Chand Mahtar, maharajah of Burdwan, who arrived in Chicago yesterday. "But when he attempts to lay down the law for great masses of people for whom he is not authorized to speak, he goes outside his bounds."

The maharajah spoke yesterday at tea of the English Speaking union at the Tavern club. He spoke also earlier in the day at the luncheon of the Rotary club at the Hotel Sherman.

"Those who have been trying to sever our connections with the British empire are not the best friends of India," the maharajah asserted. "Everywhere I go I am asked whether Gandhi is the dictator for all of India.

"Let me assure you such is far from being the case. This is my first visit to America, but already I am astounded by the travesties of truth I find have been spread here by a pernicious group of young men calling themselves nationalists.

"One hopes that out of the London conferences there may be evolved a new constitution for India—not one that will provide complete independence, for that is hopeless, nor one that will give satisfaction to Mr. Gandhi, who wants to drive the English out of the country, but one that will give satisfaction to the great community of Mohammedans and others, and that will provide for limited independence under dominion status."

Child's Indifference Merely Mask to Hide His Hurt Feelings

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Well, then, you can't go to the party."

"I don't care."

Does that sound familiar to you?

"Any boy who can't get better marks than that had better stay home from the football game and study. You can't go tomorrow."

"All right! I don't care."

Have you ever had anything like that happen in your family? And have you been foolish enough to think that they really don't care?

"I don't care." Suppose they do say it. Do they act as if they didn't care? Look at their faces—sullen, or defiant, or unhappy, or hardened a little to mask their feeling. Do they look carefree?

You may feel that you have to lay down the law in an unpleasant way sometimes, but don't think your children are thick skinned if they say "I don't care." They've got to do something when they're hurt, or disappointed, or humiliated. You probably wouldn't want them to burst into tears. They've got to "save their faces," somehow. They do it by, "I don't care."

Don't grownups do it? Don't they try to save their faces if they're put in an embarrassing position, or in the wrong? If you feel you have to deprive the children of something for their own good and if they say "I don't care" don't make too much of it and don't be so foolish as to think they mean it.

But, better still, if you feel that an unpleasant experience is necessary for discipline or to drive home something they need to learn try your best not to put it to them so they set up that wall of "I don't care." For it is a wall—it shuts you out.

Music of Japan Makes Critic Enjoy Evening

BY EDWARD MOORE.

CLASSICAL Japanese music and classical Japanese dancing were presented at the Edgewater Beach hotel last night during a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Yoshio Muto. The program was presented by the Yoshida trio, now making a brief tour of this country, and the dances by Miss Mitsumi Bando.

MITSUMI BANDO.

It was a novel experience for occidental ears and eyes together, and though from lack of previous experience many technical points must have been missed, it was a fascinating one. This is the sort of music that novelists for want of better terms refer to as a weird minor strain, when as a matter of fact it is neither weird nor minor.

Seifu Yoshida played the shakuhachi, a bamboo flute blown lengthwise instead of horizontally; Mrs. Yoshida played the shamisen, a long-necked, three-stringed banjolike affair, plucking the strings with a plectrum. Mrs. Yoshida also divided with Miss Chiba the playing of the kote, a long, rounding instrument of many strings, something like the psaltery of old, and also plucked, while Miss Chiba sang both solos and part of the dance accompaniments.

They say that it is part of the Japanese art to overblow the flute into a breathy tone, also occasionally to get a little tight nasality into the singing voice. This is by no means invariable for either. Most of the time the tone was pleasant, even charming and caressing.

As for Miss Bando, she was something to lose the heart over. Japanese dancing is formalized and symbolical, and one is lost without a key to the symbolism.

Food Talk

Apples are one of our best foods. They are good for us, are inexpensive, are obtainable in the smallest of communities, and are adaptable. They serve us not only in every course of our meals but as a healthful sweet between meals.

In making salads, in frying them, or combining them with other fruits in a cocktail, it is a mistake to peel apples. The peel furnishes the roughage so necessary to our welfare, and adds a note of color as well. We get far too little of it in these days of soft food. Be sure to scrub the fruit well before you begin work on it.

In some foreign countries stewed fruit almost invariably accompanies the meal. Apples are often served this way, and they are good, for example, with cabbage rolls. Apple and cabbage make a good team in salad, too, either with or without the addition of English walnut meats.

In baking apples, it is a great help to have an adequate corer. Particularly when one wishes to serve such a dish as pork chops baked with apple, it is an aid, for neat rings of the fruit are far more attractive than cut up pieces. Baked apples baked alone might have the center hollow filled with nuts or raisins for a change, or with crushed pineapple.

When apples are served as a vegetable it is better to be a little lavish and fry them in butter because they have such a delicate flavor themselves that the butter taste is very noticeable in them. Brown sugar is a better and richer sweetening for them than white.

As to eating apples, here again is one of those things that one cannot generalize about. Some people won't eat mealy apples, others won't eat russets, but they dote on hard, sour ones. As a holiday centerpiece about this time of year there is nothing more harvest homey than a great bowl of all sorts of apples—red, and green, and yellow, and russet, large and small, and round and elongated. Nature tidily waterproofs apples with wax, so if you want to you can shine them simply by rubbing the surface.

You can buy apple candy now. I am trying for a recipe for it, on the chance that you'd like to make some. I'll give it to you as I discover—a good one.

BROWN BREAD.

1 cup graham flour,	2 cups milk,
1 cup rye flour,	¾ cup molasses,
1 cup cornmeal,	1 cup floured raisins,
1½ tsp. soda,	1½ tsp. salt,
1½ tsp. vinegar.

Sift together the dry ingredients. Add the bran remaining in the sifter to them. Combine the vinegar, milk, and molasses. Mix quickly with the dry ingredients. Add the raisins. Pour the greased moulds two-thirds full. Cover tightly and steam 3½ hours. This makes twelve servings.

ICEBOX COOKIES.

1¾ cups brown sugar,	1½ cups white sugar,
1 lb. butter,	3 eggs,
1 Vanilla,	1 level tsp. soda,
8 cups flour,	½ lb. nut meats.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add the eggs slightly beaten, then the vanilla. Sift the soda and flour twice, and fold into the egg mixture. Add the nut meats last. Divide into four rolls, wrap in waxed paper, and keep in the ice box till wanted. When the dough hardens it should be sliced as thin as possible and baked in a hot oven on greased cookie sheets. This is quite a large recipe and unless your family is a large one, half of it ought to last you some time. The whole recipe yields about a hundred and twenty-five cookies.

Here's the Time When Girl Is Justified in "Unladylike" Behavior

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She is 22, the man 24. For three years they were constant companions. Marriage was talked of. Then his father died, leaving a lone mother on his hands. She, a woman who'd been used to a husband doing practically her thinking for her, became so exacting of the son's time that arguments with the fiancée arose. They drifted apart.

Another man came into the fiancée's life. He was serious. The girl was just beginning to see the advisability of accepting him when No. 1 reappeared, heart broken at the news he'd heard, and pleading for another chance. He got it because he was the one she loved. Six months have passed, but no mention is made of marriage. There is no lack of money. It's the widowed mother's demands that she be not left alone.

"What demands can a girl make," asks Paula, "about the future—and still be a lady?"

Is it so important to be a lady? A lady in the sense meant here, of course? I'm wondering how many women riding triumphantly beside their legally espoused mates would be sitting all so pretty if they took that lady business seriously?

As I view this show of lining up a man for the altar, being a lady doesn't seem to matter half so much as getting the man there. Not that said gentlemen have all had to be wheedled, bridled or flagged into the famous processional step—but the great majority of them have to be urged. Well—inspired, then! Anyway, they haven't been discouraged, exactly, nor allowed to slide along year after year by permission of a code that doesn't permit a "lady" to express her preference.

Out with the silly convention, say I, and a couple of other loud voices. Speak your piece about marriage being what you want, and the earlier the date, the better it will please. If you need something to bolster up your courage, visualize the long line of spinster "ladies" who waited patiently for the word that never came.

There's no glory and little dignity in the position brought about by refusal to project a word in your own behalf, or a bit of vigorous action, if need be.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Maroons from the University of Chicago will resume their ancient football feud with University of Wisconsin's Badgers on Stagg field this afternoon.

This gridiron warfare broke out way back in 1895 and when the two teams come together this afternoon with the Badgers ruling as strong favorites it will be their 35th meeting. There have been times in the past when a Chicago-Wisconsin struggle was eyed by nearly every football follower in the nation.

But except for the annual settlement of their football grudge today's game won't mean much as far as championship possibilities are concerned. The Badgers already have been trimmed by Ohio State, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania, and until a week ago, when they conquered Illinois, the Maroons had been dragged around in the dust of Big Ten gridirons all season.

Large Crowd Expected.

The lack of a championship angle will keep the attendance down, but despite the prospect of rain and a heavy playing field and an all round gloomy afternoon there probably will be some 27,000 spectators draped around the massive field on the Midway. About 20,000 of them will be paid customers—Maroon and Badger rivals who will whoop it up just as they did in the grand old days—and 7,000 of the spectators will be high school students who are to be guests of the two universities.

Gloomy Glen Thistlethwaite, the Wisconsin coach, was just as gloomy about this game as any in which his Badgers have taken part this year. "We are horribly crippled, the Maroons are playing better football than at any time this season, and we will be extremely fortunate if we can

Iowa Faces Wildcats and Longs for Modern Miracle

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 20.—Despite rumors that the society for the prevention of cruelty to crippled football teams is taking steps to prevent it, there will be a football game here tomorrow afternoon between one of the most potent Northwestern teams and one of the most woebegone Iowa elevens in their respective histories.

The condemned men are expected to eat a hearty breakfast and the trap will be sprung at 2 p. m. Approximately 20,000 mourners, many of them here for the annual Dad's day, will attend the services.

Miracle Iowa's Only Hope.

Hard words, these, hard words. And in setting them down one is running the risk of having one's self chased out of this fair city by an outraged citizenry. But what will be, will be. And the residents herein are on the verge of admitting that the outlook for tomorrow is dour, if not dire. Not that they are making that admission in public. No, it wouldn't be the same old Iowa City that is with its football team to the last whistle if they did.

There still was a wistful hope in these parts today that Coach Burt Ingwersen would rear back and work a miracle that would send these Wildcats back to Evanston dragging their tails behind them.

The Means Are Lacking.

But you can't work a miracle without the wherewithal for rearing back. That's where Ingwersen finds himself tonight, and therein lies the pity of the whole situation out here, for Burt is a very good guy, who deserved a much better break in the way of luck than he has received this season.

While Iowa City is hoping the darkest hour is just before the dawn, there came a roar from Davenport, 60 miles away, where Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern had 35 bold, bad Wildcats chained up, ready to spring upon the Hawkeyes.

That roar indicated that the Wildcats, now weary of sharing the Big Ten championship bone, have scented a chance to have it all to themselves for the first time in history. In 1903 Northwestern, by winning one game and tying two, earned a share of the title with Michigan and Minnesota. They tied with Michigan in 1926 and last year, each winning five games.

Purple Regulars to Start.

Coach Hanley put an end to the gossip that he would start the second string team by declaring emphatically that the regulars would be on the field for the opening kickoff.

The Wildcat back field will be composed of George Potter, Jakie Sullivan and those two bogey men, Pug Rentner and Reb Russell. Potter will attend to the passing and punting while he is in there, since Rentner's thumb is still surrounded by a cast, and Ollie Olson, the Purple kicking star, will be withheld for a late entrance.

Cats See College Game.

The Wildcats had a light workout on the high school field in Davenport today, after which they attended the game between St. Ambrose and Penn colleges. Tonight they dined with alumni from Davenport, Rock Island and Moline. They will leave Davenport at 11 tomorrow and arrive here after noon.

This morning it appeared that there might be one little ray of hope for the Hawkeyes and that lies in the possibility of a wet field. It has rained here all week, and there was a cheering squishiness to the turf this morning as Ingwersen examined it, in the hope that it would slow up the flying cleats of Rentner and Russell.

MINNESOTA AND MICHIGAN CLASH FOR BROWN JUG

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20.—The little brown jug, emblematic of gridiron rivalry between Michigan and Minnesota has been found, and today a 12 hour rain ceased and warm south winds swept across Memorial stadium as the Wolverines and Gophers concluded practice for their twenty-first football battle tomorrow.

These propitious signs inaugurated the annual homecoming celebration on the Michigan campus. Thousands of returning alumni tonight attended fraternity and university functions. More are expected in the morning, for 60,000 will be at the battle site, according to predictions.

This crowd, second only to 65,000 who saw Ohio State beat Michigan on the same field five weeks ago, is contingent largely on the weather. The rapid changes from rain to sunshine have had the Michigan coaching staff on edge all week. Yesterday bright sunshine and warm breezes favored the practice session, but last night an autumnal deluge swept the field. Coach Harry Kipke previously had ordered the huge canvas blanket spread so that the gridiron will be protected until game time.

Experts Predict Snow.

The high temperature is unseasonable and the best guesses of the weather officials who predict for this district is that tomorrow will find the wind shifting to the north, with snow flurries, the first of the year, arriving near nightfall.

The little brown jug's recovery may or may not be the truth. Phil Pack, who combines the position of director of publicity and custodian of Michigan's numberless athletic trophies, is quoted as saying that the jug apparently is the real article. The brown jug, which has been in Michigan's custody except for infrequent occasions when Minnesota triumphed over the Wolverines, was made the gauge of battle in 1903. It is the parent of such other gridiron trophies as the oaken bucket of Indiana-Purdue fame.

The trophy disappeared last September, according to Pack. Diligent search failed to reveal either the culprits or the jug until in recent weeks there has been a veritable deluge of "recoveries." These brown jugs, previously returned in manners most mysterious, have been imitations, it is said. The return of the jug yesterday also was under most suspicious circumstances, for a driver of a sedan, without state license plates, is reported to have tossed the trophy to an at-

Trojans Remember '30 Game; Seek Early Lead on Irish

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Southern California's Trojans, Pacific coast conference champions, have no intention of being rushed off their feet in the first minutes of their sixth football contest against the Irish and near-Irish at Notre Dame this afternoon. That was what happened last year and the 27 to 0 memory is still vivid. Instead, Southern California strategy purposes to take the initiative, if possible, and do a little demoralizing on its own account.

Such statement is not authorized by Coach Howard Jones. When visitors come so far, it is not strictly polite to ask exactly what they intend to do and then publish it, although Jones once was one of us as directing genius at Iowa. The Trojan purpose, then, was gleaned from chance remarks of team members and camp followers. It is credited because it seems so logical.

U. S. C. Wants Dry Field.

Thirty-four of these stalwart young men, with a retinue which increased the party to nearly 50, steamed into the Englewood station yesterday morning on a special train of eight cars. There they were met by an enthusiastic delegation of Southern California alumni and those of other Pacific coast colleges. After settling at the Hotel Windermere East the players took a brief morning workout at Stagg field, the sun kindly peeping forth for their benefit and supplanting the drizzle of their arrival.

Contrary to general opinion and the Notre Dame slogan, "The best defense against Notre Dame is mud," Coach Jones and his players expressed hope of a clear day and dry field. As one of the party, with characteristic native son spirit, remarked: "We did play Stanford in the rain, but rain during the football season is practically unknown to us and we have no opportunity to practice with a slippery ball, so we don't know what to do."

Climate Worries Doctors.

Then the two medical advisers, Dr. W. R. Fiesler and Dr. Packard Thurber, professed concern whether colds might result from weather and change of climate. It was not a complaint. In fact, the physicians said the boys were in excellent shape considering their hard season. Even Gus Shaver, ball carrying quarter back, who had been absent from practice all week, is scheduled to start along with Sparling, who has a weak ankle, at left end, and Rosenberg at left guard.

Following luncheon and the workout, the squad attended the Chicago theater, accompanied by Joan Crawford of screen fame. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock, a little visiting, and then they were sent to bed at 9:30 o'clock to be awakened at 7 o'clock this morning for an 8 o'clock breakfast before taking a special train to Notre Dame at 9:45 o'clock. Returning to the Hotel Stevens after the game, the Californians will spend Sunday in a sightseeing tour, possibly attend the theater, and leave on their return journey tomorrow night.

Carry Own Chefs.

Perhaps some readers would like to know what these young Trojans eat in preparation for such intrepid foes. Their special dining car crew, the same chefs who accompany the team on all trips, came with them from the coast, and daily, served three meals planned and ordered long in advance. Hotels likewise have received by mail the menu desired. Here is last night's 6 o'clock dinner:

Fresh fruit cocktail, clear soup, broiled tenderloin steak well done, baked potato, helping of peas and also string beans, head lettuce with dressing, white bread with limit of two rolls of butter, ice cream, tea or coffee. It was a surprise to the writer to learn that milk was absolutely taboo.

At breakfast this morning, there will be a small glass of orange juice, baked apple, two lamb chops well done, dry toast with two small pieces of butter, coffee or tea.

Toast and Tea.

At 11 o'clock, those who wish it may have tea and toast or clear soup and toast. That is all until after the game, scheduled to start at 1:30 o'clock.

Here is the roster of the visitors:

Ends—Arbelbide, Sparling, Palmer, Clarke, Durkee, Norris, Biggs.
Tackles—Brown, Smith, Hall, Erskine, Plaehn.
Guards—Baker, Rosenberg, Black, Dye, Stevens, Gentry, F. Williamson.
Centers—S. Williamson, Yonel, Norse.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 20.—A squad of husky young men, whose gridiron achievements again have painted the sky with the name of Notre Dame, tonight ended a season's preparations for a game that will command the interest of the nation tomorrow afternoon.

Notre Dame versus Southern California! There is magic in those words. They conjure a parade of famous athletes, of thrilling competition, of hitherto colorless players blossoming into headline stars.

More people will follow the progress of this game than knew the result of the battle of Waterloo for weeks. More than 150 newspapers from New York to Los Angeles and from New Orleans to Windsor, Ont., will be represented by staff writers. Nearly a hundred radio stations will pick up the broadcast.

Both Teams Big, Fast.

The 55,000 spectators who will make up the largest crowd that ever has watched a game in South Bend know they will see a battle. As they stand man for man before the conflict, there isn't any real choice between the teams. Each is big, belligerent, well fortified with replacements, and in first class condition. Each has a huge, man handling line, full of fire and fury and preference for rough and ready milling. Each has a dozen good backs.

Notre Dame is conversationally rated a slight favorite to win, but her votaries are said to be a little timid when it comes to talking money. The local emporiums that serve as clearing houses for wagers on sporting events report there are few or no bets being placed, because the backers of Southern California want odds of 7 to 5.

Psychology Favors U. S. C.

Notre Dame goes into the battle with a record of 26 games without a defeat. It is nearing the end of its third successive season of unbroken success. It is that tremendous winning psychology that weights heavily with persons tempted to pick Southern California. When a team goes along unbeaten it gets the idea it can't be beaten. Opponents may hold the Irish in check for 50 of the 60 minutes of play, but nobody ever has seen them go into a panic. They keep right on cracking the tackles and ends with supreme confidence in their ability to shake somebody loose.

In last year's blistering fight Notre Dame broke a runner loose four times for a 27 to 0 victory, its fourth in the five game series to date with U. S. C. But tomorrow is another day, the Trojans have another powerful team, and there are thousands who feel they are about to make history.

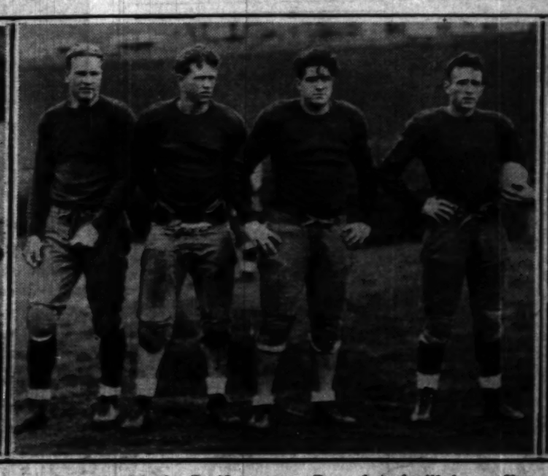
Irish leader and his master. Coach Hunky Anderson imparts words of wisdom to Capt. Tommy Yarr, who, like his Trojan foes, hails from the coast.

Trojans plot the rise of Troy. Coach Howard Jones for the thousandth time diagrams Notre Dame's pass offensive. "Watch that end," Jones tells his backs as the team lolls in a south side hotel awaiting this morning's trip to Notre Dame for its first Indiana invasion. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

And don't miss, "Bak," old boy! Notre Dame has beaten U. S. C. three times by the margin of an extra point. Therefore Baker, husky guard, will take pains today.



Aces all on the Pacific coast. But what they'll be at Notre Dame today time alone can tell. At any rate, they will be in the Trojans' back field. Left to right: Ernie Pinckert and Gordon Clark, halves; Jim Musick, full back, and Orvil Mohler, quarter back.

One more chance. That's all Capt. Williamson, a veteran of two whippings by the Irish, has to get even. He's a senior and center. Coach Jones doesn't look enthusiastic.

OGLETHORPE UP AGAINST INDIAN TRICKERY TODAY

Trick plays, for which Indian football teams long ago became famous, will be resorted to by the Haskell Indians today when the Redmen from Lawrence, Kas., meet the Oglethorpe university team of Atlanta, Ga., at Soldiers' field in a charity game for the benefit of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War. The kick-off will be at 2 o'clock.

The Indian squad, 36 strong, arrived yesterday evening. All were enthusiastic and while predicting a victory over the eleven from the southland, the Redmen realize they have a tough battle ahead. The Oglethorpe team arrived during the afternoon and both squads were quartered at the Allerton club. Both teams held short practice sessions at Soldiers' field.

Trickery to Predominate.

Coach W. H. [Lone Star] Dietz of the Indian eleven outlined no definite plans regarding today's attack, but he did say that trickery always had played an important part in the success of the Indians. He intimated that his plans would follow those lines.

"We expect to meet a tough foe in the Oglethorpe team," said Coach Dietz. "The Georgia boys will outweigh us. I am hoping for a clear day because our men are small and fast. This year I have an exceptionally fast back field and a wet field will slow us up."

Dietz is a Sioux Indian and played tackle on the famous Carlisle team when Pop Warner coached there.

Curtis Greets Indians.

The Haskell squad was met at the train by Harry Curtis, son of Vice President Charles Curtis; Mrs. Herman N. Bundesen, wife of the city health commissioner and president of the Women's National Veterans' association; Howard F. O'Brien, state commander of the Disabled American Veterans; Joseph Burkhart, business manager; Dr. E. M. Rains, and James Bassiger.

Through an arrangement with George D. Gaw, Mr. Curtis himself a graduate of Haskell, assumed Mr. Gaw's role as official greeter. Mr. Gaw, with the same committee, was on hand in the afternoon to greet the Oglethorpe team.

HAIRCUTS OVER, DOGS READY FOR SHOW'S OPENING

Hundreds of dogs from Chicago kennels and individual breeders in the metropolitan area will hold the center of the stage today at the twenty-first annual exhibition in the 181st regiment armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue, under the auspices of the Western Specialty Clubs association. The show will continue tomorrow.

During the last week the dog handlers have been busy with cosmetics, color tints, manicures, shaves and haircuts. The eleven classes of dogs in the show will be: Bulldogs, collies, cocker spaniels, German shepherds, Irish terriers, Dobermann pinschers, Great Danes, Scottish terriers, Boston terriers, wire and smooth fox terriers and Pomeranians.

FOOTBALL MAGICIANS ARRIVE FOR GAME

Haskell Indians, who always have a few tricks to baffle football opponents, arrive at the Dearborn street station for their charity game with Oglethorpe university at Soldiers' field today. Notre Dame Expects Line to Stop Trojans Today six games and played a scoreless tie with Northwestern. Southern California also has won six, but was defeated in its opening contest by St. Mary's. Notre Dame has scored 202 points, while it held opponents to 12. The Pacific coast champions have rolled up 222 points, against 19 for the opposition. The records:

NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame, 26; Indiana, 0.

U. S. C., 38; Washington State, 6.
U. S. C., 19; Stanford, 0.
U. S. C., 60; Montana, 0.

No better representatives of sectional football could be found. The game starts at 1:30 o'clock. The stadium holds 65,000 and it looked tonight as if there would be few empty seats. There will be 5,000 on sale at the stadium ticket offices tomorrow morning.

Cover Gridiron.

Notre Dame is hoping for a dry field. The gridiron was protected from today's drizzling rain by a tarpaulin, which will not be lifted until half an hour before the game. Cold weather is predicted with a possibility of snow.

Notre Dame's style of play, stressing speed and rhythm, requires dependable footing. The only time the Irish have looked bad in recent years—against the Army last year and Northwestern this season—was on wet fields.

Southern California will have a weight advantage of 15 pounds to the man in the back field and ordinarily a wet gridiron is a break for the heavier squad. The lighter team usually has to rely on swift starting and trickery, and fancy fandangoes are hard to execute on a slippery surface with a slippery ball. It may not work to the advantage of the heavier eleven in this particular case. While the Trojans have superior heft, they likewise have speedsters and artists of legerdemain. They too need a dry missile.

Irish Bank on Line.

Notre Dame is banking heavily on its line to stop the westerners' running plays. It is made up of rugged, mobile, raw boned men and in popular estimation is the strongest forward wall in the school's history. From end to end it is as hard as concrete. What it will do against a group equally as big and just as eager to fight it out remains to be seen. The Irish know Southern California's front line of defense is no bed of geraniums either.

Given a dry field, the teams likely will put up one of those slam bang, wide open offensive battles that have made the series sensational.

With the exception of Sparling, end, Southern California's advance contingent reported the team in fine physical condition. Notre Dame will be without the services of Koken, understudy to Schwartz, and Pierce, a second string guard, who is almost as good as the regulars. Melinkovich, regular full back, will not be used unless the situation becomes desperate. He has a bone separation in his shoulder that has not entirely healed.

Three thousand students tonight roared their confidence in the team's ability to win by putting on a torchlight parade and a mammoth rally in the gymnasium.

OLD WISCONSIN, CHICAGO FEUD RENEWED TODAY

win," he said after the Badgers had run through a light limbering up drill on the south side yesterday.

Confidence in Maroon Camp.

But there was great confidence in the Maroon camp. The victory the team from the Midway scored over Illinois a week ago has brought about all the confidence. Wisconsin was able to beat Illinois by only 7 to 6. The Maroons trimmed the Illini, 13 to 6. So the handicap figures indicate the Maroons at least have a royal chance to turn back their rivals of the last 25 years.

Maroon old grads will take a squint at the lineups and discover that a fellow by the name of Mark Catlin will be playing at left end for the Badgers. This isn't the Mark Catlin who helped the Maroons to beat the Badgers many years ago. It is the old Maroon star's son, but just the same Maroon rooters won't think it is quite nice for anybody by the name of Catlin to be wearing the cardinal and white jersey of a Badger.

The game will get going at 2 o'clock and word from the Maroon camp last night was to the effect that Coach Stagg will be able to start his strongest lineup of the season.

Doris Johnson set a new meet record of 26 seconds for the senior 40 yard free style swim last night at the Illinois Women's Athletic club's fifth annual swimming meet.

Another meet record was broken by Jean Fulton, I. W. A. C. swimmer, in the senior 60 yard medley swim, when she covered the distance in :48:1. The old time was :51:1. Summaries:

HARVARD FACES NEW YALE TEAM ON GRID TODAY

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Dr. Mal Stevens and Capt. Albie Booth today led the Yale football team back to the site of the Elis' most recent victory over Harvard, four years ago. Tad Jones coached that Yale team and Capt. Bill Werster led a blue line that gave Johnny Garvey and Bill Hammersley, galloping successors of Bruce Caldwell, every chance to run inside and outside tackle.

The Yale force that came up from New Haven this morning is about as much in contrast to that Tad Jones team as could possibly be. Here's a Yale team that went to the middle west for the basis of its tactics, a Yale team that makes the forward pass much more than a mere threat and a Yale team that reputedly has not quite assimilated in one season the style of football it is playing.

58,000 to See Game.

On the other hand, ready to go in this game that means even more than most Yale games have meant is a Harvard team in vivid contrast. It's the first Harvard team since 1913 that will drive through with an unbeaten, untied season if it conquers its ancient blue enemy. Once again the stadium will be a sellout of 58,000, one of college sport's most brilliant throngs coming back to the fiftieth renewal of a classic.

Despite its record, Harvard can hardly be called the east's strongest eleven while Pitt, with a great line, is still in the running and defeated only by Notre Dame.

Crimson in Better Mood.

But Eddie Casey, nevertheless, has done a thorough, sound job of coaching in his first year. That would still be true even if Barry Wood had missed the points after touchdown that have made Harvard alone untied and unbeaten. But in that case, the few rabid Crimsonites who are now doing the shouting might not have recognized the fact.

Harvard has fought its way down the line successfully with varying shades of power. Now, with hard won battles over Dartmouth and Holy Cross the last two week-ends, the Crimson comes up in better shape mentally than is Yale after its long layoff.

Collins Increases Lead in Title Billiard Play

Percy N. Collins of Chicago, defending champion, increased his lead of 73 points on Edgar T. Appleby of New York in their challenge match for the National amateur 18:2 balkline title at the Illinois Athletic club yesterday by winning the second block 300 to 291 in 27 innings.

Ut Majeur, at 15 to 2, Wins Derby Gold Cup

DERBY, England, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Ut Majeur, at 15 to 2, today won the Derby gold cup at a mile and three-quarters from Nitakrit and 20 others.

backed Canzoneri onto the ropes and started trading furious punches of both hands on the jaw. For 30 seconds Tony met him on even terms, but he suddenly wilted and leaped into a desperate clinch apparently almost knocked out.

Willie Lewis, the referee, broke them apart and Chocolate was just resuming his work when the champion grappled again, hanging on this time until his head cleared. But Tony went back to the mid-section again just as the round was closing, and again Chocolate was trying to pull himself away by shrinking his middle, though his feet were game and refused to retreat.

The decision was fair although the fight was close. However, the boys will be telling the story over again soon, for this evening's business was most gratifying. Mr. Carey, the general manager of the plant, was bobbing about the ring afterward, chafing his hands happily and remarking that business at last had turned the corner.

A Heartening Sign.

The attendance, crowding the house to the beams at from $2 to $10 a head, was the most heartening sign discerned in the sport business since the start of the terrible customers' strike two years ago, when the patrons walked out on the profession, demanding at least 5 cents' worth of fighting for each $5 worth of ticket.

When there is money to spend for prize fight tickets there is spending money loose in the neighborhood, and this evening's tribute was estimated at $83,000. Emboldened by the week's business in tickets for this week's little disorders in the ring, the management decided to charge a top price of $15 for next week's huge convulsion, with Prime Carnera and Vittorio Campolo as the contending armies.

There will be a gross weight of 435 pounds of meat, bone and brawn in the ring when Carnera and Campolo have their way with one another, a new high in the matter of aggregate tonnage in one contest and a new one in the matter of gross aggregate cash.

Kaplan Knocked Out.

Chick Devlin, a California welterweight, won a decision from Vincent Sireci of New York in the opening final match at the end of eight rounds. The chaps smacked one another with harsh ferocity and Sireci swooned for a count of nine early in the fight, but climbed up and shattered the situation for a long time. The patrons awaited the main event with such politeness as they could manage.

Poor little Louis [Kid] Kaplan, the old featherweight champion, crashed into a right hook on the chin in the first round of his fight with a young Polander named Eddie Hanson, believed to be a cousin of William Dove and a nephew of Otto Croak. Kaplan caught the hook in the midst of a clinch, came out of the tangle apparently all right and, with a startled, incredulous grin on his face, floated on all fours along the ropes. Before a count could be started he was up and ran into Ran's left and also his right, meeting both with his jaw.

The right dumped him flat on his back and the ring boards bounced his head hit. At the count of three he half raised his head to pick up the toll from the referee, but couldn't hoist any higher, and gave it up to lose the fight in a perfect demonstration of horizontalism. It was only the third time in eleven years that Lou had been stretched.

Dress Suit Trade Mission.

Very little of the old dress suit and nude wishbone trade was noted in the forward rows of the plush this evening. It was a matter of genuine regret to notice the almost total disappearance of that feminine element always referred to with honest gusto by the Garden press agents in the old days as the refined and snooty sections dames of the social bon ton.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 20.—Driving rain, punctuated intermittently by young cloudbursts, sent Indiana's football dopesters to the weight tables this evening for a revision of their hopes and prophesies in tomorrow's mighty important contest with the Hoosiers' favorite enemies, the Purdue Boilermakers.

It was discovered that Purdue's line will weigh about nine pounds more to the man than Indiana's, and the athletic observers here attempted to make out like they considered this a dire and very wicked development, considering the possible sloppy going.

Down in their hearts, however, the Indiana partisans must realize that whatever may be said in comparing the Crimson with the Old Gold and Black, it has been apparent on most recent Saturdays that the Hoosier line is superior to the forwards of the Boilermakers and that Purdue has been the favorite to win because the betting and other experts think that the speed and talent of the Lafayette outfit will produce a bigger advantage to the Boilermakers' cause than the superior linemen can give to Indiana's victory scheme.

What Are a Few Pounds?

Unbiased observers, therefore, are throwing out the Purdue weight advantages with the same windup that they discard the prophecy of Coach A. C. Hayes that he expects his team to lose by at least three touchdowns. A line that can charge like Indiana's boys against Northwestern last Saturday ought to do a sight of charging even in the mud, and there is history to indicate that the members of the Purdue line, aside from Capt. Miller at center, do not relish well timed charging of the kind that flabbergasted Dick Hanley's trained beheepeths at Evanston a week ago.

On the other hand, there is no reason to believe that such able gents as Pardonner, Hecker, Purvis and Yunevich, the Boilermakers' first string back field, will be helpless in the mud. Those speedy fellows won't be quite so fast, and their passing won't be so accurate if they have to wear rubber boots, but they make a pretty dangerous quartet, especially when stirred up by the mental sip that attends all Indiana and Purdue clashes whether the game be football, basketball, baseball or tiddledewinks.

Babb and Lyons Ready.

The names of Jesse Babb, the colored youngster who ran 51 yards against the Wildcats, and his high school teammate, Fitzhugh Lyons, another colored lad who looks twice as big as Jesse, do not appear in the opening lineup announcements, but they will have their chance.

"If Mr. Hayes, late of Mississippi, has his two colored boys in shape, Indiana ought to win," is a playful little comment we heard four times this afternoon in one turn around Bloomington's courthouse square.

Lyons, something of a sensational high school receiver in Indiana's early games, has been out during recent weeks and it is said he has been under wraps for two Saturdays, but now is sparklingly convalescent.

The same is true, to a slightly less degree, of Eugene Opasik, most talented of the Hoosier pass tossers. The plan now is to flash Opasik and Lyons simultaneously, especially if a spot develops for passing. The opportunities given the Opasik to Lyons combination will depend somewhat on the weather conditions, of course.

Dauer Will Be Target.

Coach Hayes didn't give his men a hard scrimmage all week, and this afternoon eased up even more because of the limitations of working out in the fieldhouse.

Much time has been spent, however, in trying to find a Hoosier who can catch a punt. Vic Dauer has been known to catch a few punts this year and he probably will be the so-called safety man tomorrow. Dauer is one of the Hoosiers' best workmen, but usually is in an uproar over two or three fumbled punts. The added mental strain of Purdue competition may be too much for Dauer tomorrow. At any rate it is a certainty that Purdue is going to kick a lot of footballs at him.

Going back to the mud motif, it may be said that Bob Jones, who ripped up the Northwestern line for Indiana's touchdown, will be able to work with Alex Yunevich in the event the contest becomes a plunging tournament.

Matman Jones on Hand.

Jones, in addition to being one of the best punters in the Big Ten, can develop great power against any kind of line, and Purdue, having a mediocre line, is sure to feel his head many times tomorrow afternoon. Bob is the National A. A. U. wrestling champion and if the officials were to permit, should be able to win fall over the whole left side of the Purdue line with one hold.

The Indiana athletic department has announced that the old oaken bucket, token of supremacy between Indiana and Purdue, is in safe custody, and that if Purdue wins it, there will be no hocus pocus as there was last year when Indiana wo[illegible]ted possession by a 7 to 6 verdict over their foes from Lafayette.

Some hope was held out by the weather bureau for a cold snap during the night that would halt the rain, but if this transpires, it is predicted there will be a sell out. This means a crowd of 25,000.

MOON MULLINS—WILLIE WILL SIT THIS OUT

Ohio Looks for Big Score Over 'Wooden Indians' Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 20.—It looks as if Ohio State is going to have one of those days it has been waiting for. For years, at least since the imposing memorial stadium was built, supposedly inferior Illinois elevens have been coming down here and blasting whatever ambitions the scarlet and gray might have entertained.

But now, because the Illini permitted themselves to be bumped off by Chicago, nobody hereabouts is worried. The Roman holiday is at hand and the downtown coaches, who cause more trouble than they do good, are crying for the biggest score possible. They want revenge in the shape of touchdowns.

As soon as Coach Bob Zuppke arrived this morning with his Illinois Indians he set about on the task of assuring all the citizens that the orange and blue has no tricks concealed up its sleeve. He said he brought along 34 athletes merely to sophisticate them with a train ride. He termed them wooden Indians and cream puff blockers. He said their battle cry is "When do we eat?"

Wants to Enrage Illini.

Mr. Zuppke's belittling statements must not be taken seriously. He likes to amuse himself and others. He also likes to get his players mad about something, at least mad enough so that they will play better than ordinarily. He did that even when he had his good teams. And for tomorrow there is greater need than ever before to get them in the mood to commit nothing less than murder.

Mr. Zuppke insisted he brought along for the ride some who can play football and some who can't. Many of those who can play it are in an injured state. Those not injured at least are willing to try. He pointed out that some of his men can suffer hurts on the field but will attend a dance before going to the dispensary for treatment of their wounds. Most of this stuff, of course, was for local consumption, but Zup has fooled the citizens so many times that the more he talks the more they suspect he is taking them for a sleigh ride.

Buckeyes Vastly Superior.

While it is all very well to concede, or fear, that Zuppke's wise cracking may disturb Ohio, it is more important to remember that the Buckeyes are vastly superior to their opponents of tomorrow. They routed Michigan, which easily whipped the Illini. That in itself should be conclusive for local purposes, but it remained for the trimming by Chicago's team to make an Ohio victory almost a certainty. In fact, it appears so much a certainty that what ordinarily is a big attraction is going to draw only about 30,000, which is just one-third of the stadium capacity.

The Illini's one hope to put over another big upset on an old rival is via the air. Their plunging and running game against the Maroons was a dead loss and that means it should be a dead loss against any other conference entry. But Zup's so-called wooden Indians did give the Chicago lads quite a workout in forward pass defense and much of it was more than the Maroons could cope with.

Illini Certain to Try Air.

A few passes successfully completed can easily eclipse a 75 per cent advantage held by a foe in other departments. So you can be sure that Illinois, when it has the ball, will be up in the air much of the time. And it also may be up there in a different way when Ohio is on attack.

Ohio's best combination is going to start but Zuppke, having no such thing, will do as he thinks best when game time arrives tomorrow. For one thing, he may be able to put a regular quarter back in the game, something he didn't have against Chicago a week ago. Walser will be at the job. This will permit Gil Berry, the best open field performer owned by the Urbana contingent, to appear as a half back. The tiny Clark Root may not start, but he'll get in there along with Dave Cook about the time that it appears advisable to become serious about forward passing.

Thinking of Next Year.

Zuppke really has next season in the back of his head. He hasn't won a conference game and probably won't but that has ceased to annoy him. He would delight in beating any team which he, like others, feels should be kept in its place, but he hasn't done it and there is no crying. It is noticeable that he favors the working of sophomore material. He kept eleven of that class against Chicago for a good portion of the second half.

Buckeyes' Revenge?

Michigan Mulls Jug, Weather and Gophers

tendant of an Ann Arbor gasoline station.

What If There's No Jug?

The brown jug is doubly important if Minnesota wins tomorrow's game. It would be most embarrassing if the Gophers triumph and Michigan has no jug to present the winner.

In reality, the weather is a far more serious proposition. Both Michigan and Minnesota are expected to depend largely on a forward passing style of attack. While Bill Hewitt of Michigan and Jack Manders of Minnesota are excellent line plungers, neither is capable of advancing to touchdowns solely by this means. Michigan State and Michigan played to a scoreless tie in the rain last week, when with fair weather a decision might reasonably have been expected.

My Ubi, Minnesota half back, is the ball tosser Michigan has been drilled to watch in their forward pass defense. Hewitt and Harry Newman, when he relieves Capt. Roy Hudson at quarter back, will cast for Michigan touchdowns. Each eleven has a number of excellent receivers and each may score by this mehod, weather permitting.

Full Michigan Strength.

Michigan will take the field with its complete strength. Cecil Cantrill, a guard who has a broken nose, has returned to practice. He wears a headgear which shields the nose and with this equipment is expected to be able to replace one of the regular men if necessary.

In passing and kicking the rivals are rated equal. Jack Heston, a much improved player since early season, still holds his half back job which includes the punting. He will be opposed by Capt. Clarence Munn of Minnesota, who gets greater distance, but does not kick so high nor as accurately. It was a long punt by Munn from behind his goal line last year which provided the setting for Jack Wheeler's thrilling run for the only touchdown of the game.

Tomorrow's game is the most important of the season for both teams, barring Minnesota's battle with Northwestern. Michigan has lost to Ohio State but has whipped three second division Big Ten elevens—Chicago, Indiana and Illinois. The Gophers have routed Wisconsin and Iowa but they lost to the Wildcats.

Unless Michigan wins it cannot call the season a success, for it has been tied for a second year by Michigan State and its victory over Princeton in the east is discounted by the Tigers' extremely ineffective work against all opponents.

Minnesota also has been defeated by Stanford, but this and the Northwestern game will be forgotten if the Gophers can upset Michigan.

Carnera Gets Freedom; Post $4,000 Bond

Primo Carnera late yesterday was released from the custody of his retinue of deputy sheriffs when his representatives posted a bond of $4,000 to assure his appearance Monday before Superior Court Judge William Lindsay. The giant Italian pugilist had been held since his victory over King Levinsky at the Chicago stadium Thursday evening.

Earlier in the day Judge Lindsay refused a motion to quash the garnisheeing writ for $2,754 obtained by George A. Biemer, a fight promoter of Fort Wayne, Ind., and then denied Carnera his freedom. After the court session, which was moved into the chambers of Judge Lindsay because the crowd's interest in the huge Italian was interfering with the business of the court, Carnera was removed to his hotel quarters in company of the deputy sheriffs.

Carnera's attorney, Earl Schiek, then procured bond and the fighter's release. The Italian's purse of nearly $15,000 is tied up by the judgment.

The judgment against Carnera was obtained in Detroit in August of 1930 when Biemer charged that the heavyweight boxer had broken a contract with him for a fight in Fort Wayne. Last week Judge Michael McKinley issued an order garnisheeing Carnera's end of the purse in the fight with Levinsky.

Balloon Ball Is Doomed by U.S.G.A. Vote

New York, Nov. 20.—[Special.]—A new and heavier golf ball has been adopted by the executive committee of the United States Golf association to replace the "balloon" ball, it was announced today by H. H. Ramsay, president of the association. The "balloon" ball has borne the official stamp of approval for a year.

The new golf ball has been adopted for use, effective Jan. 1, 1932, Mr. Ramsay said.

Mr. Ramsay's announcement follows:

"Effective for play Jan. 1, 1932, the size of the golf ball shall be not less than 1.68 inches in diameter, and the weight shall be not greater than 1.62 ounces avoirdupois. The foregoing specifications retain the size of the present ball and change the weight specifications back to the weight of the old ball."

The "balloon" ball weighed only 1.55 ounces and was the object of widespread complaint that it was too light to hold its true course in the wind.

The executive committee, which was in session almost twelve hours yesterday, acted on no other important legislation, Preside.t Ramsay said. It did not set dates for the 1932 Walker Cup matches, which, it is rumored, may be postponed for a year, due to economic conditions in England.

Rose Poly Closes Season by Beating McKendree, 10-7

The annual charity game sponsored by the Joe Gubbins Armorco will be played on Thursday at Mills stadium, at 11 a. m., with the Charles V. Barrett A. C. eleven as opponents.

HARRISON MEETS SCHURZ FOR CITY PREP TITLE TODAY

West Section Champs Are Odds-On Favorites.

Harrison Technical High school, with the finest record of any finalist since the Tilden wonder team of 1928, makes another bid for its first Chicago public high school football championship this afternoon. Its opponent will be Schurz, north section title holder, at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street at 2 o'clock.

Based on its spirited drive to the west sectional championship and the weakness of its opponent in previous league contests, another victory and the league title is predicted for Harrison, the favorite since the race began on Oct. 10.

Nine consecutive triumphs back up Harrison's favoritism. Four of these victories were scored against strong practice foes, including Lindblom, 1930 league champion, and Moosheart, Ill., one of the best teams in the state.

Schurz Appears Weak.

Four more were hung up in winning the west section championship. It passed the semi-final barrier last week in a driving rain, whipping Parker, heretofore unbeaten south section champion.

Schurz lost practically all of its practice games and its victories in capturing the north division title were all by close margins. Last week in the semi-finals, it played a scoreless tie with Tilden at Logan Square park. It was selected for today's game by winning the toss of a coin.

To Schurz, the setting in this season's final game is the same as in 1929 when, given little consideration against a strong Lindblocm eleven, it put up a great battle and scored in the last half to win the championship.

As a muddy field is in prospect, rumors persisted along the north and west sides yesterday that Schurz, with every member of its squad available, is ready to score another surprising victory. But these reports have failed to scare the Hornets.

Two Stars Out.

While the Chicago public school championship is being decided today three suburban charity games will be played. Oak Park, recent winner of the Suburban league title, and Thornton of Harvey, Ill., South Suburban league champion, will meet at Oak Park in one of the games.

Announcement was made by Coach Glenn Holmes yesterday that two of his veterans, Edward Belser and David Lavicka, will not be in the Oak Park lineup this afternoon. Belser, right half back, and Lavicka, end, were injured when Oak Park defeated Proviso last week. Entire proceeds of the game will be turned over to the Oak Park Family Welfare association.

In the other two charity contests Evanston and New Trier, traditional rivals along the north shore, will meet in their annual battle at Dyche stadium, the receipts of which will be donated to the Evanston Junior league, and Proviso will face Washington High school of Cedar Rapids, Ia., at Maywood.

Stribling, Schaaf Sign for Stadium Battle on Dec. 3

Willie Stribling will fight Ernie Schaaf of Boston at the Chicago Stadium on the night of Dec. 3, it was announced last night. Stribling accepted terms for the battle from Matchmaker Nate Lewis late yesterday afternoon. Schaaf had agreed to the match two days earlier.

Stribling, who was hesitating about the Schaaf scrap, weakened and signed the papers after he and his managers, Ma and Pa Stribling, had studied the official returns of the Primo Carnera-King Levinsky fight at the Stadium on Thursday night.

A final official checkup showed that 19,245 persons paid to see the Kingfish lose to the Ambling Alp and the official total gross receipts were $56,428.50. This big gate brings the Stadium's average for the season above the $46,000 mark, which is a record at the big red arena on the west side.

Only four professional fights have attracted greater crowds to the Stadium than the one which cheered and booed Carnera and Levinsky. They were the Canzoneri-Routis bout, which drew 20,013 customers; Mandell and McLarnin's struggle, watched by 19,534; Mandell and Canzoneri, who played to 20,095, and Von Porat and Stribling, who fought before a gathering of 20,153.

Biff Bennett, Fort Sheridan soldier, who will fight in the ten round windup of Promoter Mique Malloy's boxing program at White City Monday night, will be seeking his fifth consecutive victory in a White City ring when he faces Les Marriner, Chicago heavyweight. Bennett has knocked out Walter Madey, Emil Johnson, Marlion Matuszack and Joe Miller in previous appearances at the south side arena.

Esposito Wins 4 Round Decision from Caputo

Joey Espisito scored a four round decision over Jimmy Caputo last night in the windup of the weekly amateur card at the Merry Garden arena. Walter Jerz knocked out Clarence Swigert in the first round of the semi-windup.

THEODORE GROSS HEADS ILLINOIS SKATING GROUP

Theodore A. Gross, superintendent of Chicago playgrounds, is the new president of the Illinois Western Skating association. The former secretary of the skating body was elected by a unanimous vote in a meeting at the Norwegian-American A. A. clubrooms and will have for his fellow officers Harry Mayfield, first vice-president; Roy McWhirter, second vice-president; Paul J. Staff, third vice-president, and Theodore Ruhlman, secretary-treasurer. Harry Berz, John Mock, Harry Hahn, Roy McWhirter and Tobias Orb were elected members of the registration committee.

DE PAUL FACES ARIZONA ELEVEN AT TUCSON TODAY

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Following a long workout under a blazing sun here this afternoon, De Paul university's football team was prepared to battle the University of Arizona Wildcats tomorrow afternoon.

Anderson planned to start Mat Steffen and Ernie Butcher at half back, while Jim Doody, the sophomore youngster, was slated for quarter back. The full back assignment was turned over to Art McGivern. Babe Roche and Eddie Lyons, two juniors, won first call at the ends.

Lyons is expected to figure in De Paul's aerial attack tomorrow, with Steffen or Joe Dea throwing.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES EASE ON MODERATE SALES

Libby-McNeill Takes No Action on Pfd. Dividends

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Unnerved by the relapse in the commodity markets and the weakness in New York stocks traders on the Chicago exchange restricted their operations yesterday and prices receded on a moderate volume of sales. No serious breaks occurred, but all classes of stocks shared the weakness.

Libby, McNeill & Libby shares sold off to 6, which is only a fraction above its depression low, because of the failure of directors to take any action on the 6 and 7 per cent preferred stock dividends, which are due Jan. 1.

Clears Up Arrearages.

Earlier this year the company cleared up the arrearages on the old preferred amounting to $2,780,000 through a reorganization of the capital structure. Preferred stock holders exchanged their shares for new preferred and also accepted 6 per cent preferred in payment of back dividends. The arrearages were for the three years prior to 1926. Since that time dividends have been paid on the old stock as well as on the new preferred. No dividends have been paid on the common stock since 1921.

Chicago Yellow Cab appeared on the tape at 14½ yesterday, selling ex the 25 cents monthly dividend. The stock will go on the new $2 dividend basis after the first of the year.

The motor accessory shares sustained only minor losses. The bullish enthusiasm, however, which was shown in Bendix earlier this week was conspicuously absent. With a second severe relapse in the leading pivotals in New York the sponsors had to abandon efforts to get the public back into the market.

Efforts of more than one sponsoring group in recent weeks to attract speculative followings in favorite shares have been frustrated by the sudden changes in trend in commodity markets.

See Policy Maintained.

Cord stock was heavily dealt in but little changed from its previous quotation as the street speculated over the significance of the realignment in the company's personnel. It was felt, however, that the aggressive policies used by the management to combat the depression would be continued.

Although most of the active stocks are still selling above the year's low prices, many of the less active shares made new depression lows yesterday. Included among them were Associated Telephone A, Corporation Securities preferred, Midland United preferred, and Middle West Utilities 6 per cent A preferred.

A trade in Union Elevated Railroad 5 per cent bonds of 1945 was completed at 50 as compared with the previous quotation of 74, a drop of 24 points. The issue has been inactive for months. The transaction involved bonds of a par value of $2,000.

LY MODERATE EMANDS MADE N BANK POOL

Seen Showing Return of Confidence.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Public confidence in the country's banks is reviving and therfore both deposits and the clearings of banks are ebbing. As a result the National Credit corporation, the $500,000,000 banking pool designed to make loans to solvent banks on frozen assets, has received only moderate demands for loans. This improved situation was outlined yesterday by Lester N. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee and director representing the Chicago federal reserve district. He also is chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, Chicago.

The corporation is "functioning as it was made a number of loans," Mr. Reynolds said upon his return to New York. "However, the need for loans seems to have diminished with the return of hoarded money to the banks started. In fact, the aggregate amount of loans thus far requested has been so moderate that the corporation is letting the district banking groups take care of them locally."

Will Not Ask Payment Now.

"In this situation the corporation directors have decided not to call on the banks for a 10 per cent payment of their subscriptions until such time as the aggregate of approved loans is enough to use the initial payment, which would be more than $50,000,000. It would be unjust to both the subscribing banks and to the corporation to call for money and then have it remain idle on deposit in the reserve banks."

Relative to general conditions in trade and finance, Mr. Reynolds said the sentiment is more cheerful, although it is generally admitted that it is due to being translated into terms of improvement. Eastern financiers believe that the financial troubles of Germany will be ironed out, thus doing up the chief international difficulty. The solution, however, still remains to be worked out.

CONTINUE HOPEFUL

Almost much concrete evidence of improvement in trade and industry under set of the recent turn for the better in sentiment, business observers are inclined to wait for the new year to bring real progress, according to the weekly trade reviews.

Seasonal retail trade has been held back by weather conditions, although the November and December volume as a whole is not epected to fall much below that of last year.

"The feeling of encouragement regarding future trends," Dun's review says, "has gained further considerable strength by the recovery of grain, cotton, and oil prices, as well as because of the firmness that has developed in other commodities.

Ease Credit Situation.

"Furthermore, the definite reversal in the course of the gold movement has eased credit conditions and disclosed hoarding. Distribution during the next two weeks of Christmas cash funds, estimated at fully $600,000,000, will help trade. There has been further benefit from the reopening of a number of closed banks in the middle west.

"A more cheerful attitude is noted among retailers of women's wear, millinery, and footwear. In most textile operations are expanding steadily. Employment of skilled workers in the industry is being increased. The paper industry is becoming more active. The outlook in this industry is the brightest it has been in two years."

Notes Uneveness.

Bradstreet's reports of retail trade business on uneven situation.

"Wholesalers, jobbers, and those engaged in the light industries also show uneven activity," the review continues. "This is in part a reflection of the retail state of affairs, due to the close buying policy which retailers are following.

"The heavy industries have yet to show a real pickup, although prospects for the first of the year at least are really brighter in some lines. Slowness continues to drag along in some sections of the country."

Lake Rates for Shipments of Grain Are Increased

Lake rates on grain have advanced one cent a bushel in the last few days, with 3 cents a bushel paid for moving corn from Chicago to Buffalo, and 3½ cents for wheat from Duluth to Buffalo. There were charters for 1,500,000 bu of wheat at the close for eastern lake ports on Thursday, mostly to unload. Chartering for the hauling grain from Duluth to Buffalo, including storage privileges are up to 3½ cents. It is understood that early in the season charters were made at 2½ cents. Lake tonnage is not expected to last more than three weeks at the extreme, depending upon weather.

Heavy Liquidation Results in Sharp Decline in Grain

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Drastic liquidation was on in the grain markets yesterday and with a lack of aggressive support prices dropped rapidly from the start. There was a noticeable lack of rallying power, and the finish was at the bottom, with wheat showing a loss for the day of 4@4¾c; corn, 1@2¾c; oats, 1⅝@1¾c, and rye, 3⅛@4¼c.

The combination of sharply lower cables from Liverpool; rain and snow in parts of the dry area in the west and southwest; weakness in the stock market and toward the last press cables indicating that China and Japan had reached an agreement regarding the Manchurian situation proved too much for holders and they sold heavily. Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down, and sellers of bids were forced to protect themselves.

Claim Pool Broke Market.

Numerous rumors have been current for some time regarding the recent sharp break in the wheat market, some claiming there was evidence of short selling and others that the decline was due to general unloading by operators who had bought lower down. It is the gossip of the trade that during the recent advance, which culminated on Nov. 9 with May wheat touching 73c, or 24¾c above the low point, tremendous amounts of long wheat came out at Winnipeg, rumor crediting the selling to the liquidator of the 1930 Canadian pool carryover.

According to the story current in grain circles, the selling of the wheat futures at Winnipeg was so heavy that operators there turned around and sold at Chicago as a hedge. Some of the closest students of conditions called attention to the fact that at one time Winnipeg futures were only about 2½c over Chicago, compared with 5c over at the close last night. However, part of this difference is understood to represent a change in the exchange rate, as Winnipeg quotations are in Canadian money.

Failure of Open Interest.

Failure of the open interest in wheat to increase materially when the hysterical buying was under way earlier in the month is regarded as adding color to the rumor, as has the failure of the open interest to decrease materially since that time. The total of all wheat at the close on Thursday was 127,895,000 bu, or a drop of less than 5,000,000 bu from the maximum reached a short while ago, despite the drastic liquidation which is regarded as having been under way.

While the actual facts regarding the recent sensational upturn in wheat prices, which many believe marked the turn in the business depression, may never be known, the gossip regarding why the market broke indicated that the eastern operators who started the price upward were assured that there would be no government owned graiid thrown on the market, but they overlooked the large amount of futures which were alleged to have been taken by the liquidator of the old pool holdings. The spreading operators put much weight on the market to hold it up.

December Wheat Tight.

December wheat in Chicago yesterday acted somewhat tight and gained ⅝c on the May, closing at 54⅝@54⅞c, while March was 59c; and May and July, 60⅝@61c. Winnipeg closed 3¼@3½c lower, with December quoted at 62⅝c in Canadian funds which were 12 per cent discount, while Liverpool was 1¾@1⅞c lower, with December at 48¼c.

There was no evidence of any export business of consequence in North American wehat during the day. Australia sold futures at Winnipeg, and a bearish construction was placed on Broomhall's cables telling of conditions in Argentina and Australia, the crop of the former country being estimated at only slightly less than last year's despite the recent frost damage, while the quality is regarded as better. Liverpool, however, claimed Broomhall's reports from Argentina did not agree with those they were receiving.

Cash Corn in Demand.

A marked improvement in the eastern shipping demand for cash corn, with sales by local handlers aggregating 230,000 bu, and with charters made for 290,000 bu to Buffalo, failed to have any effect of consequence on the futures market. The close on December was at 42¼@42⅝c; March, 45@45½c; May, 46⅝@46⅞c, and July, 49½@49⅝c. Wet weather over the greater part of the belt which may slow up the movement tended to bring in buying early, but the weakness in wheat more than offset anything of a bullish character.

December oats closed at 25⅝c; May, 29c, and July, 27⅝c, with local longs going out of their holdings on the way down, the break being regarded as largely in sympathy with other grains. Rye was also affected by the action of the latter and closed with December at 45¼c; May, 53¼@53⅝c, and July, 53c.

TRAFFIC LEAGUE STATES POLICY ON RAIL SITUATION

Shippers Act Upon Fulbright Report.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The National Industrial Traffic league, composed of the major shipping interests of the nation, concluded its annual meeting at the Palmer House yesterday by acting on the report of the special committee appointed to exchange views with the railway executives with respect to the declaration of legislative policy set forth by the railway leaders in November, 1930.

R. C. Fulbright of Houston, Tex., chairman of the special committee, submitted the report, a length document containing many points of mutual interest to the shippers and the railroads. Most of the committee's recommendations were accepted by the league, some were altered, and a few deleted. Those accepted may be made the subject of recommendations to congress.

Affirm Principles.

A number of important principles contained in the report were affirmed, including the following:

"The public is entitled to the benefit of the most economical and efficient means of transportation by any instrumentalities of transportation which made be suited to such purpose.

"No legislation should be attempted which has for its purpose the stifling of any legitimate form of transportation.

"Efficient railroad transportation is essential to the commerce and welfare of the country as a whole, but this declaration does not mean that efficient highway and water transportation is not also essential to modern commerce.

"Any permanent agency of governmental operation of transportation agencies is contrary to the public interest."

Neutral on Bus Competition.

The league decided to take no action with respect to motor bus competition with the roads; neither to support nor to oppose any legislation covering this form of transportation. A recommendation was made that the interstate commerce act be amended to permit the railroads to make joint rates with passenger and freight motor vehicle lines. The membership voted in favor of uniform state codes regarding the control of motor truck operation.

While the league voted against the general liberalization of the fourth section of the interstate commerce act, the so-called long and short haul clause, it did approve certain modifications to give the railroads greater freedom in meeting truck competition.

Approval was expressed for a proposal that the interstate commerce commission give the carriers authority to make reduced rates to meet truck competition where the reduced rates were found to be compensatory and not to constitute a burden on competitive agencies of transportation. The league opposed the granting of permission to carriers to make combinations of local rates which are less than the proportionate through rate charges.

Views on Water Transport.

The league advocated additional legislation to regulate water rates such as govern coastwise and intercoastal shipping. It opposes the placing of port rates under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission, although it feels that joint rail and water rates may be voluntarily placed under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission.

There was a difference of opinion as to whether or not port rates should be strictly regulated by the United States shipping board, and because of this the league voted to take no action. Many interests in the interior of the country favor a strict regulatory law empowering the shipping board to prescribe maximum and minimum rates and to punish discriminations.

The interior interests, shippers and manufacturers, feel that the cheaper rates charged for steamship haul give interests located along the seaboards an advantage because of the higher rates the former are compelled to pay for railroad hauls.

Sees Opportunity to Build Up Extensive Foreign Trade

BY SCRUTATOR.

If during the next two or three years business men in the United States do not take advantage of the present position of their country as the outstanding creditor nation of the world to build up an extensive foreign trade they will have muffed their biggest opportunity in half a century.

This is the opinion of Charles S. Dewey, former assistant secretary of the treasury, who recently returned to Chicago after serving for several years as official financial adviser to the government of Poland.

CHAS. S. DEWEY.

Mr. Dewey maintains that one of the causes of the depression has been that while economies in operation and improved facilities were stepping up production nobody was bothering his head much about developing new outlets for the additional output.

Must Sell More Abroad.

"In ordinary times," says Mr. Dewey, "America produces about ten per cent more goods than it can use at home. The surplus is exported. When exports fall off the effect on the price is a great deal more than ten per cent."

"We have cultivated the home market intensively. We must continue to do so, but that will not be enough. We've got to concentrate more effort on markets abroad.

"This we are in an excellent position to do. We have unlimited credit facilities and our efficiency of operation is so great that we can compete successfully in foreign markets with other nations, even though their labor costs are lower. Business is poor just now, but we must prepare for participation in world trade when it recovers, as it is bound to do."

That is the opportunity. How is it to be seized upon? In Mr. Dewey's opinion it will be a job for young men.

Want Cash with Order.

"Not long ago," he says, "I was calling on a manufacturer of locomotives in southern Poland. His plant was equipped with machinery made in Sweden. I asked him why he didn't buy his machines in the United States.

"'I would like to,' he answered. 'I believe I could get better equipment at a lower price. But when I inquired in America I found that I would have to pay fifty per cent cash with the order and fifty per cent f. o. b. New York. The Swedish people give me three years to pay, and thus I can amortize over a longer period.'"

Although the United States extends long term credits to foreign nations and pours short term credits into their banks, there is lacking adequate machinery for making ordinary commercial credits available to foreign industrial concerns.

Such credit can only result from an intimate knowledge of the company that is to receive the credit and confidence in its integrity. And American concerns, except a score or so of the larger ones, are not represented abroad by the right kind of eyes and ears.

Nationality of Salesmen.

"The representative of a German company in Athens," says Mr. Dewey, "will not be a Greek, but a fellow with a name something like Hans Schmidt. When you bump into the agent of a British concern in some far corner of the world you will find his name is Jones or McIntosh or O'Connor.

"The great majority of American companies, on the other hand, appoint foreigners to represent them. In selecting such men, unless a large salary is offered, the choice is usually limited to second raters who are out of a job or men without contacts who have to be developed. Their usefulness is often limited by their political, social or religious connections.

"Besides, to do business satisfactorily with concerns in older countries it is necessary to have a thorough understanding of their more devious methods and indirect habits of thought. An American after several years of contact with such customers is able to interpret their ways to his company."

Chance for Pioneers.

The old American love of pioneering, Mr. Dewey believes, must again find expression in opening up markets abroad. It has been dulled by years of easy living, but the necessity for exerting more effort to get business will bring it out.

To young men out of college with a few years of business experience he recommends sacrificing some of the comforts of suburban life to become pioneers in this interesting new field.

To American firms and trade associations anxious to build up foreign sales he says: "Send intelligent and personable young Americans to represent you abroad instead of hiring foreigners who know as little about your ways of doing business as you do about theirs."

RADIO KEITH DISSENTERS TO OFFER NEW PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 20.—[Special.]—The group of stockholders of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation, which has expressed objections to the recapitalization and financing plan recently proposed, indicated today that it expected to have a substitute proposal ready tomorrow.

The committee has received from the corporation the information it requested, including details of operating expenses and the income budget. Transfer of stock on the Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation into the names of the owners or their brokers or nominees before the close of business on Nov. 23 was urged today by Hiram S. Brown, president of the corporation.

Mr. Brown suggested the step "in view of the importance to all stockholders of the special stockholders' meeting to be held on Dec. 10, 1931, and of the subscription warrants to be issued to stockholders of record on Nov. 23."

Approve Stock Issues for 2 Insull Companies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 20.—The Illinois commerce commission today authorized the Commonwealth Edison company to issue and sell capital stock aggregating $15,694,200 in par amount. Another order permits the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois to issue and sell $9,773,700 of its capital stock. The stock will be offered to shareholders at par, the firms announced recently.

BRTAIN'S NEW DUTIES WILL HIT AT IMPORTS FROM UNITED STATES

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The first duties under Britain's new anti-dumping measure will become effective next Wednesday and will hit numerous articles the nation has been accustomed to receive from the United States.

The order imposing these taxes was made under the terms of the anti-dumping measure which earlier in the day received royal assent after having passed all stages of parliament.

The following articles will be subjected to 50 per cent duties based on value:

Metal furniture, cutlery, including surgical instruments and safety razors; hand tools other than agricultural implements; vacuum cleaners; wireless sets and the component parts thereof excepting valves, permanent magnets or batteries; typewriters.

Other articles affected include:

Woolen manufactures; stockings and hose of silk or artificial silk; handkerchiefs wholly or partly of linen; men's and boys' overcoats, manoes, suits, coats, waistcoats and trousers; all gloves except rubber gloves; paper and paper manufactures; tires and tubes; heels and soles; linoleum, oilcloth and similar floor coverings.

The new duties also hit all kinds of perfumery and cosmetics, including toothpastes, creams, deodorants, sachets, lipstick, rouge, greasepaint, lotions and soaps. Toilet requisites also are affected, such as powder puffs, nail buffers, clippers, files and tweezers.

WILL RESUME RAILWAY LABOR PARLEY TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 20.—The desire of the railroad managements to offset heavy cuts in revenue by a 10 per cent reduction in labor costs was put forward at a second conference of railroad presidents and union leaders in the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad offices here today. This followed consideration of measures for increasing employment suggested in an elaborate plan announced by the brotherhoods on Thursday.

Today's meeting started in the morning and continued until 7:30 tonight with an hour's intermission for luncheon. The duration of the proceedings gave rise to a belief that the meeting was making progress. This view was given support in informal comment made by Daniel Willard, representing the managements, and D. B. Robertson, president of the Railway Labor Executives' association, at the close.

Mr. Willard and Mr. Robertson announced that their two groups would meet separately tomorrow morning and jointly in the afternoon.

The most striking proposal made by the brotherhoods for the provision of employment was a suggestion for joint support by managements and workers of legislation for a $1,000,000,000 United States bond issue to eliminate grade crossings. It was believed this project received only minor attention at today's meeting. Railroad men who commented on the proposal said they could not see how crossing construction would provide much work for train operating employés nor even for maintenance forces. Moreover, the railroads are seeking to cut expenses and also are not desirous of lending further assistance to the trucks, their competitors on the highways. Another objection raised against the crossing plan was that crossing elimination was a state rather than a federal activity.

Quaker Oats Co. Declares Usual Quarterly Dividends

The Quaker Oats company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1 a share on the common stock and $1.50 a share on the preferred. The common dividend is payable Jan. 15 to stock of record on Dec. 30, and the preferred is payable Feb. 29 to stock of record Feb. 1.

Treasury Bill Offering Heavily Oversubscribed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—Secretary Mellon announced that subscriptions for the latest offering of $60,000,000 ninety-three day treasury bills exceeded $173,000,000. The total amount of bids accepted was $60,182,000. The average price for the bills, which do not bear interest and so are sold on a discount basis, was 99.411. The discount is equivalent to an interest rate of 2.38 per cent.

Bradstreet's Food Index Shows 3 Cent Increase

Bradstreet's weekly food index shows a rise of three cents above the revised figure reported in the previous week. The index now stands at $2.12, as against $2.09 in the preceding week and $2.61 in the corresponding week last year. The increase of 1.9 per cent over last week is largely accounted for by the jump in prices of butter and eggs.

WESTERN UNION, POSTAL UNITE IN NEW SERVICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 20.—The American Telephone and Telegraph company on the one hand and the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies jointly on the other tonight issued public announcements of rival plans for the establishment of nation-wide "printer" service by which messages typed on a machine in the office of one customer will be printed almost instantaneously on another machine in the office of another customer with whom a connection is desired.

For the first time in a half century of active competition in the communications business the Western Union and Postal have united to offer a joint service to the public in a mutual effort to overtake the lead taken by the Bell system in establishing a widespread printer system. No merger or other connection between the competing telegraph systems is to occur, as the present union has been formed for the sole purpose described.

All three companies have for several years offered printer service to their customers on various bases, generally for use over leased wires such as connect the different offices of a brokerage firm or bank or industrial organization. Police and news services have printer equipment in general use throughout most sections of the United States.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 20.—In the undernourished condition to which it has been reduced by long lack of invigorating news, the stock market succumbed easily to the backwash from the jackknife diva taken by wheat in the afternoon. Prices flopped from 1 to 5 points in nearly all departments. Scattered losses ranging as high as 10 points or more were recorded.

The selling rush swamped the ticker at intervals, causing it to fall as much as three or four minutes behind the pace of floor trading. Transactions approached the 2,000,000 share mark.

United States Steel crashed to a new bear market low of 60⅝, off 4 points from yesterday's final figure, and it was only fractionally above its new bottom at the close. The sudden plunge of this old industrial bellwether just before dealings turned into the final hour probably had as much influence toward unsettling the general list as the tumble in grain.

Bears Hammer Steel.

Bear operators had been hammering at the issue all morning. They had been at it in fact for several days. The steady drumfire gradually battered the price down and when the old low was broken through a considerable volume of stop loss orders was evidently touched off, which sent the price plunging headlong for a further dip of some 2½ points.

Liquidation was general throughout the list for most of the last hour of trading. By the time it had subsided a sizeable group of high class stocks besides steel had been swept down to new low levels for the bear market. A big proportion of the railroad shares qualified for the unenviable distinction. Weakness in New York Central, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and other representative issues was acute. Its combined effect was to sink the generally accepted averages below the previous lows on Oct. 5. Atchison went below par once more and this left the market with only one rail issue, Norfolk and Western, ruling above its parity.

Utilities Give Way.

Public utilities were forced to give up anywhere from 1 to 5 points. People's Gas, the Insull blue chip, was one of the hardest hit of the lot, receding more than 5 points to a new low for the current reaction. Public Service, Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas, and others fell back 1 to 2 points or more.

Western Union was again a shining target for the bears and sold off more than 2 points, but rebounded to regain most of it toward the last—thanks to covering by traders suddenly seized with a notion that they might be overdoing the thing.

Among the so-called volatiles, Auburn Auto took a tumble of 10⅝ points, Eastman Kodak dropped 4½, and Coca Cola 4½ points. Popular anticipation of a further cut in Westinghouse's dividend when the directors meet next month made that issue a weak spot.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 4,500; hogs, 20,000; sheep, 4,000.

Hog prices fell back to the previous low spot of the season yesterday, which was established earlier in the week, but the clearance was good and more than the usual action was noted in the trade for light and light butchers near the finish.

The extreme top was 10c under the high point of Thursday at $4.65, and equal to last Tuesday's top, which was the lowest since 1905. The general average remained unchanged at the $4.50, with the price range narrowest of the year again. There was a reliable outlet for 250@270 lb averages at $4.55, while most of the 220@300 lb butchers sold at $4.45@4.50.

Order buyers were slow in getting started and their actions at the opening were misleading, in that many traders attributed their lack of interest to light orders. However, before noon eastern buyers had 35 per cent of the fresh receipts, taking 11,000 head, and caused only a slight flurry in the market during the forenoon. Smaller local packers and city butchers were not aggressive, but larger houses bid up high as any for the medium and weighty butchers at the close, and saved the price range from spreading out.

December Offers $4.75.

Heavy grades of hogs were offered steady at $4.75 yesterday, but most December contracts carried bids of $4.25 and January contracts were bid $4.50. March medium and heavy grades of hogs were offered at $5.00.

As usual, Friday was cleanup day in the cattle alleys, and stocks of medium quality accumulated during the week comprised a fairly good share of the available supply. Only 2,000 fresh receipts arrived. Owing to the medicore quality on hand, the trade proved to be a "catch as catch can" affair, with a dependable outlet for only the few lots of choice cattle eligible to more than $11.00.

One lot of 11 choice 921 pound yearlings topped the price list at $11.50. The bulk of all steers sold at $5.50@7.85. Butcher stock and calves showed little change for the day. Only a few loads of stockers and feeders arrived and demand was narrow at steady prices.

Sheep Prices Advance.

The market for aged slaughter ewes, that has been practically demoralized all summer, is finally exhibiting more life, and the spread between matured stock and top lambs has become narrower in the last few days. While top lambs are close to the 20 year low, top aged ewes are selling up to 2.50, the highest since the middle of August and above the average for the whole summer. The spread between sheep and lambs has been cut down to $2.90.

About the middle of last month the two classes were almost $5 apart. The quality of sheep and lambs was better on yesterday's session, and the market for both classes showed more strength. Fed westerns of choice quality sold to packers at $6.40, while natives went to packers at $6.25. Top ewes are up to $2.50 and yearlings averaging 100 lbs are selling at $5.00.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 400 cattle, 20,000 hogs, and 4,000 sheep, against 238 cattle, 27,886 hogs, and 4,402 sheep the previous Saturday, and 218 cattle, 9,683 hogs and 2,29 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 45,000 to 70,000. F. Knutzen marked 48,000, F. W. Young 54,000, F. M. Sherwood, J. T. Brown and W. G. Olson 55,000, E. S. Court Rules Permit
Are Prohibited.

Government permits which authe

Federal Judge
Louis Fitzhenry ruled yesterday in the District court at Springfield.
The commission-

granting them.

The ruling was given in uphold-

of H. C. Yellow-

bakery appealed to the District cou

Predicts Drastic Change.

An indication of how important t decision is regarded was founded the statement last night in Washi ton of Commissioner of Alcohol Jam
M. Doran, who said it would "undou edly" change the granting of perm in the future. He mentioned th several large packers in this distr have been using alcohol in maki mincemeat.

Mr. Yellowley said last night th
there are about 100 food manufact ers in this district who are entitled withdraw alcohol.

The ruling, it was made plain, wou bulk of the withdrawals.

The gist of the judge's decisi was found in this paragraph: " holic liquors and beverages with slight addition of intoxicating liqu which was formerly very popul before the adoption of the 18

"There can be no question," t decision continued, "but that co

Excludes Food Makers.

"For reasons satisfactory to its it did not do so, but on the co food products with other uses intoxicating liquor from the entities clearly within the prohi

industrial alcohol presume to crea

law and are therefore void."

That the present custom of gra ing alcohol "food" permits is on a ruling by the prohibition depa

ing.

The practice of allowing food man

said.
